Dry Law in Final Test, Says Hoover Aide

200 POLICE, FIREMEN IN SHAKEUP

Today

Half of Dull 1930 Gone.

1,500 Communists, One Weeps.

To Tax the Unmarried.

A Forlorn Farm Hope.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE HALF YEAR of 1930 ends today with no conspicuous signs of industrial or other improvement.

The number of unemployed is estimated at 6,000,000, greater than in any other nation.

However, President Hoover's various commissions find bright spots, here and there. And there is comfort in knowing that when you get to the bottom of the hill, the road must go up. The extraordinary thing is that our best minds, so well supplied with solemn wisdom in prosperity, have not the vaguest idea as to what is the matter with us.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED Communists tried to free India, by way of the British consulate, in lower New York City, on Saturday, throwing stones, making speeches. They included a vigorous young girl, who shattered a plate glass window, cutting up her "comrades" with flying glass, and a young Harvard student, Lawrence D. Cohen. When arrested he told the police, with tears, that his Harvard professors had told him "to get out among workers and take an interest in their condition."

YOUNG MR. COHEN typifies many that descend from their "class" to interest themselves in workers, or free some nation of which they know little. Said Cohen:

"I came down here to take an interest in the workers and got beaten up. I want to go to a hospital immediately."

THOSE YOUNG Communist boys and girls, and their leader, a majority quite sincere, should travel beyond Battery Park to the edge of the Ganges. They would see the burning ghat, with corpses smouldering, dead bodies floating on the sacred river, pilgrims drinking the poisonous water, the streaming blood of thousands of goats, poured out to please strange gods, an occasional young widow secretly burned alive with an old husband's body, child wives, moaning and dying in childbirth, at 10 years of age. A visit to India would make them less eager to drive out British, seeking to civilize.

The civilizing is done for a profit and the glory of the Empire, of course. But how did we civilize our Indians?

GERMANY plans to tax spinsters and bachelors, to help balance the budget. Women and men, unmarried, according to German theory, are not doing their share.

A TAX on unmarried women, under 45, would be desirable in this country, if it could drive into marriage intelligent young women now single.

The greatest loss to the nation is the loss of millions of superior children that would be born if intellectual young females could be persuaded to take men as they are, and not expect too much.

THE FRENCH say:

"At night, all cats are gray."

MR. LEGGE, of the Farm Board, says organization is the farmers' only hope.

Mere organization, without application of modern industrial methods, would be a forlorn hope.

Organizing ten thousand little wheelwright shops would not produce a modern automobile industry. You need a new system of production.

A TEAM of horses, or a small tractor, turning corners every few minutes in a small field, will not produce profitable wheat.

Fences should come down and giant tractors should go in a straight line for miles. Montana uses a cultivator 60 feet wide.

Use of modern agricultural machinery, reducing the cost of crop production, should be the rule.

If the government would supply and rent the machinery, or give it outright, organizing farming, as it organized work on the Panama Canal, something might be done.

Make our farming the most efficient in the world, like our automobile and moving picture industries, and, like them, American farming will conquer the world.

MRS. DELIA AKELEY returns from the land of the African pigmies much impressed with the good qualities of those little people. She thinks it a pity that they should be vanishing, rapidly.

Sometimes they eat each other, but they are affectionate, keep their word and have other good qualities.

IT BECOMES us to remember that all of our ancestors were once cannibals. Only the races that ate human flesh, regularly, or in case of emergency, survived.

HENNESSY, ARMSTRONG PROTEGE RAISED

Sub-Patrolman Who Struck Hoey Advanced; Only Two Officers Given Demotions

A shake-up in the Department of Public Safety, involving more than 200 police and firemen, was announced today by Director James M. Clark.

While many were given appointments, only two members of the police department were demoted. They were Harry E. Moore, from captain to lieutenant, and George E. Stone, from sergeant to patrolman.

Dennis Hennessy, protege of Joseph Armstrong, was the lone inspector appointed. He will take charge of the new police district in the West End.

Police Inspector John J. McArdle, of the South Side, reported among those slated to go in the shakeup, has been retained.

BATTALION CHIEFS MOVED

Two battalion fire chiefs were numbered among the 100 or more firemen involved. Alex Reed, of the North Side, was named chief to succeed Michael Shanahan, who died recently. William H. Davis was also named chief to fill the second vacancy.

The appointments included names familiar to police circles of the past, notably the detective bureau. Here Elmer Mallassee, Walter Kaiser and John Callen, ousted some years ago due to political or other reasons, were named city detectives.

HOEY FOE APPOINTED

Conspicuous among those appointed patrolmen were William Dacy and Roger J. Consilio, Dacy last week was ordered brought before the police trial board. Dacy admitted he "took a crack" at Inspector James N. Hoey, his superior, in an argument over an arrest. The trial board hearing is slated for next Thursday. Consilio was formerly a patrolman.

The appointments show, among other things, the growing strength of State Senator James J. Coyne. A goodly proportion of the appointments went to his men.

The great number is due primarily to the increased budget for the police and fire bureaus. For five months, many of the vacancies went unfilled. These new jobs were created in the last budget.

Phone Call Only Maniac Killer Clue

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—A vague tipoff to police by phone was the sole clue police were today working on in their manhunt for the maniac killer of Queens, who has murdered two men and then stolen embraces from their lady escorts.

Capt. John Graham and a squad of detectives have been rounding up persons in Nassau County for questioning.

Bandit Shot Dead In N. Y. Park Ave.

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—A bandit was shot and killed today by Patrolman Herman Roth during a chase which resulted in the capture of two other robbers. Roth came to the rescue of the proprietor of a grocery store who was being held up. The bandits fled. Roth fired, downing one, who, before he died, said his name was David Fuchs. The shooting occurred on exclusive Park avenue.

MILLVALE ASKS SUNDAY SPORT

Results to date in the poll of Munhall and Oakdale will be published tomorrow.

Millvale renders a positive decision for Sunday sports and amusements in the Blue Law poll of Allegheny County by the Sun-Telegraph.

Voters of the borough, yielding heavy returns in the poll, overwhelmingly oppose the eighteenth century statute severely prescribing Sunday observance. Eight Millvale voters advocate repeal of the law for each voter favoring its enforcement. The votes are divided:

	Men.	Women.	Total.
Enforcement	30	17	47
Modification	22	10	32
Repeal	296	78	374

Ballots from Millvale in the poll to date total 453, constituting about 45 per cent of the number of voters, 1,009, who cast ballots in the borough in the May primary.

Total returns from the county in the poll mount to 57,084 with the latest compilation. They show five votes for repeal to each vote

Tennis Shoe Sale On Sunday Draws $6.45 Fine

BALTIMORE, June 30.—(AP.)—Sale of a pair of tennis shoes in violation of the Maryland blue laws cost Max Silen a $6.45 fine. Sunday morning Silen found time heavy on his hands and opened a store owned by his brother-in-law, with whom he lived.

A patrolman saw him make the sale and took him before the magistrate. He pleaded ignorance of the blue laws.

DRY LAW FACES BIGGEST TEST, SAYS LOESCH

Bureau Transfer to Spell Success or Failure of Act, Declares Board Member

IOWA CITY, Ia., June 30.—(AP.)—Frank J. Loesch, of Chicago, a member of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission, said today that if transfer of prohibition enforcement to the Department of Justice does not improve conditions, some modification of the Eighteenth Amendment must be considered.

The dry law enforcement transfer to the Justice Department takes place at midnight tonight, ending a 10½-year period of control by the Treasury.

PLAYS HOME SEARCHING

In an address at the commonwealth conference at the University of Iowa, to which President Hoover wired greetings, Loesch, aged and fiery head of the Chicago Crime Commission, declared:

"I have no sympathy whatever with so-called enforcement which involves the searching of homes for a few pints or gallons of contraband alcohol. That kind of enforcement has a negligible result on the total production of merchandised illicit beverages.

"The great defect of it is its uselessness in diminishing the total sale of illegal beverages. The searching of homes in that respect, has, in my judgment, reached the very limit, if it has not passed beyond the right of a citizen to be secure in his home against unreasonable searches and seizures."

HITS DIVERSION

"Diversion of large amounts of industrial alcohol into illegal channels has been a source of wholesale violation of the Volstead law and has been the pool for enormous sums of money herewith to corrupt politicians and the law enforcing officers."

He continued:

"Trucks loaded to capacity with barrels of beer and cases of liquors could not pass from one state to another and through populous cities without being seen if it were not for the

Report Woman Won $250,000 at Baccarat

PARIS, June 30.—(INS.)—Mrs. Bella Factor, wife of a Chicago broker, today refused to confirm reports she won $250,000 at baccarat at the Le Touquet Casino.

Mrs. Factor's spectacular win was reported to have taken place over two nights' play. The casino was said to have forced to send to its bankers in Paris for more money.

Cincinnation Pushed For Pension Office

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(INS.)—Albert D. Alcorn, Cincinnati attorney, was recommended to President Hoover today by Representative Hess (Rep.), of Ohio, for appointment as commissioner of pensions. Alcorn formerly was national commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans.

NEW RECORD WON, ALOFT 19TH DAY

Illinois Farmer-Aviator Brothers Fight Fatigue; Fortune Awaits Victors

CHICAGO, June 30.—(AP.)—Autriding a terrific thunderstorm and overcoming trouble in refueling, the Hunter brothers fought off sleep today to prolong their record endurance airplane flight over Sky Harbor.

At 12:40 p. m., Pittsburgh time, today they flew through their 451st hour and kept the City of Chicago nosed toward their intended goal—the Fourth of July and 23 days of continuous flying. Already they have eclipsed the world's record for such a flight by 31 hours, and their motor was functioning well.

4 OTHER HUNTERS

Walter and Albert, with "Big Ben," furnish fuel and food contacts with the record breakers.

Sister Irene still is cooking the food that keeps Walter and Albert well and eager for the wearing grind, and Mother Hunter pats the back of her three children on the ground and sends words of encouragement to the two boys in the air.

The one hundred sixty-seventh contact was made at 10:40 a. m., Pittsburgh time.

Hundreds still thronged the field today to watch the plane. Yesterday an unnumbered crowd packed every approach to the airport.

The fliers were urged on by many bonuses for each hour they exceeded the record set by the St. Louis Robin.

The flight at 12:40 had consumed 6,270 gallons of gasoline and 285 gallons of oil.

BROKE RECORD SUNDAY

The old mark of the St. Louis Robin—420 hours 21 minutes and 30 seconds—was passed at 7:01:30 a. m. (Pittsburgh time) yesterday.

Fighting fatigue, they hope to remain aloft at least until July 4.

Although the record set by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine last

Death in Still Raid Called Accidental

PINEVILLE, W. Va., June 30.—(AP.)—A coroner's jury yesterday found that Estel Bishop, of Hensley, McDowell County, died from gunshot wounds accidentally inflicted. Bishop was killed Saturday during a raid on a moonshine still at Pod Hollow, on Huff's Creek. Officers said the shooting occurred when a deputy sheriff's gun became entangled in a grape vine after Bishop and Albert Wharnton had been arrested.

Girl Burned to Death As Lamp Explodes

HOMEWOOD, Ill., June 30—(INS.)—Explosion of a kerosene lamp was blamed today for a fire which burned to death Gladys Zeilstra, 11, and injured her brother, Walter, 16, possibly fatally, last night, when they and three other children were trapped in a bedroom of their home.

SCHWAB PLAYS HOST TO CURTIS

By WILLIAM PFARR,
Staff Correspondent.

EBENSBURG, Pa., June 30.—Gov. John S. Fisher was expected to turn up "unexpectedly" this afternoon to help Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate, and the sixth annual Cambria County Industrial Exposition give Vice President Charles Curtis the time of his life. Curtis, who is to preside at the ceremonies opening the fair, arrived at 9 a. m. from Washington on a special car attached to a Pennsylvania Railroad train. With him were his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, and her husband.

Schwab and a host of others from 50 miles around were on hand to greet the vice-presidential party. Curtis spent the morning looking over Schwab's private golf course and other points of interest on the Schwab estate. Mrs. Gann

Mooney Mum on Pardoning Rumor

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., June 30.—(INS.)—Tom Mooney, America's most noted prisoner, serving a life term in San Quentin prison for alleged complicity in the Preparedness Day bombing that resulted in the death of 10 persons here in July, 1916, today sat calmly in his cell and refused to comment on widely-circulated reports that the State Supreme Court this week will recommend that Gov. C. C. Young pardon him.

Vanderbilts Start On Pacific Cruise

COLON, R. P., June 30.—(INS.)—The schooner White Shadow stood away to sea today on a six weeks' fishing and hunting expedition through Las Perlas Islands in the South Pacific.

Alfred and George Vanderbilt chartered the craft and they planned to bring valuable trophies back for the New York Museum of Natural History.

MERCURY NEARS 90; ONE DEATH

One death from the heat was reported today as the mercury climbed toward the 90-degree mark.

Michael Sigella, 32, an employe of the Union Railroad, collapsed while mowing the lawn in front of his home at Willock, and died before a physician arrived. Heart failure superinduced by the heat was given as the cause of death on the coroner's records.

The temperature reached 86 this afternoon and was expected by the weather bureau to go higher. Thunder showers are predicted to break the heat wave tonight.

Girl Flier Makes 3 Outside Loops

PORTLAND, Ore., June 30.—(AP.)—Dorothy Hester, 19-year-old Portland aviation student of a year, today had joined the small group of fliers who have performed an outside loop.

Miss Hester yesterday completed three out of five attempts at outside loops, a feat aviation experts here said, no other woman has attempted.

Senator Smoot to Marry Mormon Bishop's Widow

SALT LAKE CITY, June 30.—(AP.)—Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, announced at his office here today that he and Mrs. Alice Taylor Sheets, of Salt Lake City, would be married soon but the date was not made known.

The ceremony will be performed in the Latter Day Saints temple here.

The Senator, who is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, arrived here Saturday from Washington.

Rumors of the engagement had been circulating for several weeks, following Mrs. Sheet's recent trip to Washington, where she had been with Mr. Smoot on various occasions.

Mrs. Sheets, prominent in the activities of the Latter Day Saints Church, of which Mr. Smoot is an apostle, has been a widow since 1918. Her first husband, Edwin S. Sheets, a bishop in the Latter Day Saints Church, died during the influenza epidemic of that year.

Senator Smoot's first wife died more than a year ago in Washington.

Coolidge Views on News Of Day in Sun-Telegraph

If you were to meet a man who had served two terms as President of the United States and he should give you his views on the news of the day, you would, of course, consider the opportunity to hear him a rare privilege, and listen with the keenest attention.

Such an opportunity is to be given Sun-Telegraph readers every day, beginning tomorrow.

Calvin Coolidge, a great thinker and forceful writer, is to write a daily article for the Sun-Telegraph. Mr. Coolidge will tell what he thinks about current events and the trend of affairs.

He will bring to his task the wealth of his experience in the White House, as governor of Massachusetts and mayor of Northampton, the keen judgment of a successful lawyer, and the humanness of a home and family man. Many other qualities Mr. Coolidge will also bring to his task, assuring articles that will be of wide appeal, and exceptionally well worth reading.

CITY, STATE, NATION JOIN IN FINAL TRIBUTE TO PORTER

300 PRESENT AT SERVICE ON LAWN

Congressman Laid to Rest As Colleagues in Capital Act as Escort for Cortege

Under the shade trees of a spacious lawn, funeral services were held this afternoon for Congressman Stephen G. Porter at the home of his brother L. K. Porter, 5 Center avenue, Emsworth.

More than 300 friends and associates, among them high officials of the government, heads of civic, state and fraternal bodies, gathered to pay their final tribute.

Among the floral offerings was a wreath of gladiolus bearing the card of President and Mrs. Hoover.

Dr. W. I. Wishart, pastor of the Eighth United Presbyterian Church, conducted the simple services.

The interment will be made in Homewood Cemetery, Ben Avon, Avalon and Bellevue, where flags will be at half-mast, to Highwood Cemetery.

REPRESENTS PRESIDENT

President Hoover, who expressed grief at the death of his friend, is represented by Mr. Porter's daughter, Mrs. Ruth Barton, represented by Lieut. Com. Walter Wiltse Hoover, naval aide.

Keith Merrill, specialist secretary in the State Department, represented Secretary of State Stimson, and Everett J. Phillips, trade commissioner, represented Secretary Robert P. Lamont.

Fourteen House members from Washington attended as the official group from that body. They included Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York and the following Pennsylvanians: E. M. Beers, Adam Wyatt, Edgar R. Kiess, Milton W. Shreve, S. A. Kendall, Cyrenius Cole, Guy E. Campbell, J. Charles Linthicum, Clyde Kelly, P. J. Sullivan, Henry W. Temple, Howard Swank, Thomas Cochran and Harry A. Estep. Included in the congressional party were House Sergeant-at-Arms J. G. Rodgers, Deputy Sergeants John Oberholser and C. J. Catanach.

SENATE GROUP DETAINED

The Senate committee members expected to attend were detained in Washington due to action on the veterans' bill. They were to have included Senators David A. Reed, Joseph R. Grundy, Simeon D. Fess, Roscoe McCullough, Robert F. Wagner, Royal C. Copeland, William E. Borah, Claude A. Swanson, Guy D. Goff and Henry D. Hatfield.

The entire Pennsylvania congressional delegation were honorary pallbearers, including Dr. George Metzger, Dr. S. H. Ralston, Attorney J. B. Orr, Mr. Merrill, Edmund F. Erk, Mr. Porter's secretary, and Dr. J. B. Kellogg.

Dr. N. Q. Ou represented the Chinese legation in Washington. Among the floral emblems was one from Secretary of State Stimson.

MOVIES GO ON AFTER ARRESTS

STEUBENVILLE, O., June 30.—Managers and attendants of two motion picture theaters, who yesterday defied the Sunday Blue Laws by operating their theaters, were to be arraigned in municipal court today for hearings. It is understood that they will waive hearings and allow the cases to go to the grand jury.

City police, acting on affidavits filed by City Solicitor Amanda Strayer, made the arrests but did not not stop the showing of the motion pictures. Those arrested were William Hendricks and George Della, managers of the Capitol and Olympic Theaters. A ticket seller and operator at each theater also were arrested.

Several attempts to open theaters here have been balked by ministers who are supporting Solicitor Strayer in her fight against Sunday shows. The two theaters, which operated yesterday, recently were acquired by Warner Brothers.

Commerce Chamber Host to Farmers

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce today was to be host to 60 Butler County farmers who were visiting in the city for a day's inspection of marketing facilities. The visitors were led by R. H. McDougall, county farm agent. Frank Shaffer, secretary of the agricultural committee of the chamber, was to escort the Butler County residents through the produce yards. The visitors also were to be entertained at a luncheon.

'MANIAC' SLAYS FARGO AUTOIST

FARGO, N. D., June 30.—(INS.)—Fargo today had a "maniac killer" mystery to solve after Leif Erickson, 23, was shot to death by a masked gunman as he sat in his parked automobile with Vera Helgerson, 22. The slaying occurred at the city's outskirts.

The slayer, wearing a mask, opened the door of Erickson's car, prodded his victim with a revolver and demanded that he "stick 'em up."

Although Erickson complied the assailant fired, killing him almost instantly. An approaching automobile caused the gunman to flee. No attempt at robbery was made.

Police described the assailant's tendencies as parallel to the slayer who recently took the lives of two New York men as they parked beside the road with girl companions.

Motorist Killed When Tire Blows

Rioting Communists Find It Blue Monday

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—Communists faced a blue Monday here today. Several are in jail and bruised policemen will press charges of assault and battery as a result of the riot Saturday before the British Consulate, where the Communists had marched to protest the Simon report on India.

A Harvard student, Lawrence B. Cohen, Jr., son of a Wall street attorney, was among those in jail. Patrolman James V. Vines said Cohen had struck him with a club. There were bandages around Vines' head.

Factory Workman Hurt in Fall Dies

WILES-BARRE, Pa., June 29.—(AP.)—Lee Brennan, 45, of Wyoming, died in a local hospital of a fractured skull received Friday when he fell at the Wyoming Shove Works, where he was employed. He leaves his widow and five children.

Martins Ferry On New Air Line

POWHATAN POINT, O., June 30.—Capt. Jack Adams, who is in charge of Scott Field Airport, states that Mercury Airlines definitely announced the selection of Martins Ferry as a stop on its Cleveland to Atlanta, Ga., lines, to be inaugurated July 7.

Free Picnic for Soldiers Of All Wars 6 Days Off

The week starts for former members of American fighting and auxiliary units with the Sun-Telegraph Picnic at Kennywood Park only six days off.

A new group this year, will take part in the celebration with the inclusion of members of the Central Powers' and Allied forces invited to attend.

Strips of tickets will be given to men and women identifying themselves with any past or present American army or relief organization and with armies of other lands. A dinner is to be supplied to Civil War veterans and to disabled soldiers, sailors, and marines now in government hospitals by the Sun-Telegraph.

Guests are requested to wear the uniforms of their units to the picnic, if possible. Other identification will be accepted, however, if this is inconvenient.

STATE AWAITS LUZERNE VOTE

HARRISBURG, June 30.—(AP.)—The state bureau of elections today awaited receipt of the official vote for Luzerne County which was to be certified to the secretary of the commonwealth, as cast in the primary election, by the county commissioners today.

It was said at the election bureau that the vote would be handled just as were the remainder of the state's 67 counties. This was interpreted as meaning that insofar as the secretary of the commonwealth is concerned Gifford Pinchot has been nominated as the Republican candidate for governor.

Counsel for Francis Shunk Brown, opponent of Pinchot in the primary, has carried to the Supreme Court an appeal against the counting of the Luzerne County vote on the ground that perforations in the ballots amounted to mutilation.

While the Supreme Court has notified the secretary of the commonwealth of its action in deciding to hear arguments in the case September 29 in Pittsburgh, this action is not regarded as staying plans for certifying the apparent winner's names.

Advocates Schooling For 'Half-Educated'

COLUMBUS, O., June 30.—(AP.)—The National Education Association is preparing to assume the role of truant officer and bring half-educated grown-ups back to school.

The general impression that the association is chiefly interested in educating youngsters was dispelled by Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle, of Lincoln, Neb., president of the organization, in the address she had prepared for its sixty-eighth annual convention here today.

POPE ADVANCES FIVE PRELATES TO CARDINALS

Attack Upon 'Protestant Proselyting' in Rome at Secret Consistory Opening

VATICAN CITY, June 30.—(AP.)—"Protestant proselyting" in Rome must be combated by an increase in the number of parish priests "to serve the outlying sections," Pope XI declared today in his allocution opening the secret consistory at which five cardinals were created.

The Pope said certain recent Italian laws which appear to favor Protestant activity seem to be in strong contrast with the spirit and letter of the solemn Lateran conventions.

He asserted that the Protestant sects from 1860 when Italian troops took Rome from the Holy See, have not ceased to carry out the work of corrosion and conquest with ever-growing insistence.

TAKEN TO MEAN METHODISTS

Observers indicated their supposition he had in mind the missionary activities of the American Methodists, although he mentioned no denomination.

Referring to religious persecution in Russia and his now famous mass of expiations in St. Peter's Cathedral March 19 the Pope exhorted the cardinals to continue the crusade of prayer, also ordered special prayers for the end of these persecutions, to be said at the conclusion of every mass.

He expressed gratitude for the many pilgrimages during his jubilee year, and for the success of the Eucharistic Congress at Carthage which he hoped would aid the church in Africa.

FIVE PRELATES ADVANCED

The five cardinals created today were: Mgr. Sebastiano Leone da Silveira Cintra, 44, coadjutor archbishop of Rio de Janeiro, youngest of the new wearers of the purple; Mgr. Francesco Marchetti, Selvaggiani, 59, widely known in America, where he was auditor of the pontifical delegation at Washington and sole Roman of the five; Mgr. Raffaello Carlo Rossi, 54, a Carmelite; Mgr. Giulio Serafini, 63, secretary of the Congregation of the Council, and Mgr. Achille Leinart, bishop of Lille, and one of the youngest bishops in France.

Churches in Rome today celebrated the first day of a three-day observance marking canonization of eight North American martyrs in St. Peter's.

WIFE, BOY SHOT, HUSBAND HELD

ELKTON, Md., June 30.—(AP.)—Velore Duckworth, 45, is in jail here charged with shooting his wife and eight months old son who are in a critical condition at the Emergency Hospital. One shot was fired as the child was in its mother's arms, the bullet striking the baby in the hip and entering Mrs. Duckworth's abdomen.

Officers who went to arrest Duckworth said he locked himself in the house and threatened to shoot unless they went away. Before he was taken Duckworth fired, the bullet barely missing one of the arresting party.

Duckworth said the shooting was accidental.

Makes 22 Outside Loops for Record

Observed by officials of the National Aeronautical Association, Mounce went aloft in a small biplane yesterday and made 22 successful outside loops, surpassing the record of 18 set by Tex Rankin at Portland, Ore., last year.

KAISER OFFERS TO FACE TRIAL ON WAR GUILT

Former Emperor Quoted as Ready to 'Prove' He Did Not Start World Conflict

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP.)—Former Kaiser Wilhelm is willing and even eager to have an international court-martial determine whether he was responsible for the outbreak of the World War in 1914.

So declared Poultney Bigelow, American historian on his return from a visit with the self-exiled ex-emperor.

For three days and nights, said Bigelow, he and Williams sat in the former kaiser's great library at Doorn, Holland, studying documents from imperial files.

SEES RUSSIA TO BLAME

At the end of that time, Bigelow said, he concluded that Russia primarily, and England secondarily, were responsible for the conflict. Bigelow said:

"Such is the case if the kaiser's documents are authentic, and I believe they are, for in 60 years of friendship I have never known him to do a crooked thing."

Bigelow went to Doorn to mend a friendship between the two which was ruptured at the beginning of the World War—a friendship begun when Bigelow was 17 and Wilhelm 13. Their amity ceased when Bigelow blamed the German emperor, in 1914, for starting the war.

BOTH SHED TEARS

The venerable American, who is 75 and as tall and straight as a steel rod, is distinguishable by a beard cut square, brown but streaked with gray.

The son of John Bigelow, United States ambassador to France under Lincoln, Poultney Bigelow met Wilhelm when the latter was a student at Potsdam, and out of a friendship based on the young German Prince's interest in James Fenimore Cooper's books, Bigelow said:

"'My friend' was the former Kaiser's greeting to me on my arrival and there were tears in both our eyes."

Bigelow said that if the German people should call on him to do so, Wilhelm would be willing to resume the throne as a matter of duty, in spite of his age.

Senate, House Deadlocked On Hoover Commission Fund

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP.)—The Senate and House became deadlocked today over the amount of money to be allowed the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission for next year and the quarrel threatened early adjournment.

Chairman Wood, of the House Appropriation Committee, left the conference with Senate representatives on the second deficiency, saying the House would be asked to allow $250,000 for a continuation of the general inquiry by the commission as requested by President Hoover.

Senator Glass, Dem., of Virginia, who sponsored the Senate move to limit the fund to $50,000 for a prohibition study alone, left the conference with the observation that any increase by the house would be subject to a point of order in the Senate, he added.

"I have an idea that such a point will be made."

The conferees failed to finish adjusting the differences between the two branches on the bill and it will not come up in the House until tomorrow.

Three House bills included in the Law Enforcement Commission's program were reported favorably to the Senate judiciary committee today by sub committees and will be considered tomorrow.

The measures are those amending the Jones act to provide for lesser punishment for petty offenders and defining petty offenses.

Slashed When Razor Slips, Man, 74, Dies

NYE WILL HOLD FUND QUIZ HERE

United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the Senate Campaign Funds' Committee, is expected here in a few days to investigate the financial aspects of the primary election last month.

Senators Nye and C. C. Dill now are in Chicago investigating the campaign expenditures of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial nominee.

Pittsburgh men to be questioned are Walter A. Bonitz, brick manufacturer, who contributed $90,000 to the Davis-Brown campaign fund and County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Allegheny County chairman of the Davis-Brown campaign committee.

Bonitz has explained, unofficially, that he had received pledges of contributions from numerous persons but they defaulted and he made his own promise good by providing the entire amount himself.

The Senate committee is said to have accepted Bonitz's explanation but the members want him to appear at a public hearing to make a formal statement.

Bonitz is president of the Crescent Brick Company, that figured in a hearing a few weeks ago before the State Highway Department, ordered by Gov. John S. Fisher to investigate charges that Bonitz company was favored in specifications for paving brick used in road construction.

The case was dropped after state authorities agreed to change the questioned specifications during a hearing in the case.

HOUSE TO ACT ON VET BILL

WASHINGTON, June 30.—With excellent prospects of success, President Hoover will lock horns with Senate Democrats this week over the World War veterans pension bill.

The bill comes before the Senate today as the last major piece of legislation before adjournment of the regular session. Congress expects to quit and go home Wednesday or Thursday.

The bill sponsored by the administration carries a pension range of $12 to $40 which it is estimated will cost the government a maximum of $80,000,000 a year in three years.

As a substitute, the Democrats propose to offer a range of $20 to $60 which the administration contends will just about double the cost of the bill.

The situation indicates the administration will be able to hold its forces in line and defeat the Democratic substitute.

ficult flying test she was given an ovation.

The comely young daughter of McKeesport's school superintendent, J. B. Richey, demonstrated her conquest of the air by climbing to an altitude of about 1,000 feet and then maneuvering over and about the field for nearly half an hour. Her landings were pronounced perfect. Murphy accompanied her on two trips into the air and following completion of the third handed her the coveted license.

Throughtout the day, air fans at Bettis were entertained with an impromtu racing exhibition by Base Manager Hal Bazley and two of his pilots. A huge Curtiss Condor, the largest transport ship ever flown off a local field, carried sightseers over the city.

Atlantans Fly to N. Y. To Hail Bobby Jones

NEWARK AIRPORT, N. J., June 30.—(AP.)—The first contingent of citizens of Atlanta, coming to New York to welcome Bobby Jones on his return from his golf conquests of Great Britain, arrived by plane at 11:15 Pittsburgh time today.

In the plane were Mr. and Mrs. Asa G. Candler, Hunter Terry, Atlanta real estate man, and Ralph Smith, of the Atlanta Journal. The plane was piloted by Beeler Blevins, who took off from Atlanta early this morning.

BARE TRAIL OF LINGLE SLAYER

Chicago Investigators' Net Tightens as Underworld Yields Clues and Motive

International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 30.—From the sinister web of gangland intrigue bared by the murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, investigators today unraveled a skein which, they believe, will lead to the blond, left-handed gunman who sent a bullet crashing into Lingle's brain nearly three weeks ago.

The same trail they are confident, also will end with identification of the killer's short, swarthy partner, according to a story published today by the Chicago Evening American.

LEADS TO GAMBLING RESORT

The American story continues:

"Their quest led the investigators down through the sordid depths of a West Side gambling place, for which John J. "Boss" McLaughlin was the political connection.

"A fellow reporter of Lingle's, immediately after the latter's slaying, Told how McLaughlin had threatened Lingle over a telephone shortly after the place was closed by former Police Commissioner William F. Russell, on complaint of Lingle.

Meanwhile, warring gang factions put another of its members "on the spot" today. Shot nine times and with a nickel pressed into his fist, the body was identified as that of Frank Pettilo, 17, who had been arrested several times as Michael Gallichio, giving his age as 21.

SEIZE $200,000 LIQUOR

A band of 15 armed gangsters, believed to be Capone henchmen, held possession of the Wabash avenue government warehouse for three hours and today made good their escape with $200,000 worth of brandy, whisky and alcohol.

The liquor stored in the warehouse and seized by the armed band included 400 cases of liquor said to have been shipped to Chicago agents of Al Capone from Jacksonville, Fla.

LINDY TO HONOR BYRD'S AIDE

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd today promised to attend a ceremony at Teterboro Airport, Hackensack, N. J., on Wednesday, when Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will present the Bergen County Chamber of Commerce medal to Bernt Balchen. Balchen flew Byrd over the South Pole.

was taken on a sight-seeing tour of Loretta.

Speaking at a luncheon tendered by the Johnstown Chamber of Commerce, Curtis said of Andrew W. Mellon:

His speech consisted of a eulogy of the State of Pennsylvania and its citizens.

Schwab, who presided, in introducing Curtis said:

"I hope that some day by some turn of the wheel of fate Mr. Curtis will return to visit us as the President."

Curtis repaid this compliment by saying:

"In the eyes of the people Charlie Schwab is among the leaders of the nation's business men."

Mrs. Dolly Gann, wearing an orchid hat and a pale gray coat, was introduced to the 350 luncheon guests, but did not speak. Her husband, Edward Gann, said a few words.

Hot Wave Grips N. Y., Eight Persons Drown

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—As New York faced another hot day, eight drownings were recorded today in the city and vicinity. Two sisters and their 14-year-old boy cousin were drowned when a rowboat upset near East Vineland, N. J. Pearl Brown, 16; Gussie Brown, 19, and Walter Pettit were the victims.

Kane Baby Found as Fliers Lead 2,000 in Search

KANE, Pa., June 30.—Henrietta Reynolds, 3, missing since yesterday afternoon and for whom 2,000 had searched, aided by airplanes, was found today on a National Guard rifle range, north of the city.

Patrick Fragle, of Kane, one of the searchers, discovered her there unharmed. Aside from being hungry, she seemed none the worse for her night in the woods.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Reynolds, she vanished from the vicinity of a filling station formerly conducted by her grandfather beside the Roosevelt highway.

Many feared that the child had been kidnaped, perhaps by Gypsies, as there are several bands of these people wandering about this section of the country.

The Curtiss Leather Company plant at Ludlow, nine miles west of here, was closed this morning, so its 500 employes could join in the search.

SEA RAIDER'S WIFE FLEES FLAMES

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Countess Ingeborg von Luckner, wife of the famous German sea raider, two other women and 11 boys, sons of wealthy parents, were imperiled early today when fire broke out aboard Count Felix von Luckner's four-masted schooner, Mopelia, at its dock in the Hudson river.

Two Pittsburgh boys were among those to have sailed on the boat on a West Indies cruise tomorrow. They were Thomas H. Johnston, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norwood Johnston, 1081 Shady avenue, and James Lindsay, president of the Pittsburgh chapter of Kappa Sigma fraternity and a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Lindsay, of 609 North Euclid avenue.

Count von Luckner and the crew of 37 remained to fight the flames. An alarm turned in brought out a fireboat and 45 minutes after the fire broke out it was under control.

THINK FUGITIVE SHOT ESCAPING

Police throughout the city today were ordered to check hospitals and physicians' offices for a trace of Sam Chiodo, 27, alias "Shaveling Salesman Sam," former amateur pugilist, believed shot while escaping from a policeman yesterday.

Sought on a charge preferred by a girl, Chiodo was sighted yesterday by Patrolman Frank Whitworth in Main street, West End.

When the policeman attempted to arrest Chiodo, he ran. The officer fired several shots, one of which is believed to have struck Chiodo in the back.

Chiodo escaped.

2 HILL SLAYERS DIE IN CHAIR

BELLEFONTE, Pa., June 30.—(AP.)—Three murderers were electrocuted in Rockview Penitentiary today. They were Martin Avery and William Henry Sled, Negroes, of Pittsburgh, and Frank Tauza, of Wilkes-Barre.

Tauza formerly lived in Bridgeport, Conn., and it was testified at his trial for the slaying of a policeman that he once was a companion of Gerald Chapman, also executed for murder.

Sled and Avery were convicted of killing Edward J. Kretz, Jr., a druggist of the Hill district in Pittsburgh, June 21, 1929.

Avery and Sled were tried in January of this year and convicted. The motion for a new trial was refused and two weeks ago the Board of Pardons refused their appeal for commutation of the death sentence. Three men were implicated in the holdup of Kretz, but one proved he was not at the shooting.

Sliding Hill Stops 2 Oil Wells' Flow

LA HABRA, Cal., June 30.—(AP.)—A large hill, which geologists say has slipped westward seven feet and sunk eight feet in two weeks, has become a source of anxiety here. Two oil wells stopped producing yesterday, due oil men say, to the movement of the dome-shaped eminence, which covers 50 acres.

2 FIRMS DENY 'RADIO TRUST'

WILMINGTON, Del., June 30.—(AP.)—Two of the defendants named in the radio suit, recently filed in the United States District Court here by the government, today entered a joint answer denying the existence of a combination, as alleged.

The answer was filed by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Western Electric Company. They also denied that they had at any time been engaged in interstate commerce in radio communication or radio apparatus.

They admitted that the principal defendants own and control a large number of radio patents, but said that in many instances a number of the patents overlapped and that therefore it was necessary to use many of them in combination to complete a satisfactory article.

The seven other defendants have not filed answers.

PINCHOT'S FOE, BENN, RENAMED

HARRISBURG, June 30.—(AP.)—James S. Benn, Philadelphia today was reappointed by Gov. Fisher to serve a third term as a member of the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania. His present term expired today.

The commissioner, who is a member of the Philadelphia bar and formerly was city editor of the Philadelphia North American, which several years ago was merged with the Public Ledger, first was appointed to the commission on July 1, 1919, to fill an unexpired term. On July 1, 1920, the late Gov. Sproul reappointed Benn to serve a full 10-year term, expiring today.

During the administration of Gov. Pinchot, Benn was under much fire, which resulted in Pinchot dismissing him as commissioner. Subsequently, the State Supreme Court ruled that the governor did not have the power to dismiss a public service commissioner, the appointment having been approved by the Legislature. Benn was reinstated and has served until today.

As the appointment was made when the legislature was not in session it will be necessary for a two-thirds vote of the senate next winter to approve Fisher's reappointment of Benn. Opinion at the Capitol is that Pinchot if elected, will renew his fight against Benn.

AWAIT INQUEST IN BAT KILLING

William Hartlep, supervisor of North Side parks, today asked for leave of absence until the charge against him, in the death of Joseph Neiberding, 16, of 616 Sherman avenue, has been disposed of.

The lad died Friday after he had been struck on the head with a baseball bat, police charge, by Hartlep, who broke up a game in West Park. Coroner W. J. Mc-McGregor was expected to fix a date for the inquest today. He has placed a manslaughter charge against Hartlep, who is at liberty under $5,000 bail, pending the inquest.

The boy's funeral will be held Tuesday morning in Alliance, O.

Hartlep declares he swung a baseball bat in self defense when Neiberding and a number of other youths threatened him.

BOY, 16, HELD IN AUTO THEFT

A 16-year-old boy, Roy A. Altizer, of Moneral, Va., was held for court today by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court on a charge of larceny.

He is alleged to have held up Watchman Thomas Groves, of the Barnes Motor Company, 6601 Hamilton avenue, with a gun early Sunday morning.

Groves declares the boy bound him under an automobile and stole another car. The youth was arrested as he was driving through McKees Rocks.

Pent House Afire On Vacant Building

Fire believed to have started from crossed wires in a pent house on the roof of a two-story building at 118 South Sheridan avenue today caused damage estimated by Battalion Chief Fred S. Beckett at $1,500. The building was unoccupied.

U.S. TRADE HURT BY INDIA STRIFE

BOMBAY, June 30.—(AP.)—American trade with India has been hard hit by the business slump brought about by the Swaraj, or independence movement, and the subsequent boycott. The chief sufferers have been the automobile industry and shippers of various kinds of machinery.

The Nationalists' boycott is directed against British goods in particular, but all foreign firms are feeling its effects. Enormous losses have resulted.

Japan's trade in cotton goods also was hard hit, not only by Mahatama Gandhi's campaign to stimulate homespuns, but also by the five per cent Indian preferential tariff which importing agents say works in Great Britain's favor.

Business men believe that in a short time the automobile, as well as the cotton yarn and piece goods business, will be in the doldrums.

Penniless, Artist Ends Life With Shot

PHILADELPHIA, June 30—(INS.)—Poverty was blamed for the suicide here today of Harold W. Hesse, 24, penniless commercial artist. He was found stretched on his bed, with a .32-caliber bullet hole in his head.

Letters, police said, revealed that he had worried over finances.

July 30 in the Robin was equaled at a minute and a half after 4 a. m. yesterday, it was necessary to remain aloft an hour longer to be clocked officially by the National Aeronautical Association's contest committee.

The cheers of thousands burst the suburban Sunday stillness at Sky Harbor airport when the plane came through the dawn with a new record on its wings.

SALUTE TO CHAMPIONS

Two score Army planes—pursuits and bombers here for the Army show—went up in the afternoon in salute formation. More than 40,000 automobiles honked through the heat of the day on the field and nearby roads.

They all practiced aviation in the cow pastures back on the farm. They first rode motorcycles, then drove automobiles, then came the airplane obsession, and they augmented their farm cash by working in coal mines to scrape enough together to buy a second-hand plane.

The ship had been flown more than 75,000 miles previously to the beginning of the present flight 19 days ago. The refueling plane is of the same type.

FORTUNE AWAITS

An unestimated fortune awaited the landing of the Hunter boys. The record itself will be worth many thousands to them.

There will be emolument for endorsement of instruments used. There will be a percentage of the profits made by other planes at Sky Harbor which carried passengers to the fields attracted by the endurance performance. Altogether the profits promise to run more than $100,000.

ROBIN CREW TO TRY AGAIN

ST. LOUIS, June 30—(AP.)—The "St. Louis Robin" team, Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine, whose refueling endurance record was beaten by the Hunter brothers at Chicago, plan to take the air again "to bring the record back to St. Louis," starting July 13, the anniversary of their St. Louis Robin flight.

KING BAGGOT'S WIFE SUES

LOS ANGELES, June 30—(INS.)—Charging he deserted her in Los Angeles August 1, 1926, Mrs. Ruth Baggot, today sued King Baggot, veteran motion picture actor and director, for divorce.

The complaint asserted the couple was married December 3, 1912, in New Jersey and that there was one child, Robert King Baggot, 16.

There is no community property, according to the complaint, but there has been a property settlement. The plaintiff asserted her director-husband had failed to provide her with the common necessities of life. She asked custody of their son.

Deputy Goes Gunning For Ortiz Rubio Aide

MEXICO CITY, June 30—(AP.)—Gonzalo Santos, state deputy and former head of the House of Deputies, caused a sensation here today by appearing at the entrance to the Lirico Theater with four followers. There he fired a pistol into the air and said he wished to find and kill Hernandes Chazaro, private secretary to President Ortiz Rubio.

Santos entered the theater, but did not encounter Chazaro. He departed in a few minutes. Police reserves were called but did not arrest Santos, as he enjoys official immunity.

Pittsburgh Actress Weds in New York

It was a quiet ceremony that was to make Mrs. Helena Flinn Gregg, 560 East End avenue, and Edward Edge, vocational director of the Wilkinsburg schools, man and wife in New York today.

Mrs. Gregg, it was learned, has been acting in a Springfield (Mass.) stock company for the last two years, playing leading parts, according to her mother, Mrs. Katherine D. Flinn.

WOMAN MAKES SUICIDE LEAP

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—(INS.)—Miss Mabel Snowden, 55, of Germantown, private secretary to Joseph Wayne, Jr., president of the Philadelphia National Bank, leaped from the roof of the 23-story building to her death today.

Scores of horrified spectators watched as she stood on the coping for five minutes, waving her arms wildly before making the fatal jump.

Wayne said she had been in a very nervous condition lately and attributed her act to this condition. He said he had urged her to take a vacation for some time, fearing she might suffer a nervous collapse.

Dr. Wiley, Pure Food, Drug Law Father, Dies at 85

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP.)—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, famous pure food advocate, died today at 2 a. m.

He had been suffering critically from heart trouble for the last two months. He was 85.

Dr. Wiley died shortly after 2 a. m.

Chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture for almost 30 years, he led the fight which resulted in enactment of the pure food and drug laws.

Dr. Wiley appeared before the Senate Agriculture Committee June 3 to testify in its investigation of the pure drug administration. He became ill after his return home.

Unable to leave his sick bed, he wrote Senator McNary, the chairman, that he had testified "under a misapprehension." He added:

"I am a very ill man and I cannot prepare what I wanted to say, even if it were in order for me to do so."

Dr. Wiley is survived by his widow and two sons, John Preston and Harvey W., Jr.

He will be buried Wednesday afternoon in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Lacoste, Tennis Ace, Weds French Golf Star

By ROBERT W. THOMPSON,
International News Service.

PARIS, June 30.—Mlle. Simone Thione de la Chaume, France's premier woman golfer, and Rene Lacoste, international tennis star, were married in the Church of St. Clothilde here today.

The bride came almost directly from the links to the altar. Since the match with the American team, headed by Glenna Collett, May 27, she had been playing nearly every day. She told International News Service before the ceremony:

"Marriage does not mean that I intend to give up golf."

The tennis tournament at Wimbledon kept Helen Wills Moody from the wedding. Among the guests were Suzanne Lenglen, Henri Cochet and Georges Carpentier.

Friends believe the wedding means the end of Lacoste's career in tennis contests. Rene himself is enigmatic, merely stating he has not abandoned the game. He has not been seen on the courts, however, since last year and the honeymoon, which begins tonight, is a romantic obstacle against his appearance in Davis cup play next month.

In 1927, Mlle. Thion de la Chaume captured the French and British golf titles for women.

SENATE REPORT EXCORIATES SEA PACT

Minority Urges Rejection As Neither Fair Nor Just; Takes Hoover to Task

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 30—Embodying a sharp reprimand of the administration for its handling of the London naval treaty, a report on the pact was submitted to the Senate today by a vigorous minority of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Signed by Senators Johnson (Rep., of California), Moses (Rep., of New Hampshire) and Robinson (Rep., of Indiana), the document denounced the treaty as neither fair nor just and urged its rejection by the Senate or at least postponement of consideration until fall.

Submission of the adverse report carried to its peak the drive against ratification by Johnson and other opponents of the naval arms agreement.

CONDEMNS EACH SECTION

The report took up each part of the treaty separately, condemning its every provision as unfair and failing to afford this country parity with Great Britain. It declared:

"The minority demand that no treaty in respect to the United States Navy shall be ratified by the Senate which is disadvantageous to our country, which precludes an adequate national defense which affects injuriously the naval protection of our enormous and fast-expanding sea commerce, or which destructively deals with our relative position in respect to other nations.

"All these things the treaty does, and because it is neither fair nor just to the United States, we oppose it."

CENSURES ADMINISTRATION

Criticism for the administration's handling of the treaty was contained in language recalling that in 1922 after the Washington conference the President did not think it beneath his dignity to report in person the treaty negotiations to the Senate and to the people. Reference to the 1922 conference was further made to show that at that time the American delegates rendered a detailed accounting of their stewardship and explained the treaty in all its phases along with the discussion surrounding its negotiation.

"It is a noticeable and remarkable fact that a treaty for which so much is claimed, opposition to which arouses such a pretense of indignation, is presented to the Senate without explanation or report."

DENIES PARITY ALLOWED

Denying the treaty gave parity between America and Great Britain in any category, the minority expression criticized the administration sharply for its attitude in refusing the Senate Foreign Relations Committee access to all State Department papers and correspondence exchanged on the document.

It commented further, that it had good authority to believe Premier MacDonald, of England, in the now famous conference with President Hoover at Rapidan, Va., last fall, promised America Great Britain would allow a treaty providing for construction of a new battleship by this country—something which the treaty as now drawn does not do. The report went on.

"We (the committee) are denied full information which would enable us authoritatively from the documents to speak. But from the information which has come to us—information we believe to be accurate and reliable—we think we are justified in stating that, at the Rapidan, Premier MacDonald committed himself to our building a new battleship."

RADIOS TO BEAR DISASTER NEWS

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—A nation-wide radio system to provide communication in time of disasters through 2,300 members of the Naval Reserve has been established.

These 2,300 naval reservists, the Navy said, have been instructed as to the manner in which they should handle disaster reports from amateur radio stations they operate. The plan was adopted after a conference between the Red Cross and the Navy, and calls for messages from the reservists to the Red Cross. The first message is to report the kind and location of the disaster, and the second the number of dead, injured, homeless, houses destroyed and families affected.

With this information available immediately, it is believed Red Cross relief expeditions can be more speedily organized and better equipped.

Motor Traffic Sets High Mark; No Accidents

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 30.—Though automobile traffic Saturday and Sunday set a record for volume in Venango County and on highways passing thrugh it, not a serious accident resulted. Highway patrolmen declared drivers displayed exceptional care.

Conneaut Lake, Stoneboro and Slippery Rock bathing beaches enjoyed record patronage, adding to the volume of the traffic.

TREASURY SEES 200 MILLION SURPLUS

Fiscal Year Ending Today Shows Cash on Hand at Figure Estimated Earlier

International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 30—Uncle Sam will close the year today with a treasury surplus of about $200,000,000, according to figures available.

For the last date tabulated, June 26, there was a surplus of $212,520,000. This may be swelled or materially slightly before the end of the month. Last year's surplus on the same day was $235,779,000, whereas the year ended with a $185,000,000 excess of receipts. The large drop was due, however, to payments to the railroads for additional mail handling services, allowable all the treasury. Congress, which declared war, was upheld by the Supreme Court.

The individual income and tax collection for the 1930 fiscal year was approximately $4,400,000,000, making an increase of about $75,000,000 over 1929, $1,700,000 June of $527,000,000, about $30,000,000 less than the same month a year ago. These receipts were substantially as estimated by the Treasury.

MEETS ESTIMATE

The surplus will be considerably larger than was expected a few months ago, but practically the same as that estimated before the one per cent increase and corporation tax reduction was authorized. The gain was due partly to the fact that the foreign governments remitted their entire June payment on the war debts in cash. Of the remittance, $74,000,000 was placed in miscellaneous receipts, increasing the surplus instead of having been applied to debt reduction, which would have been the case if the payment had been made in the customary government securities.

The result, however, was the same, since most of the surplus will go to debt reduction. There will be cancellation of cash to the new year.

FARM BOARD COSTLY

Through June 26 the government had spent $3,938,536,000 during the fiscal year, an increase of $163,000,000. Of the increase, $134,912,000 was due to payments on the account of the Federal Farm Board. There were increases in all other government expenditures excepting interest and refund of internal revenue taxes. Interest for the year will be approximately $651,161,000, a drop of $23,000,000, and refunds, $133,036,000, a decline of $53,000,000.

As a result of abnormal customs collections due to the new tariff law, these receipts have been much heavier than were anticipated for the month, having shown a gain of $23,000,000, bringing the total for the year through June 26 to $583,275,000. It appeared that the loss from last year would be no more than $10,000,000.

Farmer Chases 'Chute Jumper With Gun

KANE, Pa., June 30—As a [illegible] equipped with [illegible] Service [illegible] got a [illegible] after he had landed in a 2,000-foot [illegible] an airplane, a mile [illegible] Bradford.

The irate farmer, armed with a shotgun, pursued the aviator and, although fleeing for a considerable distance, threatening to shoot him. Day escaped.

This was the second time the parachute jumper had landed on Gustav Schofield and the farmer claims that much of the growing crop has been ruined.

SWISSVALE FIRE ROUTS FAMILIES

Two families were imperiled in a fire in Swissvale following an explosion of gasoline in the garage of the Swissvale Motor Transportation Company, 7306 Buttonwood street.

When fire [illegible] half an hour later, [illegible] Swissvale Cut Rate Drug Store at Roslyn and Noble streets. The fighting apparatus [illegible] Edgewood and North Braddock was called as the Swissvale department was battling the garage fire.

Mrs. Mary Schaton and her daughter, Minnie 17, of 7306 Buttonwood avenue, were routed by flames that destroyed the roof of their home. The residence on the other side of the garage at 7310 Buttonwood avenue was badly battered. No person was in the house at the time. The garage is owned by Frank DiDomenico.

Both fires were of undetermined origin. Damage to the garage and the adjacent houses was estimated at $12,000. The drug store loss was put at $2,000. Eight trucks and two passenger cars in the garage were damaged.

Will Offer Bail Again For Loan Treasurer

TYRONE, Pa., June 30—(INS)—Bail of $15,000 was to be offered again today for Charles C. Ginter, former secretary-treasurer of the Commonwealth Loan and Investment Company, who is being held in Altoona on charges of embezzlement, according to word received here. Ginter, who left Tyrone last Wednesday, was arrested in Altoona Saturday night. He appeared yesterday before Justice of the Peace W. B. Robinson and offered $15,000 bail, but the justice refused to accept the bail on Sunday.

D. R. C. Brown, Rich Mining Pioneer, Dies

ASPEN, Col., June 30—(AP)—The founder of this Ghost Camp of the Roaring Fork, David R. C. Brown, millionaire pioneer Colorado mining man, died last night. Mrs. Loomis Taylor, New York City, and Mrs. Francis Toulmin, London, England, daughters, survive.

FRENCH TROOPS QUIT GERMANY

MAYENCE, Germany, June 30—(AP)—The French Army, marching out of the Rhineland today, started back to Germany full control of occupied territory.

There were half a million Yanks along the Rhine after the Armistice. French, Belgian, British, Italian and American flags, as their balloons withdrew, and the cities were evacuated, the army of occupation dwindled to about 25,000 in the last few months. By tonight all will be gone.

Word of honor replaced force today as guaranty of Germany's reparations. The Young plan, with its Bank for International Settlements and the recent issues of German reparations bonds in nine countries, now has the half-billion-dollar task of settling Germany's war indemnities to the Allies.

Captures Deer; Its Bronze; He's Jailed

LOS ANGELES, June 30—(AP)—Assuming the role of game warden, H. E. Cooper has brought to an end the season on bronze deer and grazing his lawn.

Police found Cooper with his shotgun leveled at his bronze deer, behind which cowered Minor Rhodes, 20. Cooper said:

"The bronze figures had been disappearing one by one, so I rigged up a light to flash the alarm when the deer was moved. It worked fine."

14 GOVERNORS AT PARLEY

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 30—(AP)—Preparatory to the opening here of the national governors' conference, chief executives of 14 states arrived here. They included governors from as far East as New York and Maine and from Georgia and Virginia in the South.

After a reception in the chambers of Gov. George H. Dern at the state capitol today, the first business session of the conference will convene, with its principal feature an address by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York on Unemployment and Old Age Pensions.

Arrangements for a national broadcast tonight of the governors' banquet over the Columbia network include an address to the governors by President Hoover from Washington, and greetings from the various executives present to the people of their states.

Governors Roosevelt, Theodore Christianson of Minnesota, and C. C. Young of California are to address the banquet.

Langdon Love Balm Suit Near Windup

LOS ANGELES, June 30—Conclusion of the legal fight of Harry Langdon, film comedian, to avoid payment of $11,500 in notes allegedly given to forestall an alienation of affections suit, was near today.

Thomas J. O'Brien, first husband of the present Mrs. Langdon, was ready to present the last evidence in support of his contention the actor stole the former Mrs. O'Brien's love prior to signing the notes and giving him $15,000 in cash.

Here's How To Get It!!

Just Follow These Simple Rules

1—Subscriptions can be taken in Pittsburgh and Suburban Towns within a 40-mile radius of Pittsburgh where the Daily Sun-Telegraph is delivered by carriers to the homes.

2—You are to solicit subscriptions upon the following basis:

A—Subscriptions for Home delivery of the Daily Sun-Telegraph for 26 weeks from persons who are not already subscribers to the Daily Sun-Telegraph (be sure of this).

B—The subscriber must agree to have the Daily Sun-Telegraph delivered to his home six days a week and pay the Carrier Boy at the advertised subscription rate of 18 cents a week (after delivery). Have the subscriber merely write his or her name on the subscription blank as printed below. YOU ARE TO COLLECT NO MONEY.

C—Subscriptions may be brought to the Sun-Telegraph office by you in person or sent by mail. Subscriptions are to be brought or mailed to the Circulation Department, The Sun-Telegraph, Gazette Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

E—You can start right today securing subscriptions—no waiting, no delay. Cut out and use the subscription blanks below.

3—When you get a subscription have the person write his or her name on the line in the subscription blank that says "subscriber." The subscriber should write his or her name in their own handwriting. On the next line below, where it says "Address," have them write in their address and whether the paper is to be delivered to the front door or rear door, or just where they want it delivered; also indicate whether they live in a flat or apartment building, and, if so, on which floor. Have them fill in their telephone number on the line in the subscription blank left for that purpose, and on the bottom line, where it says "Order Taken By," write your name and address.

4—Keep a record of all the subscriptions you secure, so that after you have turned in all your subscriptions you will have a list showing the name and address of the subscriptions you have taken. Bring this list with you when you are notified by mail that your subscriptions have been verified.

VICTIM DIES AFTER HOLDUP

Palumbo was found Friday lying on the bank of the Ohio River at Coraopolis. A watch and $10 known to have been in his possession was missing.

Later, Chief of Police Samuel Little, of Coraopolis, arrested Benjamin Thacker, 39, a Negro, occupant of a shanty near which Palumbo was found near death.

Blood stains are alleged to have been discovered on Thacker's clothing. He was to be turned over to the coroner today.

200 Exquisite Hats

They are all from sources which turn out only hats regularly selling at much higher prices. Sources which take cognizance of such fashion features as shallow crowns, bandeaux and lifted brims, fabric facings and trimmings, tuckings, and subtlety in coloring . . . Typical Horne hats of the finer kind, each with some mark of superiority.

Hats of fine baku, ballibuntl and panamalac. Plenty of them in white, in natural-color which goes with everything, in darker shades for town wear and train travel, and some to match delicate frocks . . . Hats for all types, from the debutante who can wear anything with an air, to women whose years and dignity must be considered.

White and Pastels...

In Women's and Misses' New Crepe Ensembles

$15

While pastels and white are competing for first place in summer fashions, this fresh, new group of ensembles decides to remain neutral and provides an equal number of each.

The models for women are of rayon jacquard crepe, in snow-white and pastel pink . . . Sunshine Corner ensembles, which can easily be tubbed.

The misses' ensembles are of a rich, firm grade of flat crepe, in white, eggshell, pastel blue, pink, aquamarine, maize, and mint green. In some models the sleeveless frocks are embroidered in dainty flower designs (one pictured). And in others, the jackets are all-over embroidered in Beauvais effect, with small designs in delicate colors.

2 WASHINGTON PARTIES ASK DRY CHANGE

Democrats Join G. O. P., Put State in Forefront Of Anti-Drys in West

SEATTLE, June 30 (Universal).—Washington, one of the original leaders in the prohibition crusade, today stands as the first Western state in which conventions of both political parties have demanded repeal or modification of the dry laws.

The Democrats Saturday in Centralia completed repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the Volstead act and the Jones five-and-ten law and followed with a plank to investigate the sources and use of funds contributed for the Anti-Saloon League and all other organizations concerned in legislation dealing with prohibition.

PASSED UNANIMOUSLY

Even the most ardent friends of prohibition supported the Anti-Saloon League plank. It passed unanimously. The repeal plank carried 250 to 116 after long and earnest debate.

Five weeks ago the Republican state convention at Bellingham demanded revision of the statutes to permit lawful use of intoxicating liquors, and vigorously condemned the failure of the present laws.

BOTH OPPOSE COURT

Both conventions condemned the League of Nations court. The Democrats also urged rejection of the London naval pact.

The plank proposed by the dry forces at the Democrat convention had no word of justification for prohibition. It merely urged that prohibition be avoided as a Democratic issue and urged that the Republicans be left to straighten out the enforcement law which they failed so dismally.

Hot Water Boiler Explodes, Kills Man

SOMERSET, Pa., June 30 (AP).—Harrison Clay, aged 45, Somerset Township farmer, was fatally hurt when a hot water boiler exploded in the basement of his home. The man, who was blown 14 feet, suffered head injuries.

OBITUARY

Rodda Funeral

Funeral services for the Rev. John Rodda, 59, of Kittanning, who died Thursday, were held yesterday in the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. J. C. Lawrence, 17 Mayflower street, East End. Burial was in the Plum Creek Cemetery, New Texas, Pa. The Rev. Mr. Rodda was born in Michigan and had lived in Kittanning for the last two years. He had held a pastorate in Kittanning several years ago and returned to make his home there when he retired in 1928. He was a member of Duquesne Lodge F. and A. M. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Essie Lawrence Rodda; two sons, Lawrence and Francis, and a daughter, Miss Edna Rodda.

Henry A. Dell

Henry A. Dell, 57, owner of the North Side Concrete and Excavating Company, died in his home at 1316 Adams street, Saturday. He was a life long resident of Pittsburgh and for many years was associated with the Enterprise Foundry Company. About 30 years ago he entered the contracting business for himself. He was a member of William Thaw Council No. 396, J. O. U. A. M.; Union Chapter, I. O. O. F., and Jefferson Lodge No. 288, F. and A. M.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mary Cassilly Dell; two sons, William and Robert Dell; a daughter, Miss Ruth Dell; two brothers and two sisters.

Wurzell Funeral

Henry Wurzell, who died in the Mercy Hospital, Saturday, will be buried from the home of his daughter, Mrs. R. F. Farnerie, 207 South Evaline street, tomorrow morning. The funeral mass will be held at 9 o'clock in St. Lawrence's Catholic Church. Mr. Wurzell was known in the drug business in which he was active till three years ago. He leaves a wife, Mrs. Anna Tolerg Wurzell, a son, Harry C. Wurzell; his daughter, Mrs. Farnerie; a brother, Jacob Wurzell, of Washington; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Lauth and Mrs. William Grusch; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Edward Stewart

Edward Stewart, 48, of 634 Griffith street, for 23 years a member of the Pittsburgh police force, died yesterday in the Homeopathic Hospital. He was born in Kentucky and had been a resident here for 27 years. For 17 years he was a patrolman on the North Side. For the last five years he had been attached to the Carrick station and traffic court. He was a member of the Mt. Washington Methodist Episcopal Church, Pittsburgh Commanders, Knights of Malta and Fraternal Order of Eagles. He leaves his wife, Elsie Stewart, and a son, Milton E.; a brother, Charles, is a city patrolman.

Kurtz Funeral

Funeral services were held yesterday for Miss Jennie Graham Kurtz, 84, who died Friday in her home at 8 Citron way. The services were held in the Mangan funeral home and burial was to be this morning in Highwood Cemetery. Miss Kurtz was a life-long resident of the North Side and at the time of her death was the oldest member of the First Methodist Protestant Church of the North Side. She leaves a brother, John Kurtz, of Pittsburgh, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Baer, of Patterson Heights.

The Wayne Murder Case

As he reached the desk for some papers, he suddenly collapsed and fell face down across it.

CHAPTER I

[illegible] with a [illegible] stood [illegible] was [illegible] heavy [illegible] proved [illegible] Sergt. Jardin from Central Office [illegible] got through [illegible] their legacies. [illegible] to the desk [illegible] he suddenly [illegible] and fell face down across [illegible] seconds [illegible] the doctor [illegible] the evil [illegible]'s shriek for there stuck in Wayne's heart was a dagger."

Jardin paused. Dale dropped the cigaret into a little tray and stumped it out nervously.

"You were there when it happened? You mean he was killed right under the eyes of eight watching people?"

"Just that! There's something unnatural about it. Nobody nearer than 10 feet, no dagger thrown or we'd have seen it; couldn't possibly have killed himself, even if he had a reason to, which he didn't, and yet there it was right through his heart and not a chance for trick contraptions about the desk because I investigated."

"Well, I might just as well get busy and figure it out if I want to get the big story in the morning paper."

"I suppose you'll tell us who did it. Between givin' advice an' grubbin' cigarets you'll be makin' yourself a pest."

Suddenly, high-pitched, angry words came to them from the living room. "Why don't you yet her alone? You see she doesn't know anything about it. If Silas Wayne was murdered it wasn't any more than he deserved!"

"That's the doctor. I got a hunch he knows more about this whole affair than we think."

"Let's go in and see what's developed. That's better than playing hunches. If you're really interested in crime, Sarge, I ought to tell you that it's a very exact science."

Before Jardin could reply Dale had opened the door to the living room where the investigation was under way.

Robin Dale straightened up, took one look at Pop Beach, and grabbed his coat.

"What's up, Pop, murder?"

"Nothing less, boy. Get up to the Waynes place, just off the Drive, at about One Hundred and Eighteenth. The old man's been bumped off and there's a lot of mystery about it."

Really at the D. A.'s office but called me. There's a big story in this, Dale, and I want the credit for the first exclusive."

Sergt. Jardin from Central Office.

"Is Sarge. Cheerful sort of a place, isn't it?"

"Who killed the old man, Sarge?"

"Before you explain, let's have a cigaret."

"Now, let's have it."

"Well, that's Wayne, sitting at the head of the table. He was [illegible] Robert Wayne, attorney, [illegible] Sarah Beach, a nurse, and Lee Bernard. Gloria, the old maid, was Miss Sherwin, housekeeper; a Dr. Bailey who had been attending Miss Gloria, and myself. Nine in all. Each Wayne insists upon seeing that all windows and doors are closed and then he goes to his desk. The minute he started to talk I felt creepy all over, not only at what he said, but the way he said it. He told them he got them all together to let them know what he was going to do with his money, so they wouldn't have to fight over it. I can still hear that laugh when he said there wouldn't be anything to fight over when he [illegible] side and took hold of his pulse. A queer look came over the doctor's face as he lifted the old man's head. Gradually [illegible] One of the women gave a piercing

Silas Wayne's Death Amazes The Witnesses

Can You Outguess ROBIN DALE In MASTER MYSTERIES

Eighteen eyes saw Silas Wayne murdered. Two of them belonged to the murderer, yet none of the other eight pairs of eyes was able to detect how the murder was accomplished for Silas Wayne collapsed while the nearest person was 10 feet away.

THE WAYNE MURDER CASE is the first of the series of MASTER MYSTERIES, prepared by Arthur Hoerl, criminologist, for the Sun-Telegraph. It and the other stories in the series are divided into six daily installments which give all the clues to the identity of the criminal. The solution will be published a week after the sixth installment appears.

By this arrangement every reader will be able to play the absorbing game of "Who's guilty?" with Robin Dale as his opponent. All the stories play fair with the reader, providing all the clues necessary for a correct solution. You have a week to match your wits with the author.

MASTER MYSTERIES is the most unusual series of detective stories ever written, being based on actual crimes encountered by Hoerl in his career as newspaperman and detective. Yet all are short all are puzzling and none is dumbfounding.

THRONGS HONOR MANCHESTER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 30.—Funeral services at 4 p. m. today for Leroy A. Manchester, 47, general counsel of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, who shot and killed himself last Friday, will attract representatives of the steel industry from all parts of the country.

All day Sunday, friends flocked to Manchester's home at 36 Newport drive, attesting to the esteem in which he was held for his business prominence and activity in community affairs. Associates in the Sheet and Tube organization will be honorary pallbearers.

The hearing of the suits to prevent the Sheet and Tube—Bethlehem merger, which started last Wednesday in Common Pleas Court, has been halted until July 8. Mrs. Manchester has been under a physician's care since her husband's death, but is reported improved.

BEEBER RITES TOMORROW

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—(AP.)—Funeral services for Dimner Beeber, former judge of the state Superior Court, who died suddenly Saturday, will be held at the Beeber home tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Mr. Beeber died shortly after returning from a golf links, where he had played 18 holes. He appeared to be in his usual health when he greeted his wife, but a few minutes later he was dead. He was 76.

Mr. Beeber was appointed to the Superior Court bench by Gov. Hastings in 1899 to fill a vacancy and served through that year until the office was filled by election. He was a member of the American Bar Association and the State Bar Association, and was president of the Union League from 1906 to 1908. He is survived by his widow.

Mining Inspector Quits State Service

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., June 30.—After 21 years as mine inspector in the twenty-third bituminous district of Pennsylvania, W. H. Howarth, of Brownsville, retires today. A banquet in his honor was given Saturday night, at which more than 100 attended.

TOOK KONJOLA YEAR AGO; ITS RESULTS ENDURE

That Modern Medicine Gives More Than Mere Temporary Relief Is Proven In This Case.

Quit experimenting . . . quit groping as if in the dark for the right medicine. Put your faith in Konjola, the new and different medicine, for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

MRS. V. B. HICKMAN

And Konjola does far more than bring mere temporary relief, as is illustrated in the case of Mrs. V. B. Hickman, 705 Arch Street, Pittsburgh. A year ago Mrs. Hickman told how this master medicine ended a severe case of nervousness, kidney and stomach trouble that had made her life miserable for ten years. Day after day Konjola has continued to win amazing victories in Pittsburgh, of which the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, will gladly tell you. Just recently, after a whole year had elapsed, Mrs. Hickman eagerly tells of the wonderful health she still enjoys, and gives all credit to Konjola. She made the following statement:

"When I endorsed Konjola about a year ago, I told how only two bottles of this splendid medicine gave me amazing relief from indigestion, nervousness and kidney trouble. Well, I continued taking Konjola until I had used eight bottles. By that time I had regained my health, strength and vitality, and I am happy to say that these feelings of good health have remained with me ever since. I am still amazed at the way Konjola worked in my case, and I can't find words to express my gratitude for Konjola, the master medicine, if there ever was one."

Konjola contains no alcohol; no nerve-deadening drugs; no heart-depressing chemicals. It is designed to give thorough and lasting relief. Like any worthwhile treatment, Konjola should be taken from six to eight weeks, giving it a chance to produce the best results. And the results will amaze you, as they have countless thousands of men and women.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

NEWS AND COMMENT ABOUT HAPPENINGS IN AMUSEMENT CAPITALS

'Birth of the Nation' Gets Sound But No Talk For Re-Issue

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 30.

Almost everybody in Hollywood except D. W. Griffith has expressed himself on the forthcoming reissue of "The Birth of a Nation" with sound.

Today D. W. gave the public his own ideas on the matter in the lobby of the Ambassador Hotel, where he makes his home. The veteran director graciously defended his position.

D. W. Griffith

"The acting in 'The Birth of a Nation' is still good," he contended. "If you could find a leading man today as handsome as Henry B. Walthall was in his youth, you could make a fortune out of him. Miss Gish was lovely, too.

"We have not tried to insert any dialogue in the picture. Some people favored this, but I would not hear of it. The new version simply has a synchronized musical score with the battle and other sound effects. We have made a prologue and an epilogue which speak, but it still is undecided whether they will be used."

SPEED IT UP

The synchronized version of "The Birth of a Nation" will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000, Griffith says. This is due chiefly to the symphony orchestra which had to be rehearsed and retained throughout the whole procedure.

Due to the fact that the old film was shot to be run at a speed of 75 to 80 feet a minute, it had to be stretched by a special process to allow for the modern rate of 90 feet per minute.

D. W. would like to remake "Broken Blossoms" with dialogue. He has had financial backing offered for such a project, but is unwilling to go on with a different cast. And Dick Barthelmess recently refused to consider making a talkie version of the film.

DON'T SHOOT

Barthelmess

She says that her only objection to the picture, "With Byrd at the South Pole," is that there is no heavy in it, outside of the underwear.

On the other hand, maybe it is just as well that Lillian became an actress.

BRITAIN REPULSED

The Film Weekly, one of the leading screen magazines in England, has just conducted a contest to determine the most beautiful voice in the talkies.

Questionnaires read:

"By the silent smiles of its charming women, America conquered the screen. Will Britain regain film supremacy through the resonant beauty of the English voice?"

Out of 21,000 votes cast, our own Ruth Chatterton received 9,810. Norma Shearer was second, with Gloria Swanson, Betty Compson and Janet Gaynor following in order.

But with the men it was a different story. Ronald Colman, Clive Brook and George Arliss, all Englishmen, won the first three places. John Boles and William Powell came fourth and fifth.

VACATION DAYS

Kay Francis goes to New Orleans as soon as she finishes a picture. Mary Brian already has been to Texas. Likewise Clara Bow, although her visit hardly falls under the head of a vacation. Nancy Carroll will seek mountain scenery at Big Bear Lake, while Dick Barthelmess and his wife, Jessica, are debating between a visit to a dude ranch and a trip to Norway and Sweden. Gary Cooper, of course, will go to his dude ranch in Montana. This department will carry on business at the same old stand.

Wise Fellow!

Lowell Sherman is the wise fellow who does the knowing in "He Knew Women," of modern manners, which opens today in the Sheridan Square.

'JOURNEY'S END,' WAR DRAMA, IS FILM IN HARRIS

The impressive screen version of the famous stage drama of war, "Journey's End," is now having a week's run in the Harris.

The picture won elaborate praise at the time of its premiere Pittsburgh showing in the Sheridan Square.

The movie adds something to the stage version in a scenic way, getting in some battle scenes and that sort of thing. Yet, as in the original play, most of its poignant drama is enacted in a dugout setting.

War Picture Opens Today in Kenyon

The war film, "Journey's End," opens a week engagement in the New Kenyon, North Side, today. The cast is headed by Colin Clive, Ian MacLaren and David Manners.

FORMER WARDEN GIVES 'THE BIG HOUSE' HIS APPROVAL

Dr. George W. Kirchwey, noted penologist, former warden of Sing Sing prison and former dean of Columbia Law School, has issued the following statement:

"'The Big House,' is a big show, especially to those of us—and our name is legion—who are deeply concerned about the American prison of today. For 'The Big House' is the American prison of today, with its congested population, its corroding idleness, its seething unrest, its distracted warden with his generous aims and his savage reprisals. It is no answer to this indictment of a prison system to assert that the doings in 'The Big House' went beyond anything that has actually happened in any prison and that there are many prisons where nothing of the kind could happen.

"It is a sufficient reply to this objection to recall the fact that very much the same kind of thing has in fact actually occurred in half a dozen of our big prisons during the past year. 'The Big House' ought to do at least as much as another Ohio prison fire or another Auburn riot to arouse public opinion to the need of a new deal in the treatment of the crime problem.

"The production of 'The Big House' had intelligent, expert direction. The leading characters, Morgan, Butch, Kent, the Warden and the rest, are actual prison types and were admirably cast. As a former prison warden, I felt quite at home in 'The Big House'."

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Things I Never Knew Till Now

That the shortest street in town is Edgar street.

That all seats in the subway are approved by the American Posture League (whoever they are!).

That the publishers of "Love Me" escaped a plagiarism suit by ingeniously labeling the song "a paraphrase."

That morphine may be obtained from lettuce, and that notwithstanding they still grow lettuce on some prison farms.

That everyone knows that Peter Stuyvesant had a wooden leg, but not even his historians can say which limb was missing.

That the celebrated convict Black Jack learned how to pick locks from books on the subject in the prison library.

That Hungary, having no seaports, is ruled by an admiral.

That Pershing pronounces the pat in patriotism as you would pronounce an Irishman's first name.

That the biggest selling beverage on the Bowery isn't likker, as is generally supposed, but buttermilk.

That the old man in "Lysistrata" signed contracts containing a clause permitting instant dismissal if they have a hair cut—the prospering management being opposed to purchasing expensive wigs.

That some Bible scholars consider the Book of Jonah the world's most famous and oldest humorous story, and was intended to be comical when first told and jotted down.

That you can stump the biggest of medicos by asking him to tell you all about a common cold germ.

That those sun-bathers au naturel are all wrong and that a few inches of sunburn suffice for a healthy body.

That the Austrian Hapsburgs, of which the late Emperor Franz Josef was an illustrious member, are descendants of a Spanish Jewish rabbi, Don Abraham Senor.

That in South America there are hens that lay blue eggs.

That you can stump the biggest of medicos again by asking him to tell you just why bicarbonate of soda relieves stomach disorders (indigestion to you, you dope!).

That lower Broadway was made to bend at Tenth street not because of a tree or because the pavers followed a cowpath, but in order to avoid demolishing the Brevoort homestead.

That in Cleveland recently a theater was forced (via the injunction route) to show the "Ingagi" film.

That rye was recently on the Chicago Board of Trade at 48 cents per bushel, while sawdust was quoted at 78 cents.

That the Englishman's trousers are the shortest of all, because the pavements in Britain are usually wet.

That statues made 7,000 years ago and recently found in Egypt represent women in low-necked gowns, very similar to modern styles.

That a wag argues that it pays to be straight, and he points out the popularity of the letter "I."

That when your soup is too salty add slices of raw potatoes and boil for a few minutes to remove the salty flavor.

That Carnera, the giant prize fighter, cannot fit into a lower berth on a Pullman and must have a drawing room all to himself, sleeping on both beds in the "L" manner.

That the term "chestnuts" for stale jokes originated from an old English play in which one of the characters repeatedly told an unfunny story of a man who fell from a chestnut tree.

That with the arrival of Kingsford-Smith's plane, the Southern Cross, 431 people have crossed the Atlantic via air.

That at one time the average American was believed to exist only in the Middle West: Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, etc.

That an orange eaten first thing in the morning will cure dyspepsia more quickly than any other remedy.

That publication of so many Broadway hit shows is responsible for the enormous amount of pirating planned by the N. Y. summer camps and country clubs this season.

That cake will keep for a considerable time if you place a piece of bread in the tin box with it.

That if you rub a little mustard on your hands after peeling onions you will instantly remove the onion whiff.

Cape Collars Are Increasingly Chic

Pattern 1962

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

This printed frock is smartly patriotic in its red and white design on a blue ground. The cape collar is attached to a neck band that crosses in front in becoming lines. Sleeves may be added if you wish. The skirt detail follows the bodice trim very cleverly.

Pattern 1962 is particularly lovely fashioned of flat crepe, georgette, shantung or voile. Other smart color schemes are blue and tan; green, tan and yellow; red and white; black and white, etc.

May be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39-inch material.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

AIR FEAT SPURS BERMUDA LINE

NEW YORK, June 30.—(INS.)—Roger Q. Williams had won new laurels today, completing a whirlwind non-stop flight from New York to Bermuda and return in 17 hours and 8 minutes.

Williams, who piloted the Pathfinder from Maine to Rome last year, flew the Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, in which Clarence D. Chamberlin had skimmed across the Atlantic to Germany, three years ago.

He left Roosevelt Field, L. I., at 5:02 a. m. yesterday and returned at 10:10 p. m., resting the plane at the Curtis-Wright Airport at Valley Stream for the one landing of the day. The 1,580-mile flight was the first round-trip non-stop aerial journey between New York and Bermuda. Erroll Boyd was relief pilot and Harry P. Connors, navigator.

Williams reported good weather on most of the flight, although fog was encountered, also occasional showers. At Hamilton, which they circled, the fliers dropped a mail bag and then whirled toward New York.

The purpose of the flight, Williams said, was to demonstrate that a fast air line service could be maintained between the island and New York. According to Williams, a company to back such a service may be formed.

REBUKE GRANGE AS ANTI-DRY

SOMERSET, Pa., June 30.—(AP.)—E. B. Dorsett, of Mansfield, master of the State Grange, served notice Saturday on the Cambria County Pomona Grange that it must reconsider its action of a week ago in which a resolution was adopted calling for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Dorsett, who delivered his ultimatum in an address at a grange picnic at Kingwood, said the county organization would lose its charter if the resolution was allowed to stand.

The state master stated the grange was committed to prohibition and that no subordinate grange had power to act contrary to that policy.

REPORT ACTOR'S WIFE IN RENO

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 30.—(INS.)—Although the report was denied, friends of Mrs. Douglas McLean, wife of the former motion picture star, were firm in their declaration she had gone to Reno to establish residence preparatory to filing suit for divorce.

The McLeans were said to have separated more than a year ago. Her father, socially prominent at Douglaston, Long Island, was a wealthy New York attorney.

Irish Heiress' Visit Recalls Romance

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—Eileen Beresford, sub-debutante Irish heiress to some of the wealth of the Goulds, is coming to pass the summer with her aunt, Mrs. Carroll Lita Wainwright (Edith Gould). Eileen's father, Lord Decies, was playing polo on Long Island in 1910, when a girl fell on the field. Lord Decies helped her back to her car. It was Edith Gould. Through her he met her sister, Vivien, now Lady Decies.

Mountain Moths Hunted With Lights

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—(AP.)—In the hope of catching strange, brilliantly colored moths the glare of gasoline pressure lights is to be thrown on white sheets in cloud forests in the mountains of Honduras. The Academy of Natural Sciences is sending an expedition to study curious forms of life where jungles are drenched with heavy moisture in summer.

100 Appointed as Playground Chiefs

Nearly 100 recreational directors and assistants for the city's 58 summer playgrounds were named today by W. C. Batchelor, head of the Bureau of Recreation. The playgrounds will open July 7. An institute for the directors will be held Wednesday at Washington Park Playgrounds, Bedford avenue. Directors are paid $4.95 a day and assistants $4.40 a day.

'Return When I'm 100!' Judge, 69, Tells Drunks

South Siders who commit minor offenses are wishing that Magistrate John J. Sweeney, of South Side Police Court, had a birthday every day. Sweeney, who is the oldest police magistrate in the city, was 69 yesterday, and he celebrated by discharging five persons accused of drunkenness. He said:

"Boys, I'm 69 years old today. I feel like a kid, and I'm going to let you all go. I wish you many happy returns of the day. I hope to see you when I'm 100 years old."

20 DIE IN 'RED' PARADE FIGHT

TORRSON, Mexico, June 30.—(AP.)—The correspondent of La Prensa reports that 20 Communists and police were killed and eight wounded in a severe encounter in the streets of Matamoras, Coahuila, near here.

The dispatch stated that the Communists had sought permission to parade in protest against the government's arrests of Communists.

Three times refused, they decided to march any way. The police blocked their path. Members of the demonstrators opened fire.

Auturo Pena, chief of police, the report said, was wounded. Troops restored order.

FEDERAL COSTS SET RECORD

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(INS.)—With appropriation for the present session already at a new peace-time peak, the day for the long-predicted "five billion dollar Congress" is near at hand.

Congress has thus far appropriated $4,824,445,470 in the present session, including two bills not finally agreed upon. This compares with $4,665,000,000 last session.

The steady growth in federal expenditures has brought forth economy warnings from President Hoover and some congressional leaders.

It is pointed out by experts that the budget includes expenditures of the Postoffice Department, but does not include its receipts. Congress appropriated $836,783,077 for this and most of it is refunded.

Bradford to Cut Oil Output Further

The production previously was curtailed 20 per cent and officials say it is now advisable for the good of the business to make an additional reduction.

For sportsmen

Byrd, Amundsen and Scott have carried our malted milk tablets to the poles. Experienced hunters and travelers use them as the most condensed nourishment of high merit. They know. Golfers carry them as a quick relief from fatigue. At good drug-stores everywhere.

PREDICTS UNION OF 3 CHURCHES

MOUNT GRETNA, Pa., June 30 (AP)—Bishop G. D. Bardsley of Harrisburg, speaking at the convention of the affiliated Societies of the United Brethren Church, said tonight that there is a concerted movement on foot to bring about the union of the United Brethren, Methodist and Evangelical denominations.

Bishop Bardsley, head of the East Pennsylvania conference of the United Brethren Church, is at the head of the movement.

The proposed merger of the three churches, the bishop said, is the ...

Dr. J. M. ... Philadelphia was ... other ... chosen ... Hershey ... secretary. ... Mrs. Orpha ... New Holland ... Mrs. Anna Straub, Harrisburg ... Mrs. Mildred Wenger, Lancaster, stewardship ... Rev. S. H. Herberg, Ohio.

MOTHER JAILED FOR RUM FREE

BRAWLEY, Cal., June 30 (United Press)—Sobbing, mother of seven children, begged Justice of the Peace A. C. Cook for mercy today when she was given a choice of home life or jail.

"Send her home to her children—the idea of imposing a 500-day jail sentence under those circumstances is shocking and unconscionable."

Said Superior Judge A. C. Finney here when he was told that Mrs. Malka Cottrell, wife, had already been in jail for 40 days.

Mrs. Cottrell, ... in a little home at West Main and Seventh, Brawley, was ... Justice Cook a little more than a month ago. Raiding officers reported that they had found a small bottle of home brew in her house.

There were seven children in the house to ... and for the ... Mrs. Cottrell to support and care for them, ...

"Five hundred dollars or five hundred days," said Justice Cook.

"Just a few words of praise of your medicine. Nothing gave me relief and health as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. I am a practical nurse and was so rundown that I was unable to work. I used to suffer agonies at times and would have to lie down the biggest part of the day. After two bottles of Vegetable Compound I felt better. Now I have used ten bottles and feel fine. I recommend it to many of my patients."—Mrs. Florence Johnson, R. R. #3, Chetopa, Kansas.

FLOWER GUILD OPENS STATION

The Pittsburgh branch of the National Plant Flower and Fruit Guild will conduct a receiving station throughout the summer in the lobby of the Nixon Theater. Mrs. Harry Gilmore Samson is executive chairman of the organization and the station will be open every morning except Saturday and Sunday from 9 to 12.

It is the purpose of the guild to distribute flowers and plants in homes of poor throughout the city.

Miss Helena Beegle is the director of the station. The organization is also distributing Tulip Tim flower boxes through the sections which are so closely built that there is no room for gardens.

Flowers and other contributions are received from the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company, The Wholesale Growers, the McCallum Company, Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., Ralph Fitth Gardens, Mr. C. D. Armstrong and W. W. Blackburn.

KILLS HUSBAND 'TO END ABUSE'

CAMDEN, N. J., June 30.—(INS.)—Snatching up a butcher knife, Mrs. Helen Edwards diminutive 36-year-old housewife ended 10 years of alleged abuse and mistreatment by plunging it into the body of her 40-year-old husband, John.

He died a few minutes later as the sobbing, remorseful woman trembled in a police cell. When arraigned, she said:

"I'm sorry. I didn't mean to kill him. I only meant to hurt him like he has hurt me all these years."

She was exonerated of evil intent by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Amanda Edwards.

Putting her arms about the accused wife, Mrs. Edwards declared:

Blackburn Denied Annulment in Paris

PARIS, June 30.—(AP.)—The French court today declared itself without jurisdiction in the case of Lieut. Lavelle Blackburn, stationed at Mesa, Ariz., who sought annulment of his marriage with Rose Wilburn Blackburn, whom he married in Florence, Pima County, Ariz., on May 24, 1928. The court held the parties were not domiciled in France.

Dry Agent Killed As Auto Hits Pole

LEBANON, Ind., June 30.—(INS.)—One federal prohibition agent was killed and another was injured internally when their automobile crashed into a telephone pole near here. Ray Shaffer, 49, was killed instantly and Joe Wolf, 27, was in a serious condition with internal injuries. Both men lived in Columbus, O.

POSTAL AIDE LAUDS PRESS

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 30.—(INS.)—Political considerations may have dominated the policies of the postal service in the past, but they are no longer a factor, Third Assistant Postmaster General F. A. Tilton told the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association here today.

Tilton said all that was needed for the early solution of the Post-office Department's fiscal problem was the proper enlightenment of the people, and in this officials had to depend upon the newspapers, He said:

"The press continues as the greatest medium for the dissemination of information on public matters, the radio, the periodicals and the national forum notwithstanding."

HONDURAS ACTS AGAINST REDS

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, June 30.—(AP.)—The Honduran government declared martial law in four departments forming the Atlantic coast region to prevent Communistic disturbances.

Forty foreigners said to be agitators were deported, and others were arrested. Among those arrested was the well-known Nicaraguan leader, Toribio Tejerino. The press, all labor organizations, and public opinion seemed to be supporting President Mejia Colindres in the emergency. Officials believed all danger had been forestalled by the measures taken.

Burgess' Salary Up At West Homestead

A special meeting of West Homestead Borough Council has been called for tonight to decide the question of placing Burgess Robert A. Morrow on salary. Council will also act in the case of Chief of Police David R. Lindberg, suspended last Friday after a clash with Burgess Morrow.

SUNBURN
Beach First Aid Stations Report

Chief Lifeguard McMonigle treating a sunburn case at First Aid Station.

Soothing, cooling Noxzema ends pain instantly

. . . doesn't stain clothes

WHEN FIRST AID STATIONS and Lifeguards at America's biggest beaches use Noxzema exclusively, you can rest assured that it's the best thing out for sunburn.

John McMonigle, director of lifeguards, Coney Island says, "For going on thirty years I've been a lifeguard or director of lifeguards. In all that time I never found a thoroughly satisfactory sunburn remedy till I tried Noxzema.

"This is the fifth season we've been using it in our First Aid Station here at Coney. It cools and soothes, and relieves the soreness and burning almost instantly. And you'd hardly believe how quickly it will heal even a bad burn."

Beach authorities at many other leading resorts like Atlantic City, Asbury Park and Long Beach have also found Noxzema the most effective remedy for sunburn. Don't suffer needlessly—get a jar today at any drug or department store.

GREASELESS—WILL NOT STAIN
Apply Noxzema freely—even before putting on dainty summer clothes. It is positively greaseless—cannot soil or stain.

AUTO ACCIDENTS CAUSE INJURIES TO 14

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

By WILLIAM PFARR

There are a few incidents of the last six months which we can recall only with embarrassment. One has to do with Rosie, the erstwhile reporter.

When Rosie departed a few months ago, we printed a glowing notice of him. We told what a good reporter he had been, accurate and ingenious, and we hinted of the many scoops he had scored.

Well, Rosie was working his last hour for the paper when a fire "broke," and the city editor, having no other reporters available at the moment, was forced to ask Rosie to work another story.

Rosie went out on his last story and telephoned in a report of a featureless fire, worth only a paragraph or two in the paper. And not until Rosie read the opposition paper some hours later did he discover that two firemen had fallen off a roof through the flames and suffered broken legs.

* * *

Another time we called up a gentleman who lives in Carrick to ask his permission to print an entertaining story in which he had been the principal character. A squeamish person would have objected to the publication.

So we telephoned and longwindedly told him in a manner that was intended to be humorous just what we wanted.

He answered cordially, "I'm not in the mood to talk about it. I buried my father today."

A few days later he called back and said, "if you care to use that story, go right ahead. When you telephoned me they had to interrupt reading my father's will until I had answered the 'phone."

* * *

Then there was the time when a class of grammar school children was being shown through the Sun-Telegraph.

The guide was showing the boys and girls through the editorial department when he pointed to a hard-working young man picking away at a typewriter.

"That," said the guide, "is William Pfarr, who writes 'Sidewalks.' Do you want to meet him?"

"Naw," spoke up a fair 11-year-old critic, "we wanna meet that fella Danvers, who writes 'Pittsburghesque.'"

* * *

City detectives work in pairs and nine times out of 10 are notoriously jealous of each other. Probably there was never born the sleuth who did not feel, some time or other, that he was the master Sherlock Holmes and that all others were amateur bunglers.

This by way of introduction to Walter Monaghan, whose partner in detection of crime is Tommy Morgan, the Carrick taxpayer. Morgan, a hard-working sleuth himself, says Monaghan is a good detective.

Monaghan was born and reared in the Strip. A prize fighter many years ago, he was one of the Strip's idols. He is quiet, unobtrusive and orderly. He is married and the father of four or five children. He is in his late thirties, if not early forties. As a city detective he refuses to play politics, even though he was appointed to the bureau by Mayor Kline. He has lots of friends and, because he dislikes speaking ill of anybody, few, if any, enemies.

Will Rogers Says:

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 30.

The Senate just sits and waits till they find out what the President wants so they know how to vote against him. Be a good joke on 'em if he didn't let 'em know, or, for instance, if he had announced that he was going to let the Wickersha[m] committee go and didn't want any more money for 'em. Why, they would have voted them a million dollars. That's the way Mr. Coolidge used to do. He would keep 'em guessing so long that they voted his way accidentally part of the time. Yours, WILL.

Morgan's Gang Objects to His Reform Plan

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dean Ward Kent, young college graduate, goes to the penitentiary after his automobile, which he was driving while intoxicated, kills two people. In the prison he shares a cell with Duncan Morgan, sentenced for robbery, and "Butch" Schmidt, a hardened criminal, in for murder. Morgan gets possession of a picture of Anne Marlow, which "Butch" has taken from Kent's pocket. He likes her appearance and resolves to meet her some day. Morgan learns that he is to be freed on a parole. Kent "plants" a knife in Morgan's pocket. When the guards find it Morgan is put in solitary confinement and loses the parole. He swears revenge on Kent. After being in a dungeon for 30 days Morgan is almost dead when he is taken out. He is put in the prison hospital. Another prisoner dies in the hospital and Morgan escapes by taking the dead man's place in a huge sack. He jumps from the morgue ambulance on a lonely road and makes his way to friends in a night club, where he hides.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIII.

Duncan Morgan turned and walked away as Anne Marlowe and her brother left in the car. He tucked his book under his arm and started homeward, happier than an acquitted guilty prisoner. Just as he was turning into the street where he lived, he felt a hand on his arm. He whirled and started for his gat. A pert little Irish face peered into his.

"Hello, Ruby," he said, coldly.

"Is that the kind of greeting to give your baby?" asked the girl, pouting. "Gee, Dunk, I heard you took the fence out o' stir and I've been playin' every side-road to find you. Why didn't you come straight to Ruby?"

"I can't come straight—I have to lay low, Ruby. I don't even see any of the mob. I dassen't." He paused and looked around warily. "The first thing the dicks would do would be to trail you. Don't you know what they say, 'Find the woman?' They knew as soon as I got back I'd gallop for you. Don't you get it, Kid, I got to bum-steer the coppers."

"Yes—I don't see." Ruby's tone was a little hard.

"You do see, Ruby—let's get off this street quick. I'll make you see. They're probably trailing you right now, and they'll know me the minute they see me. Let's duck in this restaurant."

They entered the restaurant and Morgan selected a table in the far rear. Ruby sat down and looked at him accusingly.

Ruby Understands
Knows Why He Stays In Town

"Well, I'm waiting until you give a better excuse for not looking me up," she said. "You could have sent me some word. You never had a better friend, Dunk, you know it, too."

"Listen, Ruby," and Morgan reached out and took her hand. "Don't torch. I'm off my nut now, tryin' to dodge the flatfoots. You know what it means for me to go back to the stir—do you? It means 60 days in the cooler—God, 60 days. I just finished 30 when I escaped."

"Well, what the hell do you hang around this burg for—let's blow. I've got some jack I've been puttin' aside and we can burn up the tracks."

"No, I've got to stick here."

Rubby jerked her hand away. "Some jane has got you! That's the only thing that'd make you take a chance around here. And you tryin' to pull that stuff on me—I know you."

"Now, take a load o' this, Mamma." Morgan's voice was steely cold. "Cut the melodrama, you hear? You're just like any other twist to me. I never made you no run-o'-the-play contract, an' you ain't got no leash on me, see? I'll live my own rotten life in my own rotten way. You come around with this high-power stuff, and I'll tell you something. I got the inside straight. While I was in the stir you was around with that Canada Pete. Don't tell me no bedtime stories."

Morgan Angered
Ruby Gives Him Some Advice

"But I don' give a whoop for him!" and Ruby screwed up her face.

"None of the weep stuff, Kid. Now plant here nice an' quiet. Let me go the business for the team. I'm goin' straight and I don' want no spare tires hung on me. That's cold duck. Maybe you like me, an' maybe you don't. You've gone for plenty ahead o' me, an' you'll go for plenty yet. I broke your heart—for two hours."

"Oh—yeh? I'm not tryin' to cop you from that dumb dame, but—"

"Chop it! Shut up!" Morgan stormed.

"Listen, Dunk, you're goin' to hear it and you're goin' to like it. I'm goin' to do the talkin' from now on—"

"I'm your friend, Dunk, can't you understand?" Ruby was pleading. "Pay some attention to me. The gang's got wind of this quick one you're pullin'. This moral idea. You better watch where you step, or somethin' is gonna fall on you. Do you think you can quit a gang cold, after all they've gone down the line for you—" and, ominously—"aw, you know! Use your head, Dunk. I'm for you. So you're blowin' with your Christian lady friend and livin' as straight as a sucker! Try an' get away with it. You belong with somebody like me."

Gangsters Peeved
Morgan Knows Too Much To Quit

Tears came into Ruby's eyes. She did not brush them away or try to hide them, but looked bravely through them and never took her eyes off Morgan.

Morgan reached for her hand again. She allowed him to hold hers, but gave no response.

"Never mind takin' anything back, Dunk. I'm only tryin' to help you."

TIME OF RAIL FIREMEN CUT

Arrangements have been made between the locomotive firemen and the management of the Pennsylvania Railroad to reduce the maximum mileage permitted during the present depression in business, according to notices available today at all the terminals.

In regular passenger service, the maximum is reduced from 4,800 to 4,000 miles; in road freight service, from 3,800 miles to 3,200, and in yard service from 30 days to 30 days, according to the notices.

The notices point out that these arrangements will transfer from five to eight days per month from each regular fireman to the extra men, and at some points will result in calling back firemen at present on furlough. It will also avoid the necessity of furloughing extra firemen at this time, it was said.

War Veterans to Hold Street Fair

The third annual street fair under the auspices of Veale Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will get under way at McKees Rocks, Friday evening and close Saturday night, July 12. There will be dancing every evening and a varied program each day. The proceeds will be used for the building program.

2,679 Passes for Pool at Dormont

The Dormont swimming pool with the advent of hot weather is increasing in popularity and 2,679 passes have been issued to patrons of the pool. Of these, 1,278 are for children; 827 for women; 736 for men and 38 for non-residents.

Towering Bridge Pier Used As Easel by Artist

By PENELOPE REDD

With a towering bridge pier for an easel, one would almost expect Rachel McClelland Sutton to paint with a brush of comet's hair in her improvised studio on the Monongahela River wharf.

Painting filled an aquatic landing field for airplanes, no one could imagine it as a free studio for the city's artists.

However, Rachel McClelland Sutton had long looked on the spot as an ideal one for Pittsburgh subjects. Not successful in persuading any fellow artist to brave the rigors of water front painting, she began painting there alone.

GALLERY GATHERS

But not for long, without a gallery to query and to comment.

Water front characters regard her activities with mingled awe for her skill in painting what they, too, see and with curiosity as to the reason she paints, and as to the ultimate disposition of the paintings.

Several years ago, those who watch the work of Pittsburgh artists were interested in the paintings of Pittsburgh subjects which Mrs. Sutton began showing. It was apparent that hers was no snap-shot view but well considered characterizations of Pittsburgh's aspects. Mrs. Sutton said:

"One who has grown up in Pittsburgh is so accustomed to its appearance that it requires the painter's training to comprehend its pictorial possibilities. I always want to paint the city and its construction activities. It is, however, a long, slow task to gear oneself to the speed at which one must work."

Mrs. Sutton is now painting an old sand dredger which she regards merely as an exercise in the painting of forms. She has also painted the hydroplane landing and other subjects in the same vicinity, along the Monongahela water side.

During the winter Rachel McClelland Sutton frequently uses her motor car as a studio, while she tours about painting the clusters of houses that seem to cling so precariously to the side of cliffs.

Her still life canvases which she does when the elements forbid a more venturesome type of subject have received many honors in local exhibitions.

Mrs. Sutton's talent is one which she has developed without thought of the physical discomfort which so frequently accompanies her desire to paint Pittsburgh as the city of Tubal Cain.

Post Drum Corps Wins Twice in Week

For the second time within a week, the drum and bugle corps of Burt Foster Post No. 361, American Legion, of McKeesport, took first honors in a drum corps competition, winning the event at Dravosburg, sponsored by the Private Claude Bates Post, No. 380, in connection with the opening of the three-day bazar and festival. On Wednesday evening, the local corps took first honors at West Newton.

Director for Pool Picked at Avalon

Avalon Council has chosen George Dice, Bethany College student of 221 South Ohio street, Avalon, supervisor of the new borough swimming pool to be opened and dedicated next Friday as part of the July 4 celebration. He is a graduate of Avalon High School and has been active in basketball, football and track athletics.

Tickets Made Good At Kennywood Park

Because thousands of Pittsburgh district school children have been prevented from using reduced rate tickets to Kennywood Park amusements by rainy weather, this entire week, with the exception of Friday, has been set for the use of the tickets. The Holy Cross Church and schools were to hold their picnic at Kennywood today, with the Help of Christians and St. Peter's Italian parochial schools celebrating tomorrow.

Mechanics Elect District Deputy

Delegates representing each Junior Order United American Mechanics Council in the 89th district at a meeting held in Greenock, elected J. Harry Williams, of the Homewood Council, district deputy state councilor. Williams was elected on the second ballot, he and James H. McClay, of McKeesport Council, being tied in the first ballot.

Mt. Lebanon Landmark Yields to Progress

A landmark for many years the center of business and social activities in Mt. Lebanon has given way to the march of progress in the passing of the Algeo barn at Washington road and Bower Hill road.

Once a livery barn, it was headquarters for the younger set when in winter the hills beckoned to sled riders or in summer the cool of the evening beckoned for a ride in the open rig over the winding lanes and byways.

Its horses hauled engineers of the Pittsburgh Railways Company to and from work when the Washington and Monongahela car lines were being laid in 1900 and 1904. It served as storage place for hay and oats before Mt. Lebon, now with 14,000 population, came into existence.

The late K. E. Algeo purchased the property more than 30 years ago and it is estimated that at that time the stable was at least 40 years old.

WAGE WAR ON WILD DRIVING

With a reinforced boulevard traffic force out to arrest reckless drivers today in an effort to prevent auto accidents, John M. Rice, president of the Pittsburgh Motor Club was to ask City Council to replace the Boulevard of the Allies railing because it is "inadequate and a menace to motorists."

Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh, in doubling the boulevard motorcycle force, ordered the men to arrest all snake drivers, speeders, and other motor code violators, instead of giving them notices to appear in Traffic Court.

Walsh said:

"We are ordering the arrest of reckless drivers, not only to cut down auto accidents, but to protect our traffic men themselves. In the past week one motorcycle officer was killed and four others were hurt."

Announcing his petition to Council, Rice declared:

"The accident which took the life of Mrs. Ella Hayman, and those in which other cars have plunged through the Boulevard of the Allies safety rail, give conclusive proof that the rail is inadequate and a menace to all motorists who use the boulevard."

Summer Camps for Boys Open Soon

Boys of the tri-borough district are arranging to enter camps sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. at Twin Echo and Camp Catawba. The latter is situated at the confluence of Indian Creek and the Youghiogheny River. Boys Secretary George Charlesworth is registering boys to enter Catawba camp July 7.

Serves U. S. for 57 Years, To Quit in August

Completing 57 years of postal service, and the oldest man in active service of the Postoffice Department of the United States, Levi E. Palmer, 80, a resident of Dormont, will retire Tuesday, August 10.

When he leaves he will have been in the service longer than any other man in the history of the Pittsburgh postoffice. Of his 57 years in the service, 40 of them has been as superintendent of mails in Pittsburgh. Prior to that he had been in the railway mail service. He organized the sub station at Ferry street and has served under seven postmasters and with the retirement tomorrow of Postmaster Gosser, will begin service under the eighth.

When he came to the Pittsburgh postoffice it was located at Fifth avenue and Smithfield and he recalls clarly when the present building was occupied in 1891. He hopes to live to see the proposed new Federal building at Grant street and Seventh avenue placed in use.

MAN'S NECK BROKEN IN UPSET

Machine Turns Over After Hitting Wagon; Six Drivers Held, Hit-Runner Sought

Thrown from their machine when it overturned twice after striking a wagon on the Monongahela road at Gallatin, two men are in a critical condition today in the Monongahela Memorial Hospital. The accident occurred late yesterday. Ezra S. Daugherty, 59, of Monongahela, driver of the machine, suffered a broken neck, it was stated at the hospital, and John H. Spencer, 51, also of Monongahela, suffered fractures of both arms.

George Kaufman, 65, caretaker of Millwood Park, Freeport road, was unconscious at the Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, today, as the result of having been hit by an automobile yesterday. Parnassus police arrested Charles A. Lemon, 48, of Vandergrift, as driver of the machine.

TWO HURT IN COLLISION

Thomas Barkovich, 19, of 4602 Modoc way, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Anna Salamony, 38, of 610 Baldwin street, Bridgeville, were injured when a machine in which they were riding, driven by Enio Salamony, 40, the woman's husband, struck the car of Henry Pfister, 30, of 5265 Duncan street, Pittsburgh, in the Freeport road, Blawnox, last night. The drivers were arrested by highway patrolmen.

Gertrude Dale, 16, of Parnassus, suffered a fractured right leg, and her brother, Joseph, 10, was cut and bruised when hit by an automobile near their home. They were removed to the Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington.

NEWSBOY HURT

John Kovach, 9, a newsboy, of 1357 Geyer avenue, is in St. John's Hospital suffering a fractured skull, having been struck by an automobile at California and Davis avenue last night. James O'Leary, of 14 Chartiers avenue, Crafton, driver of the car, took the boy to the hospital, police reported.

A hit-run-driver was being sought by Ambridge police today, accused of injuring Michael Zimar, 34, of 1413 Duss avenue, Ambridge, at Eighteenth street and Duss avenue yesterday. Zimar's both legs were broken, police say.

Knocked from the running board of an automobile, Lawrence McAllister, 23, of 221 Hays street, and Joseph Schultz, 24, of 108 Cherry way, Homestead, were injured early yesterday. They are in the Homestead Hospital seriously injured. Munhall police say they leaped to the running board of the machine driven by Russell McAllister, 20, of 212 Locust way, Homestead and were fighting with him. The McAllister boys are cousins, police say. Russell McAllister was arrested.

DRIVERS ARRESTED

When their automobile was forced off the Browns Hill road early today, Mrs. Anna Harbat, 40, and her daughter, Helen, 16, of 127 Eighteenth avenue, Homestead, were slightly injured.

Hit by an automobile at Federal and Lacock streets, North Side, early today, John Laughlin, 74, of 1210 Bingham street, suffered fractures of three ribs. He was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital. Police arrested Mrs. Mary Martin, of 442 Ariston avenue, Overbrook, as driver of the machine.

CITY TO SPEED RIVER-RAIL TERMINALS

Council to Get Resolution Authorizing Lease Closing; Gather Data on Claims

City Council is expected to take further action tomorrow on expediting the river-rail terminal program. A resolution is expected to be introduced requesting City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and Chief Engineer C. M. Reppert to negotiate for a lease on the site at Haye on the Monongahela river. The city engineer also will be asked to obtain further data on the site on the Ohio river below the Manchester bridge.

On the North Side city council would like more information concerning damage estimates for present lease holders. According to John S. Herron, president of council, the aim of the resolution is to have everything in readiness for finalizing the plan later.

The Haye site, the larger of the two, is desired for large shipments carlot and over, with the idea of furnishing a means for all manufacturers and merchants to ship by rail and water direct to their customers.

POLICE SEEKING MURDER CLUES

Investigation into the murders of Lawrence D. Green, 26, of 256 Edmond street and Boleslaw Kuda, 42, of Aliquippa, was being continued today by homicide detectives and deputy coroners. Both men died Saturday.

Green died in St. Margaret's Hospital from a bullet wound in the left side, inflicted, police said, during an argument in the confectionery of Philip Ruffer at 5427 Butler street, June 23. Ruffer fled and a police search for him was begun.

Arrested on a charge of drunkenness at Epiphany and Logan streets, Friday, Kuda, also known as Cuda, was lodged in the Center Avenue Police Station. It was reported. When he failed to recover consciousness, Kuda was taken to the Passavant Hospital, where he died. An autopsy disclosed a fractured skull as the cause. Police were told the victim was attacked by four men a short time before his arrest.

ACTIVE MONTH FACES SCOUTS

July will be a big month for the Boy Scouts of Allegheny County Council, West, three of the five major projects of the summer program being scheduled for that month.

There will be a theater party at the Aldine Theater July 12, a boatride July 16, and a first aid meet at Carnegie Institute of Technology July 26. The other two events will be a treasure hunt at Guyasuta Scout Reservation, August 16, and a baseball game party at Forbes Field August 28.

POLICE CHASE PARK RIOTERS

An argument over a drinking fountain precipitated a near riot in West Park, North Side, early last night. The participants, about 50 in number, Negroes and whites, fled when more than a score of police arrived.

A large crowd watched and traffic at Monterey street and West North avenue was tied up for 10 minutes. The battle followed when members of one side dared others to cross a line they drew on the ground.

No casualties were reported.

WILMERDING'S VOTE QUIZ ON

Wilmerding's empty ballot box in the First District and the alleged issuance of fraudulent tax receipts in that and other districts, were occupying the attention of Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt today in the absence of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who is fishing in Canada.

Langfitt said that he will decide in a day or two what course to pursue in the matters.

The empty ballot box turned up last week when the boxes in several Wilmerding districts were ordered impounded as part of the tax collector contest between James F. Richards and C. R. Shiring. Shiring's attorney, O. K. Eaton, today directed Langfitt's attention to the possibility of fraudulent tax receipts.

It had been indicated last week that county detectives would escort election officials from the First District to the district attorney's office today for a conference on what happened to the ballots that were once in the now empty box.

PENN TOWNSHIP HOUSES BURN

A vacant house was destroyed and two adjoining residences damaged by fire in Brushton avenue extension, Penn Township, early today. City fire companies were called out when the fire got beyond control of the Penn Township volunteer company.

The fire originated in a vacant two-story frame dwelling at 164 Brushton avenue extension and spread to the residences of Harris Bay and John Jones, 165 and 162 Brushton avenue extension. Ten persons, all Negroes, were routed by the flames. Firemen estimated the damage at $5,000.

Electrical Musical Device to Be Shown

A demonstration of the theremin, the instrument which produces musical sounds by electricity, will feature the Pittsburgh Advertising Club luncheon tomorrow in the William Penn Hotel.

The theremin, free of keyboards, strings, reeds or other mechanical aids, is equipped with radiotrons, two metal bars as antennae and a loud speaker. The sounds are produced by passing an object such as the human hand in front of the control units.

Shadeland Bridge Opened Tomorrow

Chief Engineer C. M. Reppert announced yesterday that the Shadeland Avenue Bridge over Woods Run would be opened to traffic tomorrow. This structure has had new paving and the paving on Shadeland avenue on both sides of the bridge has been repaired. This bridge will now serve as a detour during the work on Brighton road and California avenue.

St. Clair Women to Present Playlet

Program features of "Historical Nights" to be given tomorrow by the St. Clair Ladies Community Center, in the Spring Lane School, will be music and a sketch. Mrs. Helen Lamberger and her assistants will present the sketch and the music will be furnished by Mrs. Catherine Pauley and Mrs. Elizabeth Steinhart.

VISITORS TO SEE ARC WELDING

A large group of visiting engineers, architects and contractors today were to witness a demonstration of arc welding while inspecting the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's central engineering building.

About 100 local members of the Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers were to be included in the party of visitors. The engineering building is an arc-welded building containing more than 7,000 tons of steel. The visitors were to attend a luncheon at which officials of the Westinghouse company were to speak.

BLAST WRECKS STOREROOM

Damage estimated at $500 resulted from a gas explosion last night in a vacant storeroom at 701 Wylie avenue. Several pedestrians narrowly escaped injury when windows of adjoining buildings were shattered.

Fire of undetermined origin broke out a few minutes later on the second floor of the Sherman House, an abandoned hotel at Water and Grant streets. The blaze was extinguished with slight loss.

Broughton Couple Believed Elopers

A country-wide search was started today for Edward Imph, 19, of Broughton, missing from his home along with the 15-year-old daughter of a neighbor. The couple had been "keeping company" and it is believed they eloped.

Last Thursday they went to a community picnic at South Park and failed to return home that night. Imph had borrowed his father's machine. Yesterday morning the car was found abandoned a short distance from the home and a larger car owned by the Imph family missing.

Bucket of Water Halts Wood St. Fire

A burning cigaret dropped through a sidewalk grating in front of 442 Wood street resulted in firemen being called there early today. The cigaret fell among bits of paper and caused smoke to issue through the grating.

REDUCED COST TO CAR RIDERS SUGGESTED

Power Plant on Allegheny Argument for Lowered Fares; Fitzgerald Dubious

Several thousand horsepower of potential hydro-electric current will go to waste here if no action is taken toward erection of a power plant on the proposed government high dam on the Allegheny River, near Highland Park Bridge, it was said today.

Under authority to be granted the United States engineer, it is said, 50,000 horsepower of current can be made cheaply from the Allegheny River flow in the Pittsburgh harbor.

Recently the West Penn Power Company made application for permission to build a hydro-electric plant on the Allegheny at Kittanning where a 23-foot high dam is to be built. More than 31,000 horse power can be generated there at peak.

The government plans improvement of Locks 1, 2 and 3 on the Allegheny, due to antiquated equipment delaying river shipping. Two plans are proposed—one to modernize the present locks, and the other to eliminate them with a high dam taking their place.

HIGH DAM DISPUTED

At Washington, the chief government engineer has frowned on the dam site proposition and has recommended modernization of the locks. This means tearing out Lock No. 1, dredge Lock No. 1 pool as far as Lock No. 2 and further modernize Lock No. 3. If the Secretary of War deems it wise he may recommend the high dam instead. Shippers favor the latter policy.

Among those suggested as possible users of current generated by a hydro-electric plant is the Pittsburgh Railways Company, long a complainer against high operating costs. Economies made by water power, trolley users believe, could be passed on to them in the form of reduced fares.

The railways company now buys its power from the Duquesne Light Company, also a Philadelphia Company subsidiary. Current is manufactured from coal.

Averaging a payment of 8.4 mills per horsepower, the railways organization uses nearly 175,000,000 units monthly. Requirements of a plant and stations to supply this must be at least 80,000 horsepower at a load demand.

ESTIMATE POWER

What capacity a high dam might have at the Aspinwall site has not yet been adequately determined by experts, but they say at the lowest river level 2,000 horsepower could be generated. Higher levels would stagger this amount.

Commenting on the proposal, Thomas Fitzgerald, president of the railways company, said:

"I do not think savings of much material value could be effected.

"Costs of current operation of trolleys do not now exceed more than 9 per cent of our total operating costs. When costs of maintenance of sub-stations are remembered, the bill is not much more than 6 per cent. It can readily be seen that if water power there could be manufacture current more cheaply, it wouldn't affect car riders. I doubt whether the fall there is sufficient to generate enough for our demand. Of course, I haven't had time to look much into the feasibility of such a possibility yet."

Costs of producing water power range from five mills to as high as two cents per kilowatt, according to statistics. This means little savings with such an abundance of cheap coal at hand, it was said.

Permission to start the modernization program at the Aspinwall site is expected in the near future.

Board in Stowe Re-elects Treasurer

At a special meeting of the Stowe Township Board of Education, Harry A. Irwin, secretary and treasurer of the McKees Rocks Trust Company was re-elected treasurer. The board also voted seats and other equipment for the playground now in course of construction.

Robbers Cut Pane, Get 5 Pairs of Shoes

A diamond was used by thieves to cut a hole in a window of the Red Man Shoe Company's store, 425 Smithfield street, police reported today. Five pairs of shoes valued at $32 were taken, according to the management.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: Why are you glad you live in Wilkinsburg?

MISS KATHRYN WOMELDORF, schoolgirl, Wilkinsburg—Why it's a good social community and I've always liked it. My friends are all here, and anyway I think Wilkinsburg is one of the prettiest suburbs of Pittsburgh.

Miss Womeldorf

D. M. BRIGGS, tower-man, Wilkinsburg—I like the section of the district all right, but it does not make much difference to me. It's just that it's convenient for any work.

D. M. Briggs

MISS ELLEN NESBIT, schoolgirl, Wilkinsburg—I've always lived here and so am quite used to it. I go to school here and have made nice friends and don't really think I'd like any other place quite as well.

Miss Nesbit

R. M. HUMES, drop-hammerman, Wilkinsburg—It's as good a place as any. I don't think I have much preference—it's just a matter of getting used to the locality.

R. M. Humes

MISS EDITH DONELSON, schoolgirl, Wilkinsburg—Well, I was born and raised here and have never lived any place else. I like it a lot—it's one of the nicest suburbs of the city and one of the most beautiful.

Miss Donelson

ELMER H. ENGLISH, sign-writer, Wilkinsburg—Why, it's the best town in the country. It has all the advantages anyone could ask for, and I wouldn't live anywhere else.

FAIL TO REOPEN GLORY BARN

The attempt to reorganize the Glory Barn church, Shetland and Lincoln avenues, has been abandoned, according to Charles G. Mayer, of Wilkinsburg, one of the leaders in the movement. Mayer said he and D. S. Smith had been asked to attempt reorganization of the congregation after Evangelist John W. Sproul, original leader of the group, had closed the church for the summer.

Mayer said many of those who requested him to form a permanent church deserted the cause and went back to supporting Evangelist Sproul. It was impossible for the small group left to finance the plan, Mayer said.

Tube Mill Employe Held Over Shooting

Port Vue police today were holding Joseph Horvath, of 8 Grace street, Port Vue, an employe of the National Tube Company, at McKeesport, in connection with the reported wounding of his foreman, J. A. Fletcher, on Saturday. Fletcher told police he reprimanded Horvath and that a few hours later a bullet grazed his left side as he was about to enter his home.

Arrange Reception For New Pastor

A reception in honor of the pastor, the Rev. W. C. Shane, and his wife, will be held tomorrow night at the United Presbyterian Church, East Pittsburgh. Mr. Shane is a graduate of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and was ordained as pastor last night. J. C. Stauffer is chairman of the committee arranging for the reception.

POLICE TRAIL ROBBERS ESCAPING WITH $1,150 LOOT

FIVE HOLDUPS STAGED OVER WEEK-END

New Automobile and Cash Included in Hauls Made by Thugs; Watchman Bound

Bandits who obtained $1,150 in loot in five holdups over the week-end were being sought by police today.

Four men who overpowered Charles Lentz, 20, of 139 Orchard street, obtained but one dollar, Lentz reported to police early today. He was returning from the home of a friend in Beechview when the four overpowered him at Merrityl street and Sebring avenue.

A sneak thief stole the contents of a vending machine in the Rialto Theater, 219 Fifth avenue, early today, police were informed. A watchman found a rear window jimmied while making his rounds. The loss was a few dollars, police say.

RESTAURANT HELD UP

Two men, one of them armed, escaped with $450 in the holdup of Gammon's Restaurant, Broad street and North Highland avenue, early yesterday. The pair fled in an automobile.

Grover Moore, night watchman in the Barnes Motor Company at 6343 Penn avenue, was bound and gagged by a bandit who entered the plant early yesterday. After stealing $10 from Moore the robber took a new automobile valued at $600 and escaped.

L. A. Kinsey, a taxicab driver of 903 North St. Clair street, was robbed of his driver's license by two bandits who confronted him at California and Bamton avenues, early yesterday. Kinsey was carrying no money, he told police.

SLUGGED, ROBBED OF $1

Slugged by four marauders at Smallman and Thirtieth streets, early yesterday, James Almar, of 225 Thirty-third street, was robbed of $15.

A handful of necktles and $75 comprised the loot of two bandits who late Saturday entered the Snyder Hat Store, 631 Smithfield street. Sam Spokane, the clerk, was forced into the cellar and bound.

MAN CLEANING PISTOL SHOT

When a revolver he is said to have been cleaning was accidentally discharged, W. H. Semmelrock, 38, a chiropractor of 211 Brownsville road, Carrick, was wounded in the left cheek, police at the Carrick station reported. Semmelrock is in the South Side Hospital.

Semmelrock was removed to the hospital late yesterday and when questioned by detectives last night he is said to have refused to make a statement. Lieut. John Vandell of the Carrick station said that Attorney M. M. Crawford, a brother-in-law of Semmelrock, informed police that the shooting had been accidental and had occurred while the gun was being cleaned.

5 McKeesporters Held After Raids

Week-end raids by McKeesport police netting whisky and wines resulted in the holding of five for court following a hearing before Magistrate Robert C. Calhoun today. Those held were Rose Dragula, 1129 Market street; Anthony Magdig, 615 Jerome avenue; George Tarbovic, 635 Jerome street; Nicholas Carrozza, 1230 Locust street, and Mrs. Mary Benka. Six others taken in the raids were discharged.

LEADERS NAMED BY DEMOCRATS IN 6 WARDS

Local Organizations of Party Give Indorsement To State-Wide Ticket

David Lawrence, Democratic county chairman, has announced the names of party officers in six Pittsburgh wards. Officers of other wards were announced a few days ago.

Lawrence declared each ward committee has indorsed candidates nominated last May on the Democratic ticket headed by John M. Hemphill, of West Chester, for governor and J. Sedgwick Kistler, of Lock Haven, for United States senator.

SUNDAY SCHOOL STONE PLACED

Several hundred persons participated in ceremonies that marked the laying of the corner stone of a Sunday school unit of the new Mt. Pisgah Presbyterian Church, Alta View street and McKelvia avenue, Glenfield, yesterday afternoon. The congregation, 100 years old, will celebrate its centennial on completion of the new building in September. The Sunday school unit is being erected at a cost of $45,000.

The Rev. Dr. R. L. Biddle, pastor of the church, presided at the ceremonies. He was assisted by Mrs. Paul J. Shomaker, widow of a pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, and officials of the Sunday school. Visiting clergymen from South Hills and West End communities occupied seats on the platform.

GIRLS' SCHOOL FOUNDER DIES

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., June 30—Mrs. Elizabeth Irwin Moore, 91, founder of the Morgantown Female Seminary, died in her home here last night. Mrs. Moore, widow of the Rev. James Robertson Moore, was a pioneer educator in West Virginia. Her husband was head of the Monongalia Academy before the Civil War, one of Virginia's leading educational institutions. After his death in 1864 she founded the seminary and taught in it for 25 years.

She was mother of Miss Susanna Maxwell Moore, for many years dean of women at West Virginia University. She retired several years ago. When the seminary was destroyed by fire in 1890 the legislature decreed that coeducation should be introduced into the university. In recognition of her service, a building was erected on the university campus last year and named Elizabeth Moore Hall.

SANE FOURTH IN SOUTH HILLS

The South Hills communities, including Brookline, Dormont, Mt. Lebanon and Beechview are ready for the celebration of the safest and sanest Fourth of July celebrations in their history.

The cannon and giant firecracker will be displaced by celebrations in each of these communities and the day will be replete in entertainment consisting of music, ball games, other athletic events and open air film shows. Treats have been arranged for the children who participate in the parade which will be the opening feature of the day.

Arkansas to Claim Man Arrested Here

Prosecuting Attorney A. Boyd Cypert, of Little Rock, Ark., has wired police officials here that he is preparing extradition papers for George W. Partin, 35, of Memphis, Tenn., arrested Saturday while employed at the National Amusement Park, Freeport road. Partin is wanted in Little Rock on a charge of bribery.

GLIDER PLACES DESPITE CRASH

GREENSBURG, June 30—David Meeker, Dormont glider enthusiast, distinguished himself twice Sunday afternoon in the first Western Pennsylvania gliding contest at the Main Aeronautics Company airport here—once when he "cracked up" his second smash in two days, and again when he took second place for distance despite the smashup.

It was a novel aeronautical contest. Five gliders, representing clubs in Beaver Falls, Pittsburgh and Greensburg, were entered. R. V. Trader, gliding instructor at the Pittsburgh-Greensburg airport, won first place, soaring 267 yards for a perfect landing despite a stubborn cross-wind which brought young Meeker to grief.

Meeker flew into a cross-wind on the John A. Bell farm, Coraopolis Heights, Saturday afternoon while testing a ship for a friend. The frail little machine nosed over and landed on a wing. Meeker remaining strapped in the seat unhurt. His experience Sunday was just about the same.

MAN IDENTIFIED AS ASSAILANT

Identified police say as the man who last month attacked Mrs. Agnes Harris, 25, of Homeville, near Kennywood Park, May 1, Paul G. Reagan, 20, of Monongahela, was being held by state police at Washington, Pa. He was identified through a line at the Washington barracks last night when Mrs. Harris picked him out of a group of several men.

Reagan was arrested last week and charged with an attack May 2 on Miss Hilda Miss, Charleroi school teacher, which he is said to have admitted. He was to be given a hearing today before Alderman Robert Elwood, Jr., at Monongahela.

Mrs. Harris after identifying Reagan said she would appear against him if he were tried in Allegheny County. It is likely he will first be arraigned in Washington County.

2 POLICE HURT ARRESTING MAN

Accused of resisting arrest and injuring two McKeesport policemen, Emil Dushlek, 30, of 2573 Highland avenue, McKeesport, after having been subdued forcibly, received treatment at the McKeesport Hospital was lodged in the lockup early today.

Dushlek police said, was placed under arrest following his attempted flight after having crashed his automobile into a parked car near the Highland Grove School yesterday. Detective William Kreiling and Motorcycle Patrolman Robert Allison sustained lacerations during the struggle, according to a police report.

Girl, Locked in Room, Given Juvenile Court

One of the girls found wandering in Riverview Park early Friday was in Morals Court today on the complaint of a South Side landlady who said she had found the girl last night locked in the room of one of her tenants. Magistrate Thomas D. Jones turned the girl over to the Juvenile Court.

CONTESTS OVER FOR BETSY ANN

CINCINNATI, June 30—(AP)—Legends of the Betsy Ann's heydey, legends of the Ohio's little River steamboats's past which recalls the Old South with ladies in ruffling crinolines, mint julips, faithful roustabouts and the thrilling of plantation tradition in Virginia, to-day's contest duel-legends are all that is left for the once proud title mistress of the Mississippi.

The quaint river packet, built in 1899 and for more than a score of years the fastest mail boat on Ole Man Ribber, has said goodby to her racing days.

Hopelessly outdistanced Saturday in her third try in as many years to conquer the Ohio River's fastest boats, the Betsy Ann will withdraw from further racing, Capt. Frederick Way, Jr., the pilot, said in congratulating his friend and lifelong associate, Capt. Tom Greene, pilot of the Tom Greene, which beat the Betsy by nearly a mile in a 21-mile race up the Ohio River.

"We are satisfied the Betsy is not faster than the Greene boats and will withdraw from any future races. Good luck to the Tom. She can keep her title until we build a new Betsy Ann some day. Then she better look out."

Next week the Betsy will go into the newly formed trade between Pittsburgh and Louisville, still steaming over the Ohio, although shorn of her honors.

Trial of 'Attic Man' May End Wednesday

LOS ANGELES, June 30—(AP)—Trial of Otto Sanhuber, 36-year-old janitor, charged with the murder in 1922 of Fred Oesterreich, retired Milwaukee manufacturer, today entered its final stages.

The timid little "attic man," who confessed that he lived for more than a decade in Oesterreich's garret to be near Waiburga Oesterreich, whom he loved, prepared to resume the stand for further cross-examination.

Defense Attorney Earl Wakeman said he would call character witnesses, then rest his case. The state is expected to complete its rebuttal before adjournment tonight and the case probably will be in the hands of the jury by Wednesday.

2 JUDGES TAKE OATH TUESDAY

A full bench is expected to sit in the assignment room of Common Pleas court tomorrow morning when Judge S. J. Shee of the County Court and Attorney Joseph Stadtfeld are sworn in as Common Pleas judges. Last Friday Judge Shee resigned from the County Court bench to accept the Common Pleas position.

The two men were appointed last week to the vacancies and their commissions were received here Thursday.

HAYS CHILDREN PICNIC FRIDAY

Civic leaders of the Thirty-first Ward, formerly Hays Borough, will be hosts to more than 1,500 children of the ward at a picnic July 4 at Degenkolb Field, Lincoln Place, according to County Tax Assessor C. J. McBride, ward chairman.

Patriotic addresses will precede a program of athletic events, band concerts and dancing with a display of fireworks at night. Speakers will include President of Council John S. Herron, State Senator Frank J. Harris and Burgess John Cavanaugh of Homestead.

The committee arranging the affair is headed by Paul Rogers, chairman, and George Schmelz, secretary.

MEET SECRETLY ON MINE PACT

NEW YORK, June 30 — (AP) — Committees were ballotted today by anthracite miners and operators to draft a new agreement on wages and working conditions in the industry. They held all votes into secret session.

The scale committee of Districts 1, 7 and 9, all in Pennsylvania, gathered today and designated as representatives of the miners John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America; Philip Murray, of Pittsburgh, vice president; Thomas Kennedy, secretary and treasurer, and the presidents of the three districts.

The miners were informed that the operators committee would consist of W. W. Inglis Scranton, president of the Glen Alden Coal Company; Richard F. Grant, New York, president of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company; A. J. Maloney, Philadelphia, president of the Philadelphia and Reading Company; Michael Gallagher, New York, president of the Pittston Coal Company; W. H. Sanday, New York, vice president and general manager of the anthracite subsidiary of the Madeira-Hill Company, and J. B. Warriner, general manager of the Lehigh Navigation Coal Company.

The new agreement which the groups will try to reach will supersede the present pact signed in 1925-26. The present agreement expires on August 31.

Cow Packs Wicked Wallop in Feet; Farmer Hurt

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 30 — Frank Loughman, 74 year-old farmer of Nineveh, Greene County, was badly damaged by the hoofs of a cow he had turned out to pasture but is expected to recover. The cow's first kick broke both of Loughman's jaw bones and another to his heart stretched him unconscious. He was rescued by neighbors.

URGES JUSTICE IN PALESTINE

CLEVELAND, June 30 — (AP) — An appeal to the League of Nations to assure that "justice or order in administration of the mandate held by the government of Great Britain over Palestine was made by Lewis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization of America, in his annual presidential message before the opening session of the thirty-third annual Zionist convention. Lipsky has submitted his resignation as president.

Great Britain has shown "utter incapacity" to administer the mandate over the Jewish motherland, Lipsky charged.

Referring to the recent suspension of Jewish immigration into Palestine and issuance of a white paper by the British government, Lipsky said these had aroused the indignation of world Jewry. He added:

"There will be no diminution of that progress until the order to suspend immigration is revoked, until the latest white paper is supplanted by a program calculated to carry into effect the letter and spirit of the mandate."

GUNFIRE HALTS RUM RUNNER

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 30 — (AP) — The speedboat Chuckey with 360 sacks of liquor aboard was seized yesterday near Little Gull Island after she had been stopped by machine gun fire from two Coast Guard patrol boats.

The Chuckey had a crew of three none of whom was injured by the machine gun bullets. Last week she was seized for violation of the navigation laws and fined $6000 in New York City.

The boat was captured after she had eluded a Coast Guard patrol boat near Montauk Point.

BOLIVIA REBELS BESIEGE FOES

LA PAZ, June 30 — (AP) — Armed citizens today patrolled the streets near the Brazilian and German Legations, to prevent the escape of Dr. Hermando Siles, former president, and Gen. Hans Kundt, German chief of staff of the Bolivian army, who have been under diplomatic shelter during the revolt.

With the revolution a success, those opposed to the Siles-Kundt regime have demonstrated frequently before those legations.

Long processions have filled the streets and great crowds have assembled before the embassy buildings. Speakers who addressed them demanded delivery of the refugees but there were no disorders.

Gen. Carlos Blanco Galindo, head of the military junta now governing the country, persuaded the demonstrators to go home and not hinder departure of the refugees. Later, however, armed patrols were formed and these continued vigilant today.

GOING FOR RADIO FRAUD SUSPECT

Hilton was arrested in Philadelphia at the request of detectives here, they assert, after he had evaded police in Atlantic City two weeks ago by leaping from a second-story window.

According to Detective William Bauer, Hilton obtained lists of recent purchasers of expensive sets, went to their homes and induced the owners to part with them on the pretense that he would exchange the sets for later models. He is under indictment on four charges, police say.

Slaying Suspect Denies Kidnaping

NEW YORK, June 30 — (AP) — Giuseppe Sas, 31, a longshoreman wanted for homicide in Hillsdale, Pa., was in the police lineup today accused of a Brooklyn kidnaping. He denied knowledge of any killing in Hillsdale or elsewhere, but said that he was a visitor in Hillsdale several months ago.

He said he knew 6-year-old Rocco Giaschi, of Brooklyn, in connection with whose kidnaping Saturday, he was arrested, but denied that he took the boy away.

Auto Kills Aged Greenville Woman

GREENVILLE, Pa., June 30 — (AP.) — Mrs. Charles H. Hull, 70, of Greenville, died today from injuries she received when an automobile struck here as she was on her way home from church yesterday. She was the mother of Harold Hull, former district attorney of Mahoning County, Ohio. L. J. Hosack, of Stoneboro, driver of the automobile, and H. L. Crouser, who accompanied him, were held pending an inquest.

Slayer of Pastor Pleads Not Guilty

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 30. — (INS.) — Frank Ross, who shot and killed the Rev. Edgar R. Wood and his own wife, Mildred Ross, at a mission meeting, today pleaded not guilty at his arraignment. Ross was bound over to the grand jury. Friends indicated that a plea of insanity would be made in behalf of Ross.

Resort Fashions

Most vacation plans have reached the road map and time-table stage by now. The English call vacation time their "holidays" and Boggs & Buhl know a "holiday is twice a holiday" if you look fit and feel fit, and have a well planned wardrobe for recreation.

For Travel:

The seasoned traveler travels light. A dark silk suit, or an unlined silk coat and a print frock will be cool and smart. The need for a warm smart coat comes up sudden and imperatively. A tweed one is best, because of its stay-put shapeliness.

For Morning:

You will be cool and comfortable in a linen or shantung suit. Sleeveless frocks, or frocks with abbreviated sleeves are real blessings, and will form the backbone of your wardrobe. With them wear summery shoes in linen, kid or buckskin. Fabric or straw hats will be very becoming, especially the brim or beret type. Most of your accessories should be pure white, it's just that kind of a season.

For Sports:

Take one-piece sleeveless things, little mesh knit or lightweight woolen suits, silk tubbable crepes. Occasionally vary your classic "all white" with a sprinkling of summer pastels. Pack not one, but loads of berets and cardigan jackets to slip on after the game.

For the Beach:

Be amusing, picturesque, simple. You'll adore looking like a sailor, a tomboy, a lady of leisure, a mechanic. The new bathing suits are just oceans smarter than last year's and the beach scene isn't complete without overalls; cotton mesh shirts; floppy farmer hats; cool but efficient sandals or clogs.

For Afternoon and Evening:

Take one chiffon and you'll wish for more, so start right off with a trunkful. Leave room for a white unlined woolen coat; several lacy straw hats; and a "precious pastel" (or black) short velvet evening wrap. Pearls are as necessary as your train ticket. So are eggshell shoes. They go with everything.

Eaton's Wife Explains Why She Wants Divorce

CHAPTER XXII

Linda's Views

These things be treated with a pragmatic and aching regret that they should be indeed exist. For the ephemeral, mustn't be regarded. Linda, the woman, through the eyes of the Larry who had been her lover.

Linda answered "No," thoughtfully and sat down near him, composing her restless hands in her lap. "I'm fond of you, she said, and we're friends. That's what I rely on your friendship for me. We've been happy, I admit. But for five years now, more than five years really, our marriage has been a makeshift."

"You can't always live on the heights," Eaton reminded her.

"No, I didn't expect to," Linda told him. "But you've become more and more engrossed by business. You've had very little time for me. And in that time I grew up. Grew up without you. We haven't anything in common. We've been quite as contented apart as together. I've run your house for you and made you, when necessary, a docile wife."

"There was a time, Larry, when I wasn't just amiable. That time has passed. Nor do I feel that you've been unhappy at its passing. You've been as indifferent as I. A wife who trembled when you came near her would have embarrassed you. At least I think so."

"No, you've been content with things as they are. But I'm not—not any longer. I'm young; I'm normal and healthy. I want life in its fullness. I want a chance to—to take the happiness my maturity offers me."

Explains About Jameson

"Please"—she flushed under the golden bronze—"please don't think that I've gone off at the deep end over all the old catchwords—repressed desire and all the rest. I'm not putting in a plea for the purely physical escape. Frankly I want it, but I want companionship most of all. I've worked and I've played. And I've played too long alone. That's all," she said.

"You've been frank with me," he told her. "I suppose it would be of no use if I offered to go your way, to give up the work which has kept me from you, to offer myself to you over again?"

"Too late," she told him quickly, almost harshly. "Larry, answer me with all the honesty in you—do you want to?"

"No," he told her heavily, "I don't want to. I can't recall the boy who was your lover, Linda."

"You see?" She smiled sadly. "It's no good. And I'm not the girl you loved, the girl who loved you, Larry. Not any more."

After a moment, he told her gently: "You were dear and wonderful—all a man could ask, and more. And you've been a magnificent wife—proud and loyal, and above reproach. There is, of course, someone else. I'm not asking you to confide in me, Linda. I think I know."

"I'm not censuring you, re-

Feminine Reasoning

"That sounds silly, but it's fit the reasoning. You see it was pleasant to have someone await there which I wanted him, someone who would rather be with me than with anyone else in the world, someone who kept silent yet wrapped me around in an inlang the warmth of devotion."

"Ah, Linda," said her husband.

"Don't! It doesn't matter. I mean I—I didn't realize how much I had missed these things until they came to me again. I don't blame you, Larry. We married because we loved each other, because we felt for each other that perfectly normal, healthy pull of sex attraction which young people confuse with something enduring.

"Perhaps in many cases it does endure. But we never built upon it. We were too young, not in years, perhaps, but in outlook—to see ahead. You went your way and I went mine, and the original bond slackened.

"I'm glad it did. Some day I should have hated being held to you by that one thing alone. We've managed a decent friendship out of it, at any rate. And respect."

He asked, after a moment: "And Dick?"

"When we were all at Hot Springs last fall he started to say something. My fault, I suppose. I stopped him, but the damage was done. We were together a good deal at Palm Beach—nothing was said. Larry, there wasn't a word or a gesture. But that can't go on forever. Down at the Homestead this last time he did speak fully—and I listened. And I knew what I must do. I had to come home and ask you to release me."

Feels Jealousy

For a moment her eyes were veiled. Eaton realized that she had forgotten him briefly. That she was thinking of Jameson—of the word given, the vow taken, the understanding reached. And he felt a curious retrospective jealousy, not for himself as he now was but for the never-to-be-entirely-laid ghost of the man who had married Linda 10 long years ago.

He put out his hand and Linda, raising her eyes, leaned forward and gave him hers. He held it a long moment and then relinquished it—a symbolic gesture.

"You must be free," he told her, "and happy."

"Don't spoil it by quibbling," she warned him. "Don't leave me the burden of doubt; don't make me reproach myself. Tell me, won't there be happiness for you, too, in freedom?"

"Did I sound like a sacrificial hero, a martyr?" he asked ruefully. "I didn't mean to. Happiness—for me? I don't know. I hope so. But at least no unhappiness, Linda. So don't reproach yourself. Of course, it's never pleasant to be faced with the fact that one is a failure. And I have certainly failed you."

"No—not you. It goes deeper than that," she told him.

They remained for a long time without speaking. They were dedicating this ultimate moment to the past that had been, and the future which would never be. Months would pass by; Linda would obtain her divorce; papers would be signed and the legal formalities satisfied, but this was the true moment of their separation.

After a time, he said wearily: "Go to bed, Linda, tomorrow we'll talk over ways and means."

Marriage Can Entirely Change Character of Girls, Warns Fay King

By FAY KING

MARRIAGE has made surprising changes in some girls. Demure little damsels, heavily chaperoned and sheltered, have gone wild since marriage freed them from family ties. She, who it seemed was certain to be a sweet and fashioned wife, suddenly develops into an ultra-modern divorcee.

Another girl most young men admired did not marry, because she declared she hated kids and loathed housekeeping; marries, raises a fine family, and dotes on domesticity.

The girl who never seemed to know the value of money and was always in debt for foolish extravagance marries, and now prides herself upon keeping a budget and living within her husband's salary.

Wild girls have settled down beautifully, while shy ones have gone wild.

So, you never can tell!

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Bridge Widows

Nearly every woman can get a set of indomitable out of hearing of the fairy [illegible] some other woman's husband.

* * *

Every woman can find another woman who has taken a worse matrimonial risk than she has. This is the popular idea of the "Christian spirit"—to thank Heaven for your blessings, and incidentally to feel cheered at the thought that somebody else is worse off than you are.

* * *

The golf widow can congratulate herself that she is not a bored widow, and that golf is a daytime game and not an all-night session. And the bored widow in turn can take comfort in the fact that it is cards and not blondes that are her husband's weakness and can sympathize with that poor little woman who is married to the gas-purchaser in the local apartment.

* * *

The woman whose husband cannot be dragged out of the house evenings can rejoice when she thinks of the woman whose husband has to be dragged INTO the house most mornings.

* * *

The wife of the attractive dentist whose business is to hang tenderly over the pretty women's shoulders all day, can count herself lucky when she reflects on the fate of the woman who is married to the fascinating doctor, who must take the pulse of one charming lady-in-negligee after another, in one scented boudoir after another.

* * *

And you may even recall the battered wife in the O. Henry story, who pitied the woman upstairs, whose husband was too spineless or too indifferent to beat his spouse up occasionally, or even to give her a black eye as a souvenir of his love.

* * *

You see, husbands like morals and motor-cars, are all a matter of comparison. And a "good husband" is merely one who is less trying than some other woman's husband.

* * *

Lots of little wives must have patted themselves on the back when they read of the woman who is suing for separation from her husband, because he remained away from home for three days and nights, in order to play in a bridge tournament.

* * *

Being a golf-widow or a poker-widow is sad enough; but to be married to a BRIDGE-MANIAC is probably the bitterest fate of all.

* * *

Golf and poker are just games, pastimes or obsessions; but BRIDGE is a state of MIND. It gets into the system and does something to it. It has been known to transform the mildest and most genial soul into a crab or a boor.

* * *

There is a peculiar kind of bridge-fiend which has led [illegible]s into rows that ended in throwing the ashtrays and vases at each other's heads or slapping each other's faces across the table. And there's a bridge growth which can fill a whole drawing-room with ominous, black gloom.

* * *

The Bridge-divorce, which begins in a badly played hand and ends in a fight for the custody of the children, is getting to be an everyday thing.

* * *

Alas, the wife of the bridge maniac and the husband of the bridge-fiend can think of NOBODY who might envy them! Nobody in their opinion, is worse off!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, July 1

Although there may be much incentive and stimulus to initiative and enterprise, according to the leading planetary configurations, yet there may also be stubborn obstacles or rigid congestions to be combatted. These obstructions may be actual and practical as well as mental, but under the high impetus of Mars trine lunar it is probable all frustrating circumstances will be vanquished. Elderly persons and institutions may be the obstructing factors. Personal matters may be lively and gratifying.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year calling for all their mental and physical initiative and aggressiveness to combat and overcome tenacious obstacles. It is likely that much practical opposition will be annihilated and progress achieved and the personal relations made pleasant.

A child born on this day should be aggressive, capable and courageous and will vanquish many opposing and conflicting forces in life. It should also have a pleasant personal life.

"You wouldn't— You always was a prince."

"But what the hell started all this?" How did the gang know anything about me wantin' to switch an' turn shoe-clerk?"

"It's them books you're carrying around, Dunk," said Ruby.

Everything from sheer undies to downy napped blankets can be safely washed in the water action of the Gainaday. It's rubless! There isn't a single moving part in the tub. Nothing to twist the clothes . . . nothing to wear out the fibers!

Cleansing suds penetrate each fabric time after time — remove grime with harmless speed. It's quick and thorough! Your whole family laundry is free from wash-wear. And you are free to do the odds and ends of housework, for your Gainaday requires no watching!

Harsh, wasteful washing methods can now be discarded! See the Gainaday Rubless Washers at your public utility showrooms, department store, or any reliable domestic appliance shop. You will find the model to suit you in the new Gainaday price range. Gainaday Electric Co., 3036 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

WHAT PRESIDENT HOOVER PLANS to do in the face of Congress' refusal to appropriate sufficient funds for maintenance of his Law Enforcement Commission may crop out tonight in the chief executive's talk to governors assembled at Salt Lake City. KDKA and WCAE will have the talk at 11:45 o'clock.

Can music make you laugh?

Rosalie Wolfe

Wilfred Glenn tune will sing three numbers each of which is designed to provoke grins and chuckles when the General Motors Family Party presents a humor test on WCAE at 9:30.

Big Bass Viol

The song story of the young man who became the life of the party by learning to play the orchestra's largest instrument, will be Glenn's first number.

"Friendship in Action" will be the subject of Horace W. McDavid's talk in the Kiwanis International program over WJAS at 9:30.

Two songs of Teutonic flavor both of which have song birds as their subject will be offered on WCAE at 7 p. m. by Rosalie Wolfe soprano.

A vocal trio will do "The Moon Is Low" for Maytag KDKA at 9.

A cornet solo of Inflammatus from Rossini's "Stabat Mater" on KDKA at 10, and Edwin Kemp singing the Flower Song from Bizet's "Carmen" WCAE at 10:30, are other good features.

* * *

When Graham McNamee describes New York's welcome to Bobby Jones this Wednesday he'll have a lot of ??? to ask the famous golfer. McNamee, champion of NBC announcers with 132 for 18 holes, desires very much to improve his game.

* * *

ALPHA AND OMEGA

The Columbia chain now has stations whose calls start and finish with the alphabet—WABC at New York and WXYZ at Detroit.

"Oh Promise Me," the "Robin Hood" number now being given so much a play by broadcasters, was interpolated in DeKoven's opera to give the famous contralto of the Bostonians—Jessie Bartlett Davis—a special solo number. The selection has been used at more weddings than any other single composition.

* * *

An Englishman visiting KDKA had the following comment for G. Dare Fleck, program director:

"You know I am rather impressed with your broadcasting. I like the Lucky Strike-out Orchestra fairly well, and those Negro comedians who sell the tooth-wash—you know, Angus and Andrew — they're quite amusing."

* * *

Vivian Vaughn de Leath is now in Paris. She sang her opening concert at Les Infants Terribles last week and was encored ten times. Ford Miller is married. Announcers are the only persons allowed in the studio during a program but you may obtain special permission to see the artists in action by speaking to G. Dare Fleck at KDKA, J. L. Kaufman at WCAE, H. J. Brennan at WJAS, Paul Miller at KQV.

* * *

Her friends in Jugo Slavia hope to pick up Frances Ceh's native folk song concert over KDKA at 6:30 tonight.

* * *

Larry Davis, saxophonist with the Town Tattlers, KQV at 10, formerly traveled with Ted Weems. His new song, "There's No Use Cryin'," will be played tonight.

* * *

TODAY'S TID BIT

George Engles, vice president of NBC, has a score of dogs in his office but there isn't a bark or a bite in a carload of them as they're made of china and porcelain. Every famous dog is on his desk in replica.

Warren, O., to Get New Steel Plant

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 30.—The United States Gypsum Company, Chicago, will establish a plant in Warren to house its new building steel division, purchased from the Youngstown Pressed Steel Company. The plant will employ 400 men.

VALLEY STEEL AT LOW MARK

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 30.—Because of the Independence Day observance, iron and steel company operations for the week will be to the lowest levels of the year. Many of the mills producing flat-rolled steels will suspend for the period.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company reduces operations 50 per cent to a 60 per cent average, but Republic Steel installs a 65 per cent rate of its open-hearth furnaces, twenty-five are melting as compared with 28 last week.

In the sheet division, about 40 of the valley's 120 mills will be under power while 80 will be largely inactive. A few of the sheet mills will be shut but millwrights will be employed making repairs.

Pipe mills continue to maintain the largest measure of activity in finished steel lines averaging 65 per cent. Independent steel bar mills operate at 50 per cent and those of the Carnegie Steel Company at 60 per cent. Tinplate production is averaging 70 per cent.

Outing of Greeks Attracts Thousands

NEW CASTLE, Pa., June 30.—Thousands of Greek residents of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio belonging to the Greek American Progressive Association participated Sunday in the fourth annual picnic of the association at Shady View, Mt. Jackson.

A parade was held which ended at St. George's Greek Orthodox Church. An address was given by Attorney Lee Johnson, of Pittsburgh, grand president of the association.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Should Women Who Are Married Work?

From time to time we've made a few feeble passes at this subject, but generally we've steered clear, hoping to avert bloodshed. But now the war's on. Betty Jones demands a showdown. What she thinks of married women workers is enough to start a hot brawl. And she's not going to be bossed off either.

ANOTHER SIDE

"Dear Miss Martin:

"Whatever I can afford I buy the paper. I read it from the first line to the last. I admire people who are brave enough to write what they think. But I'm going to take my chance and tell you what's the matter with me. I feel that I deserve as much as the bottom has dropped out of things. We have a sense of helplessness and fear.

All the person is the term used to describe a sharp pain in the breast. The term is applied to symptoms rather than to any well-marked disease. The ailment is associated with certain diseases which affect the heart or the blood vessels by which the heart is nourished. It may be associated with diseases of the aorta, the great trunk blood vessel which leads directly to the heart. Hardening of the arteries may cause it.

The causes which bring it on may be some infectious constitutional disease. It may follow rheumatism, influenza, diabetes, Bright's disease, typhoid fever or diphtheria. A disease of the blood is a very common cause.

An attack may come suddenly and without warning. It is a most agonizing, vise-like pain in the region of the breastbone with a sense of constriction of the chest. The pain extends into the back, arms and shoulders, but particularly into the left arm.

The patient may become stiff and motionless, as though paralyzed, afraid to make the slightest move. Every motion produces more agony. The mental distress is almost as bad as the physical pain, for the patient fears each moment is to be his last. Death may actually come during such an attack.

A violent attack may last only a few minutes, but a lesser one may last hours. The pain may come on after eating a hearty meal in which indigestible food was taken.

The spasms are periodical and are brought on by mental excitement, muscular effort, dyspepsia, overeating, exposure to cold, and any sudden shock. Excessive use of coffee or tobacco, or overindulgence in liquor may bring on a spasm.

Needless to say, a doctor is needed during and after the attack. The patient should be examined carefully by a physician to see what is the underlying cause of the trouble. He will probably prescribe certain remedies to carry.

By proper care these dangerous attacks may often be controlled. But the exciting cause must be found and removed. Then there will be hope for recovery.

Answers to Health Queries

F. M. Q.—What causes high blood pressure and how can it be treated? What measures should be taken under the circumstances?

A.—The trouble may be caused by failure in the kidney functioning, constipation, or there may be a heart condition at the source. Proper diet and care will usually bring about results.

* * *

A READER. Q.—What can I do to clear my complexion of pimples? I have been told that it is a blood condition.

A.—Regulate your diet and keep the intestinal tract clear.

* * *

"A Reader." Q.—What do you advise for falling hair?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Seek the Underlying Cause of Heart Pain

DR. COPELAND

Unfailing and regular action of the heart is essential not only to comfort but to life itself. When we have the slightest feeling that the matter with the heart, there seems as though the bottom had dropped out of things. We have a sense of helplessness and fear.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

In the Absence of an Engagement Ring

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My mother would like to announce my engagement, which doesn't seem a problem, but it is. I haven't an engagement ring and don't wish one, as I would rather use the money to buy something more useful. Is there any way my mother can announce my engagement when I haven't a ring? I understand it is bad form to announce an engagement when the bride-to-be hasn't a ring. H. S.

You are taking the wrong point of view about this. Since you prefer not to have an engagement ring, that is correct, and is no one's affair but your own. As a matter of fact, I admire very much your independence of spirit in making such a definite decision. Make your engagement announcement as you wish, and erase from your mind the idea that it is necessary to have an engagement ring as the symbol of your engagement. The important thing about being engaged is not the engagement ring, but the spiritual truth in your hearts.

Gifts for the Young Man Graduate

Dear Miss Beeckman:

1. My young man friend is graduating this Spring and I want to give him a nice present. I had planned to give him a large picture of myself, but Mother says it would not be appropriate. I don't see why it wouldn't do, as he wants a picture of me very badly. Do you see any reason why it wouldn't be correct?

2. Will you please suggest something that would be in good taste? A. M. D.

1. I believe that I agree with your mother. Somehow, it doesn't seem to me, either, that your photograph would be such an appropriate present to give for this occasion. Why not give your photograph to him at some later time?

2. A handsome leather portfolio, heavy and masculine-looking, would be an excellent present, I think, one for his desk or to carry. Or a beautifully-bound book, or several books of the kind you know he likes. Or a good-looking leather wallet for day wear or for evening dress. Or some smoking accessory, for carrying, or for his desk. Or some especially beautiful fine linen handkerchiefs for evening, embroidered with his monogram. Or a fountain pen and pencil, or either one.

The Family 'Senior' and 'Junior'

Dear Miss Beeckman:

My father's name is Mr. Joseph Wynans, senior, and my name is Joseph Wynans, Junior. A son was born to us recently. If we call him Joseph, after me, he will be a "junior" or a "master"? I think he will not become "junior" until he reaches the age of 21, and then I will be his "senior," and he will be my "junior." Is this right? READER.

Your son is Joseph Wynans third. Or Joseph Wynans 3rd. Or Joseph Wynans III. Which-ever way you wish to write it. That is, if your father is living, and I take it that he is. The master is his title—that is, he is now Master Joseph Wynans 3rd, and will be until he is old enough to be called Mr. He will be "third" as long as your father lives, and then, when your father is not living, you become Joseph Wynans, and your son becomes Joseph Wynans, Jr.

Roderick Can't Understand Grandma's Curiosity

My closed door was not sufficient to shut out all sounds of the conciliatory expedition of the two small boys to their grandmother's room. In their embarrassment and excitement their knock upon her door sounded like a drummer's long roll and I found myself listening intently for my mother-in-law's answer to the summons.

She must have kept them waiting for several seconds, for I heard nothing and wondered whether she had admitted them in silence or had refused to open the door to any summons. Then I heard her voice, high-pitched and militant.

"Who sent you here?"

"Nobody, Grandie," Junior's voice shrilled. "We came all by ourselves because—"

"Come inside," she commanded, and then the door shut decisively, not to open again for nearly a quarter of an hour. But when at last I heard the clatter of voices again, I knew that the armistice had been signed, and I waited quietly but impatiently until the two pairs of small feet had raced back to the door behind which I sat, and two pairs of fists beat a tattoo upon it.

I opened it quickly, and as swiftly closed it behind the two lads, patently tense and eager to tell me of what had happened.

"Don't shout!" I admonished them. "Keep your voices low."

Junior looked up at me with such understanding in his twinkling eyes that I suddenly felt like a conspirator.

"She can't hear inside here with the door closed," he said.

I wasted no time in hypocritical pretense.

"I'm not sure of that," I said, "so be careful. Did you apologize nicely to her?"

"You bet your boots," Junior responded fervently, in the phraseology which he has learned from Katie, while Roderick's answer was an equally enthusiastic "Sure thing!"

"I am so glad," I answered, "and I am sure she was pleased."

"She said she was 'mawful' pleased to have us such good boys," Junior strutted a bit as he repeated his grandmother's encomium.

"But she kept asking us over and over whether you told us to come and say we were sorry," Roderick added his comment in puzzled tones. "And she wanted to know why we had changed our minds about shaking hands."

"What did you tell her?" I felt my nerve ends tingle as I visualized my mother-in-law's face should the boys have told her that they had agreed to shake hands at a veiled hint from me after a point-blank refusal of her request.

"Just what you told us to tell her," Junior protested. "We told her just as soon as we went in that we'd been thinking it over and had done what she said about shaking hands. And we kept telling her we thought of it all by ourselves, but she just couldn't seem to believe it at first. But after she'd asked us 'bout a million times and we'd told her the same thing then I guess she began to believe us."

"She's funny," Roderick uttered this small boy indictment with finality. "When we were in her room before, all she wanted was to have us shake hands. And now when we told her we had she didn't seem to care a bit about it. She just wanted to be sure we did it by ourselves. I guess she didn't like it that we did it for you when we didn't do it for her."

"Yes, that's it," Junior added his verdict with emphasis and gave me another glance of comradely secret understanding from twinkling eyes.

I felt exactly as if someone had dealt me an unexpected blow. I had realized vaguely that my young son was no longer a tiny boy, but it had not yet been brought home to me that he was "sizing up folks," to use a typically Ticer-ism phrase, and forming his own judgments concerning them. What impressions of me, of course, woman-like, I at once sounded the personal note were going on behind those clear eyes?

Never mind about Grandie now," I told them hastily. "You've done what you ought to do and you needn't worry about anything else. And if you help me get Christmas greens tomorrow you must go to bed now."

"Oh-h! Gee!" Junior was jumping up and down now. "Are we going to take a lunch and build a fire and cook some bacon?"

"If the weather is all right," I hedged, for I never gave a promise outright, lest some unforeseen happening compel me to break it. "Now, Junior, show Roderick where he is to sleep, and then both of you undress and get into bed. I'll come and tuck you up presently."

"And tell a story?" Junior said hopefully, and a warm little feeling stole round my heart. My boy might be growing up, but he was not growing away from me.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

One sees more beautiful women in Italy than in any other country. In the fashionable shopping district of Florence, every other woman passing is a lovely Juliet with dark, wavy hair, large expressive eyes, clear, luscious, olive skin. They use no makeup. French women are seldom prize winners in the contest of pulchritude. They are short and hippy, with wide little feet. But they are chic, they have sparkle, they are the jolliest companions one can ever find.

When cold creaming the hands be especially kind to the knuckles. There little creases and furrows appear, the effect of housework, or even work at a desk. Place the four fingers under the knuckles and the thumb above. Keep fingers stationary, send the thumb about in small circles, digging well into the flesh. If the knuckles are large spread out fingers and thumb, bringing them together into the palm of the hand with a strong muscular pull.

Swollen tissues under the eyes do not always signify physical disorders. They are sometimes an inheritance. If they are here today and gone tomorrow they may be due to fatigue, late hours, loss of sleep, worry or lack of restraint when good viands are offered—rich chow that makes the tummy groan and go on strike. Temporary treatment consists of using plenty of hot water, dashing on cold, and laving the eyes gently with iced witch hazel.

Trustful ladies used to wear beauty masks at night. More than one husband, wandering into the home after a merry evening with the boys, thought he was gazing upon his wife's dead body. The new beauty mask is wired for an electric current. It is worn only in the beauty shop at so many dollars a wear. It stimulates circulation and causes the complexion to function properly, throwing off its waste produces more actively.

Be careful in summer
Your sanitary protection must deodorize.....to be safe

Don't risk your daintiness in warmer weather . . . use Kotex, the sanitary pad that deodorizes completely.

FEMININE daintiness is less secure in warm weather. Then is when you really appreciate the way Kotex deodorizes.

All through every Kotex pad, a gentle deodorant is sprinkled. This deodorant is pure and safe . . . indeed, it is used in many soothing lotions. Yet it is marvelously efficient. It gives you freedom from one of your most trying worries . . . the fear of a most unforgivable offense.

More comfortable, too

Really, no other pad can be compared with Kotex in this matter of summer comfort. Kotex is so light and cool, so dainty, even after hours of wear.

And Kotex is resilient. It does not lose its delicacy. It can absorb five times more than cotton . . . without any chafing or irritation.

Kotex fits securely, and is rounded and tapered to avoid conspicuous outlines under delicate frocks.

Many of these unique comforts are due to the unusual material of which Kotex is made. This is Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding . . . the material which has replaced fine surgical cotton in 85% of America's leading hospitals.

You know, of course, that you use Kotex just once, then dispose of it. It frees you forever from unpleasant laundering. Ask for Kotex by name, at any drug, dry goods or department store. Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT. . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Disposable, instantly, completely.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

Ask to see the KOTEX BELT and KOTEX SANITARY APRON at any drug, dry goods or department store.

NO EDGE FOR IRISH OVER PANTHERS

THOUGH FOOTBALL IS some distance from being a seasonable topic and the game in question will not be played until October 25, some of the gridiron dopesters are already speculating as to the probable outcome of the tussle at the Stadium between Pitt and Notre Dame. That the game is coming in for so much attention and discussion at such an early date is due likely to the fact that these universities have not met in football for 18 years and that the probable result of a struggle between their great teams of last season, had they been scheduled to clash, was the subject of more arguments than any other question in the pigskin world during 1929.

Dr. J. B. Sutherland

For some reason not clear to Pittsburgh fans, there appears to be a feeling among certain of the summer prophets that Notre Dame is going to have an edge on the Panthers. Perhaps they are basing the opinion on the fact that Pitt never has defeated the South Benders, having been able to get no better than a tie in their three meetings in 1909, 1911 and 1912 at Forbes Field. Or possibly they have been interviewing Dr. J. B. Sutherland on the season's prospects and the idea was generated by Jock's characteristic gloom.

IN EITHER EVENT they have no very solid foundation for the expressed belief that the Irish will have the stronger team this year. The standard of football at Pitt is much higher than it was in 1912, just as it has risen at Notre Dame, and as for Dr. Sutherland's preseason pessimism, that story is as old and as meaningless here as is the gloom of Gil Dobie at Cornell.

If you were to guage Pitt's prospects in any season from the expressed views of its famous coach on the outlook, you would be forced to conclude that the Panthers would be lucky to win a single game. Ask Jock now about what he looks for next fall, and his most optimistic view probably will be the carefully guarded statement that with a fair share of the breaks Pitt may succeed in scoring against Waynesburg.

AND THERE ISN'T a great deal more in any other direction to warrant the opinion expressed by some of the dopesters that Notre Dame will have a bulge in the October struggle that is to be an outstanding feature of the 1930 football season in this city.

Going back to last season for dope, it may be argued that whereas Pitt was steamrollered by Southern California, 47 to 14, Knute Rockne's force defeated those same coast stars, 13 to 12. But there is a counter argument equally strong to be found in the fact that whereas Notre Dame beat Carnegie Tech only 7 to 0, Pitt trounced the same foemen 34 to 13. Besides, if Pitt and Notre Dame had met in the regular season, the Panthers likely would have been favorites.

Knute Rockne

NOR CAN IT be said that the changes in the two teams for the coming campaign show any advantage for Notre Dame. It is true that Pitt suffers a heavy loss in the graduation of Donchess, Parkinson, Montgomery, Uansa, DiMeolo, Rooney and some lesser lights. But how about the strength that is taken from Notre Dame by the loss of Moynihan, center; Culrick, end; Cannon, Law and Bondi, guards; Twomey, tackle, and Elder, halfback? Aside from the hole that the fleet-footed Elder will leave in the backfield, Rockne cannot hope in a single season to replace the wonderful line that has become a memory. Notre Dame, in truth, has lost just as much as Pitt, and probably more, and an unbiased study of the situation gives the impression that unless the South Benders had much greater reserve strength among the sophomores and juniors on the squad last year, and unless the average sophomore class at Notre Dame is better in a football sense than Pitt's, there is no sound basis for the contention that the Irish will be stronger than the Panthers next fall. Don't be in any hurry to count that game as a defeat for Pitt before it has been played.

THE GENERAL OPINION among baseball fans that the present Western trip would prove a stormy one for the Brooklyn club, vastly different from the smooth and successful cruise the Robins enjoyed on their first invasion of the occident, has been borne out by developments to date.

A period of rough going for the Flatbush ballers reached a climax yesterday, when their third straight defeat in Chicago forced them to relinquish first place to the Cubs. The Robins had held undisputed possession of the leadership since May 30. They have won only four games in the West against six defeats on this tour.

THE WARRIORS OF Joe McCarthy have done more damage to Brooklyn's pennant cause than any other outfit in the league. Of the 25 defeats suffered by the Robins, seven have been administered by the Bruins. Brooklyn, on the other hand, has been able to beat Chicago only three times.

Joe McCarthy

The Cubs were the only club to take a series from the Robins in almost two months. On their first Western trip the Dodgers dropped three straight games in Chicago on May 6, 7 and 8. Though held even in one, they did not lose another series until they dropped three out of four games during the Windy City stay that ended yesterday.

CHICAGO HAS BEEN a jinx stop for the Robins for several years. They won only four games out of 11 there in 1927, made the same record in 1928, and last year won only three out of 11. With six lost out of seven this season, they have dropped 28 of their last 40 games in Cubland. The Bruins' rise to first place is not due solely to their work against Brooklyn, however. They have been playing such fine ball against all opponents that their record for the last month is better than that of any other club in either of the big leagues.

THE BRUINS HAVE won 23 of their last 30 games, a showing that has approached only by the Yankees, who have won 22 out of 30 during the same period. During their last 18 games, the Cubs have not been beaten twice in succession.

The drive of the McCarthy tribe is all the more remarkable because it has been accomplished since they lost the services of Hal Carlson and Rogers Hornsby through death and injury. Predictions that the double casualty would put them out of the pennant hunt have been made to look pretty sick.

AS A RESULT of their big brace last week, the Pirates today go into the final lap of the home series against the East with a balance

Grid Captain-Elect Killed in Accident

BALTIMORE, June 30.—(AP) Dawson Mills, captain-elect of the Johns Hopkins University football team and a native of Kentucky was killed early yesterday in an automobile accident here.

Mills, accompanied by three other men was returning from a swimming party as the rear tire of the automobile blew out, throwing the machine into the ditch and turning it over.

Mills was thrown clear of the wreck and landed on his head. A passing motorist took him to a nearby dispensary where he was pronounced dead. The other three escaped injury.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The Rock of York has been outsteadied! Yes "believe it or not," blond Fred Rudisill yesterday met his master at the art of slapping a tennis ball not too hard or not too deep to be in danger of committing frequent errors. Bill Haseltine, slim young Philadelphian who blew into Pittsburgh a week ago unheralded and unsung, turned the trick by the overwhelming straight-set margin of 6-1, 6-0, 6-2, and thereby annexed for himself the historic Western Pennsylvania men's singles title and a leg on the handsome David I. McCahill Cup, symbol of highest net honors of the district.

A colorful gallery of several hundred ranged itself about the Stanton Heights Golf Club courts for the contest and for the remainder of a program of the West Penn finals and semi-finals that earlier saw Dorothy Jarvis, Bewickley star, repeat her 1927 women's singles triumph, this time at the expense of Dorothy Anderson, clever Butler girl, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2, and later beheld McCook Reed and Paul Hicks, Yale-Princeton duo representing the Edgewood Club, flash truly magnificent tennis to smash out 1-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4 victory over the crack Erie-Uniontown pair of Byron Baur and Billy Ramsay.

WAS POST ENTRY

The man-to-man final proved far from a spectacular exhibition, but what it lacked in scintillation it made up in the picturesque background of the new premier. Haseltine, according to the dope, heard in the Quaker City that the Western Pennsylvania tourney was on the Pittsburgh card for the week of June 21. Arranging his vacation, he took to the highway and by dint of the assistance of friendly motorists made his way across the state.

On opening day he presented himself to Chairman Ed Seitz, who found that the youngster had not been entered in the draw. But despite the technicality, Seitz took compassion on the lad who had come so far to play and gave him the place of an entrant who had signified intention of defaulting.

No one in the local net clan had ever heard of Haseltine and no one paid attention to him as he slid through a couple of early round matches in ordinary fashion. But then in frame three, he suddenly burst from obscurity by fighting up from behind to eliminate Paul Barber, Penn State satellite, in an extra set. In the following session, he accounted for hard-driving Billy O'Loughlin after the latter had had him down at 0-3 in the third set, and in the quarter-finals he nosed out the redoubtable Paul Hicks. Saturday witnessed him pitted against Sam Harbison, Princetonian conqueror of ex-champion Baur, and the Tiger luminary fell in five bitterly battled sets. Thus it happened that yesterday, this Philadelphia boy, a dark horse if ever there was one, scaled the West Penn racquet heights with perhaps the most decisive margin to spare that has been recorded in the more than two-score years of the event. And to complete the romantic picture, last night he

As the reputated descendant of Fatima, the daughter of Mohammed, the person of the Aga Khan is sacred and venerated to a decree inconceivable to our Western minds. He exercises absolute spiritual control over his followers and receives a large annual tribute. His bath water is bottled faithfully and shipped to India where the Choda faithful buy it for its sacred implications. The present Aga Khan is a keen sportsman and his horse, Blenheim, recently won the English Derby. T. E. BURNS MADE THREE HITS IN ONE INNING — This happened September 6, 1883. Illness and injuries yesterday ruined the plans of the Meyers Bowl at North Braddock and the Jolly Bowl at New Castle to put on popular boxing shows in their arenas tonight.

A sudden attack of grippe laid low Johnny Datto, Filipino featherweight, of Cleveland, who was to meet Jackie Rodgers, local Negro knockout star, in the 10-round main bout at the Meyers Bowl, while a broken hand suffered by Phil Tobias, of Brooklyn in training, caused him to cancel his windup battle with Albert (Frenchy) Belanger, of Toronto, at New Castle.

SHOWS SET BACK

The New Castle show has been set back indefinitely, while Matchmaker Jules Beck, of the Meyers Bowl was busy today trying to land an opponent to meet Rodgers either tomorrow or Wednesday night.

This is the second time a Rodgers-Datto bout has failed to go through.

Several weeks ago, Rodgers had to cancel because of an injured side. It was feared he would have to pull out again when a brother was drowned at Sandusky, O., last Wednesday, but he promised not to disappoint this time, only to find that his opponent has been counted out by sickness.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well folks, we was all sorry to see them Phils leave town. Burt Shotton has a nice bunch of country boys who are tryin' to make good in the city, but I guess Burt figures they better pick out cities in the East. Horace Greeley wouldn' advise the Phils to go West, if he ever watched that pitchin' staff.

Shotton looked like a fella that had lost everything but his sense of humor while our gang was trimmin' his team. You know Burt had at least 10 pitchers on the bench before the series started and Jule had just about five ready.

After the Phils had dropped three in a row to the Pirates one of our gang was tellin' Shotton that Jule only had five pitchers.

WHAT A BOOST!

"All right," shouted Shotton. "I've got 10 and I'll trade my 10 for Ens' five!"

I was glad to see Bernie Walter get a chance to pitch against Akron yesterday. That kid has been waitin' for weeks for a chance to get in a game and Jule told him a long time ago to get ready for Akron. Well, Bernie has been pitchin' to the hitters nearly every day and was in dandy shape till about a week ago when he went down with the grip. He was still kind of peaked when he hopped outa bed to be ready for yesterday's trip. And he showed a lot of class for a kid.

I guess Socko thought Jule might let him get in for an inning or two if Bernie was too sick but I guess Jule was afraid of damage suits or something if Socko beaned one of them Akronites.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Jewel Ens and his Pirates this morning envisioned another week filled to overflowing. Six succeeding days are scheduled to bring seven battles at Forbes Field, the Braves to open a four-game series with the Buccos this afternoon. Friday, which is Independence Day, will see the colorful Cubs performing in two battles in the Oakland park and the Bears will remain over for the following day. Then to add to the activities of the Freebooters they will take on the Cardinals twice in St. Louis next Sunday.

There is nothing to be gained, however, in crossing bridges ahead of time. Suffice to say that the Tribe from Boston have made things very unpleasant for the Buccos this year. The two clubs have clashed six times in Pittsburgh and Boston and on four occasions McKechnie, Maranville and company have copped the business.

KREMER TO HURL

Remy Kremer, who has been in a great stride in his last two starts, will face the Braves this afternoon. Remy has had four days' rest and the records of the recent past show him to be a better hurler with four, instead of three days' relaxation. By allowing him that much rest, Boss Ens appears to have helped him to quite a few successes in the past month.

Kremer is likely to be opposed by Bill Sherdel, erstwhile Cardinal southpaw. Wee Willie went to the Tribe in the deal that sent Burleigh Grimes to the Redbirds. It would not be a bit surprising to see an improvement in the work of Sherdel now that he is under Skipper Bill. Fred Frankhouse, another Redbird who flew from the Cardinal coop to the Braves in the Grimes swap, already has shown signs of becoming a star pitcher.

SANK REDS TWICE

The Braves were feeling pretty keen today after getting in from Cincinnati. The Boston boys floored the Reds twice yesterday, their double success doing much to ease up their feelings on top of soreness that came from regular defeats on the road.

The Buccos have learned painfully that they cannot hold the Braves cheaply, so Ens' crew will be ready to swap punches while the New Englanders are in town.

Walter Maranville continues to play stellar ball in the shortfield. The oldest player in point of service in the league, Rabbit is the same peppery kid who has fascinated fans all over the circuit since 1912. Maranville is still batting better than .300 and his defensive plays are remarkable. He is here, there and everywhere and fighting hard for everything.

BUCS DOWN AKRON

The Pirates defeated the Akron Firestones at Akron yesterday, the score being 9 to 2. Bernard Walter and Jimmy Bradley, the latter a 19-year-old star from the South Side, held the Akron team to four hits. Bradley, a lefthander, is one of the few pitchers to stop the rush of the Homestead Grays.

The Pirates went out and picked up five runs in the seventh inning to put the game on ice, after hav-

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, June 30. — This is the week that tips off the pennant winners. Whoever is out front the Fourth of July is supposed to finish that way. Personally, I would rather be out front on Labor Day than the Glorious Fourth. Different holidays have different meanings. The Red Sox figure they are doing well if they are still in the league by Memorial Day. If the Phillies are in the cellar on Arbor Day, they always plant an extra row of raspberry bushes over the dead bodies. The White Sox are at their best during National Pants Pressing Week and your Uncle Nick is always up front on pay day.

FATHERS, SONS PLAY AT FIELD CLUB TODAY

BROOKSTONS, 1929 CHAMPS, FAVORITES

One of the finest individual events of the district golf season is being played today at the Pittsburgh Field Club. Fathers and sons are entered in their championship tournament, the annual Western Pennsylvania Fathers and Sons championship, and among them are some of the finest linksmen in the district.

This splendid event, which was founded about eight years ago by James Francis Brady, former general counsel of the United States Golf Association, has a field of [illegible] Last year, Stanley B. Brookston and his son, Stanley B. Brookston, Jr., each holding a handicap of 2, won the event and are the defending champions in regular form.

PROS AT UNIONTOWN

One other tournament, which today's links will attract a large field, is being staged at the Uniontown Country Club where Hobart Brady is playing host to all the professionals of the Uniontown district. This morning the professionals are playing 18 holes at medal at 1 this afternoon they will team up with Uniontown Country Club members in a pro-amateur foursome.

Tomorrow a one-day tournament under the auspices of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania is to be held at the Wildwood Country Club while the Edgewood Country Club will be the scene of the big golf petitions the Carnegie Steel and Public Utilities events.

DATE SET BACK

The executives and workers were scheduled to play their tournament at Edgewood last month but it was washed out by rain and Al Weibllinger, chairman of the arrangements committee, set another date for the play.

Since the postponed date, which had 52 entries, 25 more golfers have forwarded their entry fees, making the total of those to compete over the course Tuesday to 79. The latest entrants are [illegible]

MAC
BABE
SWINGING THREE OR FOUR BATS BEFORE GOING TO BAT LOOSENS MUSCLES OF ARMS AND SHOULDERS -ALSO DOING IT FOR A TIME MAKES ONE BAT SEEM LIGHTER AND GIVES YOU MORE WHIP USE A BAT THAT HAS PROPER BALANCE DO NOT USE ONE TOO HEAVY

By BABE RUTH
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player

Mac grabbed hold of three or four bats swinging and fro in the air as he had seen the big leaguers do [illegible] over his shoulder.

"Now I'm ready to hit," he laughed. "But I still don't see why fellows go up to the plate with three or four bats every time. What good does it do to swing all of that wood?"

"It loosens the muscles of the arms and shoulders in the first place," I told him, "and swinging three or four bats for a time makes the one you use seem much lighter and gives you more whip."

"What kind of a bat should a kid use?" Mac inquired.

"Whatever kind feels best in your hands," I told him. "Get a bat that has the proper balance—one that you can swing easily and one that gives you no feeling of being top-heavy or weighted."

"You use a heavy bat, don't you?" he asked.

USE A LIGHT BAT

"Yes, I replied. "But I'm a big man. And, besides, I'm paid for hitting a ball a long distance and I need a heavy bat. But just because I do that is no reason why you should. I would be a lot better hitter myself if I could use a lighter bat, choke up on it and shorten my swing. The thing most kids don't realize is that the minute they go up there with a heavy bat, grab it by the end and start swinging from the heels they're giving the smart pitcher all of the advantage."

"What sort of bat should I use?" Mac asked again.

"One that's light and easy to handle," I answered. "Most kids make the mistake of selecting bats that are far too heavy on the theory that the heavier the bat the farther the ball will travel. That's true in part, but, after all, it isn't the bat that drives the ball—it's the swing back of the bat. Get a bat that is balanced about six or eight inches from the end. Get a bat that has a handle large enough to take up the shock of hitting an inside ball. Choke it three or four inches from the end, stand up there flatfooted, shorten your swing and put your drive into your wrists. That is, snap your wrists into the ball at the time of impact. That's what makes a real hitter."

"But you can't hit home runs that way," Mac protested.

ADVISES CHOKE SWING

"Bother about home runs! If you've got the strength and power you'll get one once in a while no matter how you hit. But, after all, home runs aren't as important as you think. You've got to remember that it's baschits that win ball games and four singles put together one after the other will score more runs than one home run. When you're growing up you've got to remember that you haven't the strength to swing a heavy bat and hit balls out of the park. Later, perhaps, if you grow into a big strong man with a lot of power you can start swinging from the end, but as a kid you'll do a lot better to take a light bat, choke up on it and poke the ball. That's what gets base hits."

ARNOLD DUE HERE TODAY

Billy Arnold of Chicago, sensational young auto racer, will arrive in Pittsburgh this evening to begin preparations for the 100-mile event at the Bridgeville Speedway July 4. Arnold won the Indianapolis and Altoona classics this year.

Arnold will be the first of the major pilots to put in his appearance. Another star to follow are Shorty Cantlon, who finished second to Arnold at Indianapolis. Louie Schneider, who drew down third money in the same race. Jimmy Gleason and Russell Snowberger, both Philadelphians. Wilbur Shaw, the perennial century distance winner, and others of equal rating.

Clay Courts Event Draws Strong Field

KANSAS CITY, June 30.—(AP.)—Seven of the first 20 ranking tennis players in the United States, including Francis T. Hunter, ranking No. 2, have entered the twenty-first annual national clay courts tennis tournament here, starting July 14.

With the opening of the tournament still two weeks away, those in charge are hopeful of having in the entry list all the nation's leading stars who are not now engaged in competition abroad. Play is for men's singles and doubles play, no women competing.

JUNIOR GOLF ENTRIES CLOSE WEDNESDAY

CADDIES HAVE UNTIL FRIDAY TO ENTER

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Today, tomorrow and Wednesday—that's all you've got left, just three days before the entries close for the third annual Western Pennsylvania junior amateur tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy and other prizes, which is to be staged at the Schenley Park municipal links one week from today—or Monday, July 7.

If your entry is not in the mail on its way to the Golf Tournament Editor by Wednesday, you'll not stand a chance of winning one of the many awards put up for you to play for—the 26-inch Hearst Trophy, the matched set of steel-shafted irons, the solid gold medal that go to the winner, the driver and medal that go to second place, and the mashie and putter and medals that will be given for third and fourth place.

MEDALS FOR CADDIES

That's in the individual competition alone—if you have qualified on your club caddie team, you will be eligible to win one of the medals that go to the winning and and runner-up teams aside from the beautiful plaque that goes to the club.

It is expected that caddie-masters and professionals at those clubs which have not already qualified their caddies will make arrangements to do so sometime this week. All preliminary qualifying rounds must be completed by Friday.

The Golf Tournament Editor will be glad to assist in any preliminary caddie qualifying test, and if caddiemasters will communicate with him any morning this week at Grant 6500 in the Sports Department, he will be only too glad to tell the world about it.

But the big thing right now is—GET YOUR ENTRY BLANK IN BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE! No post entries will be received, except if they are associated with a caddie' qualifying round. Any amateur 19 years of age or under, not attending an institution of learning above preparatory school grades, is eligible to compete—which includes all caddies 17 years of age and under.

Entries for the high and preparatory school competition will be held open until Friday. Originally the books were due to close today—but the Golf Tournament Editor has left the gate open for a few more days in the event school teams care to officially enter at the last minute. A beautiful silver loving cup has been provided for that competition, which will be presented the school winning it.

Cubs, Robins Set Attendance Record

CHICAGO, June 30.—(AP.)—Chicago's championship Cubs and Brooklyn's ambitious Robins had a heavy purse and a somewhat staggering list of attendance figures today to refute reports that interest in major league baseball is on the decline.

Approximately 155,000 fans watched the two National League pennant contending clubs in their four-game series which was concluded yesterday on Wrigley Field. The total is believed to be a new major league attendance record for a four-game series in the regular championship playing season.

All the spectators weren't of the paying variety, however, for 25,000 or more women were admitted free Friday, which is Ladies' Day at Wrigley Field. The attendance that day was 50,000. On Thursday, the crowd was estimated conservatively at 25,000, while the Saturday game drew 35,000 or more and the Sunday game drew an overflow throng of 45,000.

SMITHS WIN OVER SAINTS

By TOM BIRKS

The Jimmy Smiths just nosed out the St. Johns nine in a closely contested City League encounter yesterday, romping off with a 3-to-2 verdict. The winning run went across in the eighth inning.

The Oakland Community nine downed the Demore K. C. in an independent battle, 9 to 1. St. Clair Frogs topped the Lorena K. C., 8-7; Lineys defeated Linden Grove, 5-3; Portvue won over Thomas, 7-6; Swissvale Firemen defeated Meadville, 4-3; Dan Heeps upset New Eagle, 5-3, and Carapelucci defeated Garfield, 4 to 2 in other independent tussels.

In the Eastern Ohio League, the Mosley Drugs of New Philadelphia defeated Newark, 9 to 4.

Two big games will be staged in the West Penn League this evening. Wilmerding will appear at Homestead, meeting the Aces and the other battle finds Dormont meeting Universal at the Cement grounds.

Both games are postponed affairs. This is the week when the rained-out games are staged and plenty of them are carded.

The Aces are playing to the largest crowds in the sandlot world and it is only natural that with the famous Eddie Artman in the lineup the Airbrake fans will pack in the fans.

Henderson probably will work against Artman in this feature game. Manager Kummer, of Universal, is looking for a big crowd when Dormont goes to the Cement grounds.

Roy Kelly, 42, of Zanesville, was said by police to have confessed stabbing the ball player with a pocket knife.

LOCAL TURNERS WIN HONORS IN GAMES

By GEORGE H. SEIBEL.
Staff Correspondent.

BUFFALO, June 30.—The big turnfest is over, the winners have packed their wreaths in their bags and are bound homeward, weary but glad.

A number of contestants from the Pittsburgh district won honors. The Monaca Turners took sixth place in the second group, the Charleroi Turners won second rank in the third group; in the third group East Pittsburgh finished third, Allentown fourth, Monongahela eighth — a good showing for the Western Pennsylvanians.

The highest individual honor was taken by Walter Gaedecke, of East Pittsburgh, who won fourth place in the decathlon. J. J. Pockalnik, of Allentown, and Herman Schott, of Ambridge, also ranked high.

MAKE GOOD SHOWING

Richard Koch, of East Pittsburgh, was fourth in the middle grade, being first in apparatus exercises. Honors also were won by Rudolf Fuerle, Henry Helster, Henry Spittka and A. J. Werner, of East Pittsburgh; Dan Paterlini, of Charleroi; William Kramer and William Lazzari, of Monongahela; Carl Ginnel, Elbert Merz and Robert Rosengarth, of McKeesport; Fritz Gawande, of Homestead, and John V. Hicks, of Monaca.

OTHERS WIN HONORS

Irene Farkas, of East Pittsburgh; Sadie Puehinger, of Charleroi; G. Lee and Mary Bifano, of Johnstown, had high scores.

CUBS FIGHT WAY TO NATIONAL LEAGUE LEAD

BRUINS WIN DESPITE LOSS OF STARS

Associated Press.

A somewhat crippled Cub team lacking Kiesko, Hartnett and occasionally a few other regulars has been battling its way up through the National League and finally has wrested first place from the Brooklyn Robins. The Cubs have yet to be downed and evidence of the first game of their series with the Robins failed to cause it. They came back to win two games from Brandt's cast hitting machine yesterday by beating it twice, 7 to 1 and 4 to 1.

The Cubs have won 11 of the 14 games they have played with New York since the Yanks came to Chicago. Those victories have given them a full game ahead of the Robins. In addition they got a lift out of attendance in the series with Brooklyn, drawing 87,000 baseball fans to Wrigley Field to help the total of 140,000 for the series.

ROOT CHUCKS ROBINS

Brooklyn made it a sad series for Manager Wilbert Robinson's starters on Saturday, when Charley Root and Guy Bush took advantage of the wide open hitting Cubs offered.

The St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves had almost as much cause for jubilation as the Cubs yesterday although they could not alter the standing. The Cards poured up the full names of the New York Giants' wildest up only to get one of their blows by winning a pair of close decisions. The scores were 3 to 2 and 5 to 4, as Pepper Johnson and Bill Hallahan held the Giants to a total of 11 hits in the two games.

The Braves won both ends of a doubleheader from the Cincinnati Reds. They took the first 4 to 3 although out hit 15 to 6 and slugged out a 10 to 9 triumph in the second.

In the American League the New York Yankees and St. Louis Browns registered the big splits as the Yanks downed the Cleveland Indians 7 to 6 and 8 to 1 and the Browns walloped Washington 6 to 2. The Yanks' terrific hitting power of Chapman, Ruffing gained a tie with Washington for second place and the Browns tied Detroit for fifth, each gaining a game on its rival.

RUFFING WINS SIXTH

Ruffing finished the game for the Yanks and scored the deciding run himself to make it six straight victories since he came to New York.

The Philadelphia Athletics kept first place safe from any assaults by taking a single game in Detroit from the Tigers by a 6-to-5 count. Jimmy Foxx's twenty-second home run of the year, which kept him just ahead of Lou Gehrig, who hit his twenty-first for the Yankees, was the big feature with the final decision at the plate adding more excitement.

The Tigers scored two runs in the ninth and the fans thought they had a third but Umpire Guthrie said out instead of safe when Jimmy Shevlin tried to score.

The league's tail-enders Boston and Chicago divided a double header. The Red Sox made it eight straight over their Chicago rivals taking the first 10 to 6 but the White Sox reversed the decision, 2 to 1, in the second game as Ted Lyons bested Jack Russell to gain his eleventh victory of the season.

QUALIFY AT HIGHLAND

Caddies at the Highland Country Club stepped into line today when their qualifying test was conducted by Caddiemaster Charles Kaiser. Michael Scotti, 16, of 121 Beechmont avenue set the pace with a fine 84 and other leaders scored as follows:

Wilbur Bergs, 15, 87; Arthur Puckee, 16, 89; Henry Gruber, 15, 89; Charles Douglass, 14, 89; Warne Tredway, 15, 90; Frank Leitsch, 14, 91; John Martin, 16, 91; Pope Bellam, 14, 91.

In view of the fact that only the eight low scorers are regarded as qualifyers, Leitsch, Martin and Bellam, tied at 91, will play off for the last qualifying berth.

Sport Vignettes

It seems that Dunlapped the field in that national collegiate golf tournament at Oakmont . . . . Showing what a college education will do . . . . Al Mamaux well may lament his fate now that he has been named to manage the Newark Bears . . . . That's what a guy gets for living right . . . . With Albert is his old vaudeville teammate, Jess Petty, another erstwhile Pirate . . . . If they can't win ball games, Al and Jess can go into a song and dance, which is something, anyway . . . . The bantatils go at Ebensburg today . . . . What with the greyhounds racing and the Ebensburg track getting in its licks each season, don't be surprised if this state should go parimutuel in the not distant future . . . . And what harm could come from it, since the horse-racing fans play the game even if they are far removed from the scene of action? . . . . The boxing moguls had better get their sport back on its feet again soon, or counter-attractions will force it permanently into the background . . . . Eddie Speaks, the fellow who was to box Jack DeNeri in the second bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tonight, hails from Louisville and boasts quite a record, although he is virtually unknown in these parts . . . . He has boxed all around the country and his list of opponents sounds like a Who's Who of the featherweight and lightweight divisions . . . . It includes the names of Maxie Strub, Jimmy Reed, Johnny Sacco, Young Rudy, Tommy Williams, Chris Newton, Boots Amiley, Bobby Booth, Billy DeFoe and Harry Forbes, among others . . . . Rumor has it that George Godfrey's $10,000 purse for his bout with Primo Carnera at Philadelphia the other night was only a blind and that the reason he didn't squawk about having it cut in half by the boxing commission is because he was paid an additional $25,000 through a private agreement for his part in the bout, which drew around $170,000 . . . . Sounds plausible, at any rate . . . . The Toronto Boxing Commission is recommending to the Canadian Boxing Commission that it recognize Willie Davies, of Charlerei, as the flyweight champion of Canada and arrange a match for him with Midget Wolgast for the world title . . . . Willie fought his way through to the final round of the Canadian eliminations only to find that no opponent awaited him there . . . . The Sewickley stable of J. Frederic Byers, of Pittsburgh, and Kenneth Schley and Grafton Pyne, of New York, is being raced at the Arlington track, Chicago, which opened its meeting last Saturday and will continue until August 2 . . . . Two fine steeplechasers in the string are War Flier, a son of Man o' War, and Humanist, an imported thoroughbred son of Polirian and Quite Dark.—HARRY KECK.

LOCAL COLLEGE TENNIS STARS UNBEATEN

Pittsburgh college netdom boasts the unusual distinction this campaign of having flashed three youthful stars who have breezed through the entire varsity season without meeting single reversal. Dave O'Loughlin, Pitt veteran, is one of the unbeaten trio while Andy Smeaton, rangy leader of the Duquesne University court array, is another. Still a third local collegian, Eddie Jacobs, of the Panthers, displays a record marred only by default to Doloh Muehleisen, University of California ace, who was down 5-7, 1-2 with the Pittsburgher's service coming up, when a strained back moved the Blue and Gold star to call it an afternoon.

O'Loughlin has brought to an end three years of competition for Pitt during which span he has suffered but one defeat, an 11-9, 6-2 setback at the hands of Myer Dickinson, southpaw, in Dave's sophomore spring. Playing at No. 2 this season, the driving Pittite engaged in seven matches, two with Bethany, two with Carnegie Tech and one apiece with Washington and Jefferson, West Point and California. His Bison Tartan and President opponents were held to two games or less each while Brooks, West Point luminary, went under at 6-4, 6-1, and Martin McKee, captain of the mighty Californians, fought hard, only to fall by a 13-11, 6-2 tally.

TO BE DOCTOR

The sturdy former Westmont lad topped off an eminently satisfactory scholastic career a fortnight ago by receiving the degree of doctor of medicine. Along with his teammates, Jacobs and Irving Goodman, he battled in the national intercollegiate championships at the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford, Pa., last week and returns home to begin 12 months of labor as an interne at the Mercy Hospital.

Smeaton, crack No. 1 luminary of the Dukes, thumped no less than a dozen rivals in order to merit the laurels of outstanding individual racquet satellite of the Tri-State Conference. Although his team failed to annex the Conference titular honors, Andy clearly topped all enemy top men, including two highly skilled young men, Johnny Hecker, of Geneva, and Bill Clarke, of Westminster. The Bluffite dropped only two sets in the course of his quite campaign, one of these being to Clarke and the other to Koma, unorthodox Grove City performer, whom Andy had overwhelmed, 6-0, 6-1, at Grove City a couple of days earlier.

IN INTERCOLLEGIATES

ALLISON TOPS COCHET; LOTT BEATEN

By F. A. WRAY,
International News Service.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 30.—Wilmer Allison, youthful star from Austin, Tex., battered his way into tennis immortality today by eliminating Henri Cochet, defending champion, in straight sets in the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon tennis championships. The score was 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

A few minutes after Allison had downed the brilliant Frenchman in one of the most spectacular matches in the history of Wimbledon, John Doeg, of Santa Monica, Cal., blasted his way into the semi-finals by eliminating his own countryman, Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4.

A record mid-tournament crowd, sat under a broiling sun and cheered Allison to the echo when he won his way to the semi-finals by defeating the champion, whom many expert observers had picked to retain his title.

It was a conflict of youth against experience. The youth, Allison, had superb form, perfect poise and devastating strength. Cochet, stripped of his genius which won him the title of the world's greatest player, had next to nothing. Frequent errors, miscalculations, mis-timing, wildness and lack of control pushed him down to defeat before the onslaught of the youthful American star, thus clearing the way for possible complete American domination of this section of the tournament.

Bill Tilden, forced into the semi-finals along with Allison and Doeg, defeating J. C. Gregory, sturdy English player, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3.

Another American victory came when Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss Elizabeth Ryan defeated Mrs. A. D. Stocks and Mrs. L. G. Owen, of England, 6-1, 6-3, in the women's doubles.

Making up in some measure for the stunning defeat of Cochet, youthful Jean Borotra, of France, reached the semi-finals by defeating George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Palfrey, young Boston player, and Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., won in mixed doubles from J. Grandgrillot and Mlle. S. Barbier, of France, 6-2, 6-3.

Mme. Henrotin and Jacques Brugnon, of France, defeated E. O. Mather, American Rhodes Scholar from Texas, and Mrs. H. E. Haylock, England, 6-4, 6-3.

DARK HORSE WINS TITLE

PLAY CONSERVATIVE

As intimated above, the Hazeltine-Rudisill affair was rather a weary display. Both performers were excellent in their ultra-conservative styles of play, but unfortunately neither of these styles was calculated to give the gallery much of a thrill. Neither hit hard and neither hit deeply. The exchanges were long but seldom sharply vicorous. Hazeltine worked his fine, tireless backhand overtime and occasionally, when pulled to the net, volleyed with a deadly precision that caused one to wonder why he didn't go up oftener.

Rudisill was almost, but not quite, as steady as Hazeltine. As a consequence, it was usually he who registered the errors on vital points. He was not as patient as his opponent and frequently waved nervous and lashed out to finish off the rally without first working up an opening. Had he been able to play the net well, he might have won, but in the back court he hadn't a chance.

REED, HICKS STRONG

The doubles joust was quite the reverse of the singles. Reed and Hicks were wobbly and prone to err in set one, which went to Baur and Ramsay in short order. But in stanza two the Edgewood pair struck true stride. Never before had a Pittsburgh audience beheld Reed as he was in those last three sets yesterday. Overhead he was terrific, his volleys clattered the turf, his drives sought out sideline and center holes that left the opposition gasping. It was big league tennis and no mistake.

The Edgewoodmen sailed through sets two and three in dazzling fashion, their lone pauses coming in a trio of Ramsay service games. They returned after the intermission and resumed the parade to bump Baur's delivery for a 3-0 lead. Here, however, the enemy reorted definitely to the air and for a brief span, the Reed-Hicks barrier attack sagged badly. But with the count 4-3 against them, the Suburbanites spurted to the fore on 3 more.

MISS JARVIS WINS

Miss Jarvis had an exceedingly close call in her quest of the Honus Wagner Cup, emblematic of women's singles honors. Miss Anderson, quite unknown locally, hurled surprise and consternation into the ranks of home rooters by showing all-around strength and great consistency to cop set one quickly at 6-3 and to lead at 4-1 and later 5-3 in the second. But the strain of impending success proved too great for her and she fell into misplays as the more experienced Sewickley star tightened the reins and won, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2.

Prior to the men's doubles final, Baur and Ramsay hung up semi-final win over Al Bialas and Drummond Chantler, East End veterans, 6-3, 6-0, while Reed and Hicks garnered 6-3, 6-4 verdict over the rather erratic John O'Loughlin-Dr. Billy McElroy pair.

on the right side of the ledger. They have won six games and lost four, with four remaining to be played before the Cubs come to town for the big Fourth of July series.

The Bucs have gone through six straight games up to today without being forced to change pitchers, the longest stretch of that kind they have enjoyed this season. They have been playing snappy ball behind the improved slab work, and with Lloyd Waner soon to return to the lineup they bid fair to settle into a stride that will assure a creditable finish.

Al Mamaux

THE SHOWING OF Al Mamaux, as manager of the Newark club in the International League, to which post he has been appointed as Tris Speaker's successor, will be watched with particular interest by the fans of the Pittsburgh district, where the pitcher started his career. After winning 42 games for the Pirates in 1915 and 1916, Mamaux won only two out of 12 in 1917, and when traded with Burleigh Grimes and Chuck Ward to Brooklyn for Casey Stengel and George Cutshaw he was looked upon generally as a player who couldn't manage even himself, much less a ball club. But Al was only a kid then. Since drifting back to the minors he has settled down into one of the steadiest and most successful hurlers in the smaller leagues, and now, at the age of 36, he may have the ripe judgment required for the capable handling of a team. Mamaux is the second new manager appointed in the International League within a short time. Jimmy Cooney was named leader of the Buffalo club recently when Bill Clymer resigned.

COLLEGE STARS ENTER TOURNEY

Quite a number of racqueters of real ability and note are swinging into line for competition in the Sun-Telegraph revival of the Pittsburgh public parks tennis championships, scheduled to get under way two weeks from today on the courts of Schenley, Highland, Olympia, Frick, West and Riverview Parks. With some three-score contestants already entered upon the roster, the list grows larger numerically and stronger in point of skill day by day as the inaugural approaches.

Three outstanding college netmen will cavort in the Schenley milling, Irving Goodman, brilliant little Pitt performer, has indicated intention to compete. Goodman flashed splendidly in the Pitt-California doubles early this month and followed up by journeying eastward to try his luck in the Maryland state, Delaware state and national intercollegiate tournaments in all of which he acquitted himself with credit and added to his skill and experience. His Panther confrere, Alex Blumberger, is another accomplished contender, while southpaw Frank Bruids will seek to polish off high-ly impressive showing in the Western Pennsylvania championships by landing municipal laurels and the right to represent Pittsburgh at the national public parks tourney in Washington, D. C., as guest of the Sun-Telegraph.

Joe O'Connor, brother of the noted Duke aces, Jimmy and Dick, will aim at honors in Highland Park, while the Beilstein boys, Ralph and Karl, who shone in previous Pittsburgh parks tournaments, will once more go after trophies at West. Another promising entrant is young Ed Artzberger, carded to joust at Olympia, and Frick and Riverview parks will boast such delegates as Emil Stanker, Bob Callen, Ed Huff and Louis Berndle.

Mrs. Jean Artzberger is the best known luminary in the women's division to date. She will play at Olympia. Marion Klein is a clever Schenley lass and Ruth Staiger will be heard from at Riverview.

Turn of Year Should Bring Turning Point

By B. C. FORBES

IT IS MY humble opinion that:

Both retail and wholesale trade will almost immediately begin to improve.

Tariff and other political issues will be relegated to the background.

Most stock quotations will perform a sudden, and perhaps sensational, about face, causing consternation among the variegated ranks of the shorts.

When the recovery has gone far enough to inspire general confidence, there will be a very extensive purchasing of stocks by investors and also speculators.

The public's imagination has not been fired by bonds notwithstanding all that has overtaken stocks and notwithstanding the most unrenumerative call and time money rates ruling in Wall Street—domestic bonds are within a fraction of their low quotations for the year.

WHILE IT IS NOT possible to prove by actual statistics that already mild betterment is making its appearance, the fact is that here and there one now encounters more encouraging developments. Statistics are nearly all from one week to several weeks late. Within the last few days, for example, the newspapers have been featuring how the railroads fared in May, how employment fluctuated then, what our foreign trade figures for that month signify, etc. Admittedly, May was a poor month.

The first half of June also brought little encouragement. It may be said on the whole, the second half did little more than hold its own. But when the returns come in it is tolerably certain, in my judgment, that the end of June will be found to have brought some modest increase in activity in a majority of directions.

THE ACCEPTED prognostication is that "July and August cannot be expected to bring more than the customary summer dullness."

Well, they may—or they may not.

Don't forget that for the last nine months buying by a great majority of American families has been kept down to the lowest possible minimum. Don't forget, either, that things wear out. The contraction in actual consumption has been much less than the contraction in ordering. Therefore, the nation's supply of possessions has been very appreciably reduced.

Old automobiles cannot be kept going forever. Furniture wears out sooner or later. Rugs and carpets wear out sooner rather than later. Buildings cannot be neglected indefinitely without becoming impossibly dilapidated.

So, it might be better not to be too cocksure that the summer months cannot possibly bring any recovery whatsoever in trade and industry.

Whether the market will perform a somersault during the summer or whether there will be no emphatic change until later in the year, no mortal can foretell. But it is not illogical to reason that with money rates in Wall Street less than half the yield on sound securities, the latter will in time show very substantial improvement. Brokers' loans last week dropped $271,000,000 bringing them within $88,000,000 of the lowest figure touched after the November panic.

IN SHORT deflation would seem to have been carried very far throughout the country as well as in Wall Street. Remember that the tide doesn't always flow in one direction.

Those who participated in the July 1 shower of dividend and interest checks can re-invest on this occasion with every confidence.

Westinghouse Gets Large Navy Order

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has received an order amounting to approximately $1,500,000 from the Navy Department for propelling and condensing machinery for the new Washington treaty cruisers.

Westinghouse also received an order from the Navy Department for equipment of the three vessels with the recently developed Westinghouse propeller-type blowers for furnishing air under pressure to the oil-burning firerooms.

TRADE SLUMP HURTS HOOVER PRESTIGE

President Made Victim of Unwarranted Claim of Party for Previous Boom

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Unquestionably the continuation of business recession, which has been dramatized in stock market weakness, has militated against the prestige of Herbert Clark Hoover.

It is smart nowadays to rap the President. He has become the symbol for wrath because economic conditions are as they are. As a matter of fact, what presidents have done or abstained from doing in the past had little to do with the gradual unfolding of successive business cycles, which respond primarily to economic, not political, factors. In being blamed for conditions over which he has little or no control, Mr. Hoover is a victim of the false and unwarranted claim of his party for responsibility for the earlier prosperity.

WORKS BOTH WAYS

If the Republican party meted out prosperity prior to last summer, then it and Mr. Hoover can justly be blamed for bringing on depression now. When the earlier fallacious claim was made, President Hoover, it is true, raised no finger to correct the wrong impression. As a matter of fact in his campaign speeches he helped to spread the notion that somehow or other business prosperity was contingent on Republican rule. Inasmuch as the Smithsonian Institution at Washington was functioning during the cycle of prosperity, it could have almost as justly taken credit for it.

But the linking of politics with business works both ways, and now Mr. Hoover's prestige is suffering from the public confusion of ideas. As a matter of fact, the current recession is nearly worldwide in character and is the headache which followed the earlier champagne spree of speculative and overexploited expansion. It has its counterpart in Japan, in Australia, in Canada, in the Argentine, in Germany, Great Britain and elsewhere, yet each time the stock ticker in Wall Street records another setback some one blames Mr. Hoover.

At the moment Mr. Hoover's political stock is quoted at panic prices, but it should recover somewhat before the election of 1932 when and if business revives sufficiently in the interim. As for the fall congressional election, this year, Wall Street observers take it for granted that the opposition party will make gains. The probability of political changes is one of the factors which checks confidence in the near term outlook.

CONFERENCES FRUITFUL

What is the truth about Mr. Hoover? In the first place, the naive assumption that he is responsible for recession is unwarranted.

The second question is whether he has done all that he could have done to mitigate the setback. This issue is one of opinion, on which the doctors are likely to disagree. Mr. Hoover in November summoned the first 10 men of industry to the White House for a series of economic conferences, which helped for a time to allay public fears about prospects. As a matter of fact, they helped to generate unduly optimistic expectations about business prospects, which were reflected in the stock market rise from the December low point to April. The speculative rise proved premature, and resulted in excesses which were followed by a secondary reaction which more than wiped out the gains.

The Hoover conferences were fruitful and suggestive, yet they suffered in popular esteem from excessive ballyhoo. Where the delegate statistician was needed, the rough and ready press agent was substituted. Moreover, though the action seemed prompt, the President acted after the event, instead of before. If a truly successful experiment in modifying the business cycle is to be made, it must start early when a new situation is in the making. Business had reached its summit in June, 1929, and the President did not act until November, after the nature of the economic situation had been disclosed in the stock market debacle.

WELL-CONSIDERED MOVE

But apart from the delay and the excessive ballyhoo, the President's effort to enlist the active co-operation of business leaders was a well-considered move. Mr. Hoover in his own mind never thought he could do more than flatten out the curve of business somewhat. He early recognized the futility of stimulating the production of consumable goods, which would be piled up on dealers' shelves. His main effort was to help augment the creation of capital goods—permanent corporate and public improvements—during the period of economic transition, in order to give as much employment to labor as was possible. The President received many pledges, some of which were fulfilled. The railroad executives kept their word, and, in doing so, exaggerated the adverse character of their recent financial reports. The public utilities and developers of public works were also active. Industry was more cautious.

Many feel, however, that since the formation at the suggestion of the President last December of the business survey conference the chief executive has failed to follow through. Mr. Hoover's closest confidantes had been led to expect that a permanent agency representing a coalition between government and business would be created to carry on the work of intelligently seeking to modify the wide swings of the business cycle.

HOW'S BUSINESS?

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Department Store Sales Satisfactory

Department store sales throughout the United States during the first five months of 1930 are compared with the same periods of the past nine years. Index used, with the average month of 1923-1925 equaling 100. Source: Federal Reserve Board.

Department store sales are a reliable index of general retail trade. This year they equal or exceed all past years, excepting, of course, 1929. This analysis is based on reports from about 525 stores in 225 cities, with annual sales totaling more than $2,000,000,000.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Advance | Local Market Narrow

MARKET SHOWS ADVANCES ALL ALONG LINE

Short Covering Appears To Be Dominant Factor; Demand Light; Steel Up

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—The stock market concluded the first half of the critical year of 1930 with January hopes wholly unrealized, with but indications of having completed another period of drastic deflation, which many traders were inclined to feel believe had at last carried the general level of share prices to rock bottom.

Trading was extremely dull, but with absence of further liquidation shorts were disposed to cover their commitments and pulled shares up a few points. Short-selling had been completed there was nevertheless little disposition to retrieve aggressive operations in the advance.

MUST TEST LEVELS

Before any large scale resumption of buying is apparently expected, important traders state that it will be necessary thoroughly to test present levels after Wall street's premature conclusion that a turn had come. Factors militating against a steadily rising market at this time are indicated as the second quarter earnings statements which will appear shortly and the summer slump in industry. Furthermore commodity prices have yet to show conclusive signs of stability and reductions of retail prices to conform with the lower level of wholesale quotations would be likely to hold the stock market in check.

Wall Street regards as the most favorable factor in sight the reinvestment demand expected to arise from the huge outflow of interest and dividend checks during the next few days. The amount thus to be made available is variously estimated from $750,000,000 to more than $1,000,000,000. While much of this sum may find its way into bonds it is felt that a strong bond market would pave the way for higher prices for stocks. Furthermore foreign investment funds, some of which were withdrawn during the recent decline, appear slowly to be returning.

Call money, having touched 1½ per cent last week, renewed at 2 today, and rose to 3 for the first time in a fortnight. But this was regarded as the result of temporary withdrawals to meet the mid-year settlement requirements.

Week-end news was meager. The Federal Reserve Board's report on May department store sales showed a reduction of only 2 per cent as against a drop of 3 per cent for the first five months.

BARNES REPORTS

Julius H. Barnes, chairman of President Hoover's business survey council, offered a factual report on business conditions without comment or interpretation. Gains in savings bank deposits and fairly active retail trade were pleasing items in the report.

Shares rising 2 to more than 3 points included American Telephone, Pennsylvania Railroad, U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric, Atchison, National Biscuit, American Water Works, Liggett and Myers and Consolidated Gas. Shares rising 3 to 6 included American Tobacco B, Eastman, Macy, Auburn, Worthington, Air Reduction, Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Allied Chemical and Westinghouse. Electric. Such volatile issues as Case and Ingersoll Rand made even wider gains.

Will Sell Wyoming Oil and Gas Leases

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The sale of oil and gas leases on approximately 1,320 acres of land in Park County, Wyo., in the designated structures of Elk Butte and Wiley oil fields and on what is generally known as the Oregon basin field, will be held in the office of the registrar of local land office at Cheyenne, Wyo., on August 8, the Department of the Interior states. The purpose of the sale is to offset drainage of adjacent lands.

Closed 2⅛ to 2¼d lower.

Economic Factors Favor Trade Revival

NEW YORK, June 30.—Three factors are cited by Pirnie, Stevens & Company, Inc., national investment house, as spreading business improvement at this time, while only nine are actually retarding business. The favorable factors are shown to be as follows: dollar purchasing power is higher, employment is gaining, wages are higher, living costs are lower, building is gaining, gold imports continue heavy, copper inventories are down, retail trade is increasing, industrial output is increasing, chain store sales are increasing, money rates are low, bond prices are higher, and electrical consumption is increasing.

On the "debit" side of this ledger account of business conditions are cited the following: Lower farm prices, commodity prices at low levels, carloadings have decreased, wholesale trade has declined, new financing is smaller, stock prices are lower, gains in steel are slower and steel prices are lower, while failures have been more numerous.

CHICAGO STOCKS

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 30.—Cotton opened steady, today at unchanged prices to 6 decline or 11 points under scattered selling and rallied 6 points on trade and buying by Wall Street interests, which might be a forecast for showers in the eastern belt.

Private wire light forecast while there was good buying in the neighborhood steady, 10 to 11 advance, July and 11.05; but the market turned unsettled during the first half hour and the July sold off to 10.87 on realizing of the large March steel goods houses reports that their sales of cotton goods for the first half of June were 50 per cent larger than last May business.

Trading was quiet later in the morning, the outlook for rather unsettled weather with showers in some parts of the South and the Central states sufficient to bring out selling of considerable size after easing off to 10.85 for July and 11.03 for the new October contract, or about 5 to 10 points net lower than yesterday's close, when the market closed steady at 2 points advance.

Buying Spotty in Electrical Markets

NEW YORK, June 30.—The closing week of June finds activity in the nation's electrical equipment markets still marking time, Electrical World reports. Business, for the most part, is spotty and buying is principally for routine requirements. Inquiries are numerous but the difficulty seems to be in translating them into actual orders.

Equipment demand in the Eastern area is irregular, with large companies getting the bulk of committments and smaller producers reporting declines in sales. Electric railway equipment bookings for the week were in encouraging volume and central-station demand is active.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Boss!" said "Fat" Sheridan.

He had come into the Arcade Eatery for his mid afternoon feed. Fat was one of those five meals a day lads.

"I see him," Sam admitted.

Make it [illegible] his arm and he sniffed [illegible] sure easy. I [illegible]

Didn't get th' new [illegible]

Skull asked.

Sam raised [illegible] Forget that [illegible]

They discussed [illegible] letting a fly [illegible] with cases of stiff [illegible] er than a [illegible] Now and then Fat [illegible] new [illegible] little Sam [illegible] it's [illegible]

But Skull Mulligan simply [illegible]

He had decided at the time he first saw her that nothing that she was [illegible] the subject of a "flame" he desired, and that he would certainly manage to make her before many weeks had passed.

There were others who gave considerable thought to Nora Harris, quite a number of them.

Tim Cavanaugh, on the force, thought a great deal about Nora. And Nora liked Tim. She liked the force, by the [illegible] Her father and her three brothers who were all Harkins.

Nora had been away at school for some time and being independent by nature decided to go to work when she got home. She got the cashier's job in the Arcade Eatery because her aunt owned the place.

Nora's fame was not confined to that district. But she would have attracted attention anywhere for that matter. Sam Kennard, middle right, was another chap who admired Nora—and Nora liked Sam, too because he was set up like a juvenile Hercules.

The Professor

A good many of the boys acquaintances of her brothers dropped over to see the boys just because they liked to look at Nora. They were nice "regular guys," too steel-workers and the like—boys who used their muscles and could lay a heavy hand on an enemy jaw.

Then there was Arthur Lewis.

Arthur was thoroughly convinced that Nora Harris was the one and the only girl in existence worth two thoughts. She got a very great many of his thoughts. Arthur had met her at Maplehurst, where the convent school was located, and where he was visiting his people.

There was nothing bashful about Arthur. On the very few occasions, after he had been introduced, when he could speak with Nora alone, he told her exactly how he felt about her.

He told her when she asked him that he was a teacher in a college.

"Oh," said Nora, "how nice—a college professor!"

"Some," Arthur admitted, "might call it that. But all that counts with me, Nora, is you. I'm crazy about you."

Nora laughed.

She had a nice kind heart. She wouldn't hurt anyone's feelings, if possible, so she just laughed. Mr. Arthur Lewis would have been very much downcast had he known Nora's thoughts concerning him.

"Man, school-teacher," she was thinking. "What a sissy job that is! When I get ready to say 'yes I do' it won't be to any cute little dress-up man school teacher!"

Arthur saw Nora twice after that before she went home. Each time he told her how beautiful she was, how wonderful she was and how, all in good time, he was going to make her Mrs. Arthur Lewis.

"Don't be silly, nice boy—run along," had been her reply to that.

Arthur came into the city often from the suburban college. He dropped into the Arcade Eatery and saw Nora in the cage. He brightened up at once. He was all smiles. Of late he had been worrying because he had lost track of this only girl in the world, so far as he was concerned.

Arthur knew better than to stand at the cashier's cage for very long and chat, it would endanger her job and also annoy her.

Accompanies Her Home

He had asked his waitress what the cashier's hours were, and because he had tipped her well, she had told him, adding: "If you think you can date her, you're crazy."

Arthur was on hand when Nora got through. He insisted on seeing her home.

Nora was agreeable. Arthur was a really nice boy to her. It her type couldn't ever be her idea of a husband, but there was no harm in being nice to him.

He came in and chatted a few moments and went his way, explaining that he had to get back to college as he had some late classes.

Mulligan Tricks Nora

A month in the cashier's cage at the Arcade Eatery was enough for Nora that it was for want of a life for a girl like herself.

Now and then Skull Mulligan dropped in to hand Pat a tip as to his right work with the nags. He always gave Nora a smile which made him look more than ever like a gorilla. Nora smiled and nodded as she always did to all of them and she loved that this ugly looking chap was certainly one big handsome brute of a chap so far as physique went.

He would have been the world's wisest man if he had been as well equipped with brains as with muscles.

"Your brother Mike is boss of th' stevedores down on Pier H, ain't he?" Skull asked once.

Nora admitted it.

"Swell guy. I know him," said Mulligan.

Mulligan did know him as did many others.

One Saturday Skull Mulligan hurried into the Eatery and said to Nora, "Your brother was smashed bad up the road—we got him into a house—he was on his way to visit his Aunt Bella in Maplehurst. Hop in my bus, kid, and I'll run you up to him—they got a doctor on th' way now."

Not 10 minutes later Nora's brother Mike dropped in to see h[illegible]. He went pretty white when he was told the line Skull Mulligan had handed Nora and how she had gone to ride with him.

It was well out in the country that Mulligan turned in at a deserted house. It was just about dark then. Nora became frightened all of a sudden. If her brother was in there hurt and a doctor was there, where were the lights?

She asked that question and Mulligan told her to come on and they'd see—perhaps something was wrong with the lights.

Arthur Proves Self

And all this time Mike Harris was with his friend, Bat Griffith, in his taxi breaking speed laws and passing stop signals in an effort to overtake Skull Mulligan. He had stopped only long enough to pick up [illegible]er Joe.

"Off of I'll drill you!" Skull growled.

And just then the taxi arrived. Mike, Joe and Bat piling out. They were just in time to see the chap in shorts sock Skull Mulligan for a backward flip and out.

Brothers Mike and Joe, with Bat, rushed up. The chap in shorts thought they were with the party he knocked out.

"Run, Nora, run down the road and get away!" shouted the chap in shorts, and he turned and socked Mike and Joe, one, two, just like that.

"Let me," said Arthur, "I'm going to marry Nora, you know, so it's my duty."

Skull Mulligan turned to run, tripped and fell.

"Can't sock a man when he is down," Arthur said, "but you can kick him!"

When he came trotting back, he explained that the college where he taught was just over the slope.

"Me, oh, I teach boxing," said Arthur Lewis.

"Listen," she said, "he said a mouthful a while ago, and he's right—he is sure going to marry me."

MY TEARS HAVE WASHED AWAY A LOT OF EYE LASH COSMETIC SINCE THE DAY I CAME HERE A BRIDE! AND IT HAS TAKEN PLENTY OF UP-STICK TO KEEP A SMILE PAINTED ON MY FACE!
I WAS A SHOW GIRL—NOT GOOD ENOUGH TO MARRY A COLE BECAUSE I SHOWED MY FACE IN THE CHORUS! ALL THE COLES WANTED TO SEE WERE MY HEELS! DISAPPEARING!
I THOUGHT MY HUSBAND HAD A MIND OF HIS OWN! BUT WHERE THERE'S A WILL, THERE'S A WAY TO CHANGE IT! AND HE DIDN'T WANT TO BE DISINHERITED! SO HE LOVED ME WITH ALL HIS HEART AND LEFT ME WITH ALL HIS MIGHT!
AH! MY ADORING HUSBAND AND MY DEVOTED FATHER-IN-LAW! ELLA WILL SOON BE HERE WITH MY BABY! THEN I'LL FACE THEM! I KICKED FOR A LIVING IN THE CHORUS, AND NOW I'LL KICK FOR THE SAME THING IN A DIFFERENT WAY!

LULLABY

You've no cause to raise the roof!
Stomach full of Class A milk,
Coverlets of fluff and silk,
There's no sense in all this squalling,
Violent screaming, catch-breath bawling!
When you're older, without doubt,
You'll have lots to squawk about—
But, just now, my darling ducky
You are nothing less than lucky—
Can it be that your decision
Is a sort of television?
Can you sense what's bound-to-be
You know papa's troubles, maybe?
Then cry harder, louder, baby!

Water Front Plans

River Banks Are Sorely in Need of Improvement.

Nothing would contribute more to the scenic attractiveness of the city than to beautify the water front. In undertaking to get this improvement for Pittsburgh the Chamber of Commerce has committed itself to an enterprise that should arouse the enthusiasm of all who have a shred of civic pride.

We should take a leaf from the book of European cities—Paris, London or Prague, for example. Their rivers are hemmed in by neat walls or bordered by trees, parkways and attractive boulevards. Many an Old World community not one-tenth as prosperous as Pittsburgh or as well able to pay the expense has a beautiful water front that makes the Pittsburgh visitor ashamed of his own town.

There was a time, of course, when our river banks were occupied by mills and railroads, which pre-empted the sites in the early days of the city. Many of the mills have been removed, however, and there is no reason why the sites should not be beautified now.

The land around the Point is in specially bad condition. It is a disgrace that this historic spot, hallowed by the struggle that occurred there between the French and Indians on one side and the British and American Colonials on the other, should have been allowed to fall into such disreputable condition.

The area in the immediate vicinity of the old Exposition buildings is positively filthy with rubbish. The land under the Duquesne way ramp is a hangout for tramps. Old papers, tin cans, fragments of food and filth litter the place, and it is necessary to pass this malodorous hole to reach the tiny little patch of park that the city maintains.

The Point and its environs should be cleaned up without further delay. Then let the wharves be beautified. Great preliminary improvement could be effected with little expense. The main thing at first is to get rid of the trash, and see that the water front is not used as a dumping place for refuse.

First Aid Competition For Scouts Is Arranged

Vacation days for the juvenile portion of society, as represented by the Boy Scouts, are not to be all sport. Allegheny County Council West has arranged for pleasures, including a boat ride, a day at Forbes Field and a treasure hunt, but there also will be a first aid contest. This, to be held July 26 on Carnegie Tech campus, will bring competition in which 100 teams of six boys each are expected to participate. Following the course of last year, each team will be sponsored by a company, industry or individual.

This is no mere play and the boys who engage in it are to be commended. To compete, the boys must take specialized training which is in addition to the first aid instruction they receive in their routine scout activities. To come out on top the boys will have to practice diligently, giving time that is snatched from the golden vacation hours. Surely that is a sacrifice for which the boys should be praised.

The Boy Scout is an admirable lad. His effort to be of service has been manifested on numerous occasions. And the training he gets now should serve to increase the percentage of safety-minded in the community of the future.

Mr. Pennington Leaves With Real Promotion

Commander John D. Pennington is preparing to leave Pittsburgh for Philadelphia, where he will be quartered as director of prohibition enforcement for the states of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

As prohibition administrator here, Mr. Pennington made an enviable record. In fact, it has been suspected that it was too good to suit some, who interested themselves unsuccessfully in attempting to have him "promoted" some time ago. Now that promotion has come to him in such a way that he still will have an eye on Pittsburgh, he will carry with him congratulations of decent people that his qualifications for a difficult job have been officially recognized.

Conference Against Drug Evil Should Be Called

Now is the time for all the countries of the western hemisphere to unite in an aggressive warfare to stop the illicit flow of habit-forming drugs from overseas.

With the signing of the Porter bill for the more effective enforcement of anti-narcotic laws, the way is clear for this country to join with Canada and Mexico in sponsoring a Pan-American conference on the control of narcotics.

To such a conference the governments of this hemisphere should be invited to send as delegates those of their officials charged with the enforcement of anti-narcotic laws.

The agenda of such a conference should include uniform laws for the control of narcotics, uniform regulations for enforcing such laws, uniform penalties for those who violate them, and ways and means of obtaining closer co-operation between all the governments of this hemisphere to prevent drug smuggling and to apprehend and punish drug smugglers.

A Pan-American conference on the control of narcotics would afford all the nations of the western hemisphere an opportunity to demonstrate the power of Pan-America united in support of a great cause.

If the United States will invite the co-operation of Canada and Mexico in calling such a conference, she will probably get it.

And if these three countries take the lead in sponsoring such a conference, all of their neighbors will doubtless be glad to help them in making the conference a success.

Here is a chance to practice that co-operation among neighboring nations in a common cause of which the world hears so much and sees so little.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Bulling Around Spain

"Bugs" Baer

Sid's last bull was cross-eyed and turned out to be a Sunday driver. And you know how they turn out.

Sid was all set delightfully to stab the bull like a beetle in a museum. But the boy friend didn't go where he was looking.

Sid was looking at the cross-eyed cattle. But he didn't know that a bull with twisted lamps is twice as dangerous as one with correct bi-focals.

The bull acted as if he had a friend among the afficonadas, which is Spanish for fans. He was looking at Sid all the time in a very roguish manner.

There was nothing for Sid to do but to ankle away from there. The afficonadas came to a slow boil of Spanish indignation and threw seat cushions at Sid.

Sid kept stepping around the arena because he didn't think the banjo-eyed quadruped was chasing him at all. He thought it was another fellow.

Sid kept tagging all the bases. But the bull was the only one that scored.

The battle was strictly a rear-action skirmish all the way. Playing tag with a cross-eyed bull is no fun because it's never your turn to chase him.

Sid then got tired of winning the race at every other jump and jabbed the bull with a stiletto. But the bull had no table manners. It rolled off Sid's knife.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBING

By Archibald Henderson

A great to do is made over reaching North or South Pole, whether by foot, dirigible or airplane. Yet there are many prizes awaiting the courageous and hardy mountain climber. A technic of great efficiency has been developed for Alpine climbing. Yet few realize what a comparatively mild feat is that of scaling Alpine peaks when set over against the truly herculean feat of conquering the mighty ice-clad peaks of the Himalays.

Mt. Everest is known to be the highest peak in the world. But Kanchanjanga, the second highest peak, is lower than Mt. Everest by less than 1,000 feet. From an old Indian survey, this mighty elevation was calculated to be 28,146 feet above sea level. But a recalculation, made in 1905, showed its altitude to be even greater—namely, 28,225 feet. This last figure, based on the "most accurate observations," shows that Kanchanjanga is only 916 feet lower than the crest of Everest itself.

The Alps are dwarfed by the towering peaks of the Himalayas. Mount Blanc is little more than half the height of Everest. Kilimanjaro, highest peak of Africa, and Mount McKinley, highest peak of North America, would rank as minor peaks in the Sikkim Himalayas, and even Aconcagua, the monarch of the Andes, rises only to the altitude of the famous North Col on Everest.

The magnitude of the adventure of assaulting the Himalayas is scarcely realized by the great public of the world. The Himalayas, meaning the "abode of snow," constitute a titanic mountain range, stretching for 2,000 miles across Asia. This vast system comprises, as its greatest triumphs, 75 peaks each more than 24,000 feet in height. Yet not a single one has been "subdued by any man who has come back to tell the story." Nor is it known that any man ever reached the summit of a single one of these towering titans.

In tackling one of the great peaks the most careful and scientific preparation has to be made. One must be prepared to encounter "polar conditions," both in the matter of ice and snow and in terrific storms and blizzards.

One must attack them as Peary, Scott and Amundsen attacked the poles. An elaborate line of communication, with base depots and camps at suitable intervals, is a prime essential for success.

In the second place, the physical task of climbing, in conjunction with the difficulty and pain of breathing, makes it necessary to have a large auxiliary force. The climbers must be spared the exhausting exertion of laying the base line of camps.

Thirdly, it has been discovered that only "slow and steady" effort, rather than dash and speed, promise success. Acclimation takes time, but this is the promising means by which the climber can acquire the indispensable adaptation to his stupendous task.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Consider Jane. Jane's one of our biggest Twentieth Century problems—though you'd never guess it to see her. Pretty, smart, brown-eyed girl of 24—you've known thousands like her. Stenoged steady until she married Jim last year. Now she's living in a cute one-room-'n-kitchenette apartment and doing—

"Keeping house," Jane would say. But to Jane's mother that answer would be a joke. Looking back 30 years, Jane's mother remembers endless hours over a stove, putting up gallons of preserves, jellies, pickles, jam. And other endless hours over a sewing machine, turning out all the clothes the family wore. Where was she to get her "sauce" for dessert if she didn't put it up? Canned stuff in the stores? Baked stuff in the bakeries? Yes, but any wife who bought them was considered hopelessly shiftless and extravagant. As for "ready made" clothing, it was just beginning to come in. Poorly made, badly fitting things at best, and, according to the standards of that time, criminally costly. Woe betide the woman who fed or dressed her family with "boughten" goods!"

Drudgery? Perhaps. But those toiling women had an important place in the civic life. They knew the pride and respect that go with creative craftsmanship. Moreover, they were too busy to get into mischief. Which, women being women, is a considerable point.

That's what "keeping house" meant to Jane's mother. To Jane it means heating up a can of soup and buying dresses for herself and shirts for Jim at some sale. For, of course, Jane can neither sew nor cook. How's a girl going to learn such things when she goes straight into an office from Hi? And even suppose she does learn—where is she going to store mother's huge preserves in her tiny apartment? And why sew when it's cheaper to buy ready made?

So Bride Jane, in 1930, neither cooks nor sews and three-quarters of our American business prosperity is based on the fact that she doesn't. Which would seem to be satisfactory to all, but here's the trick:

If Levinson and Company make Jane's clothes and Brown and Jones supply her table, WHAT'S GOING TO HAPPEN TO JANE HERSELF? As a stenographer, she was a producer and a busy citizen. But as a bride—how does Jane rate? What's she going to do after her scant morning hour of "picking up?"

Theoretically, Jane is going to use her idle time to improve herself. She's going to read good books, attend lectures, perhaps take up some social service. Actually, she rarely does any of these things. She spends her days gossiping across the hall, over the phone . . . window shopping . . . reading romantic trash . . . hanging around hotel lobbies, bridge tables, beauty parlors. In short, Jane, having left her job and married, becomes a loafer, at least until the babies come. And the babies are usually a long time coming. Jane's a decent kid at heart. But idleness will ruin the best heart on earth. She will grow restless, discontented, envious of richer wives, begin to wonder how life would have been if she'd married the other fellow—any other fellow.

Why are our divorce calendars overcrowded? That's why. We've made a lot of money by taking the sigh out of domestic science. But what have we done to Jane?

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

There was a sick man that wasn't very sick, but just imagined he was awful sick. He was one of these guys that worries about himself a lot. He was stingy, too, and didn't like to be spending money on doctors, but finally he went to one. The doctor looked him over and finally gave him some advice.

"You go down to Atlantic City for a week and forget your troubles," he says.

"Yeah, I'll tell you, Dr. Littell, it's just like this. Since you told me to come here to improve my health, and I was so run down, I thought maybe I could stay a little longer."

"Sure, fine, that's a good idea. Any change?"

Portrait of a Child

Here is a child who holds a rose
In hands of artless grace;
What charm in form and face!

All studied loveliness in vain
Before this candid smile must wane
The wiles of wiser mirth.

Youth dwells on cheek and chin,
And from the eyes bright elves avow

Each one who pauses here to gaze
Finds in that little time
This child keeps what he loved in days
He dwelt in childhood's clime.

Well wrought the artist when he chose
This little maid to paint,
For more hearts kneel to child and rose
Than would to any saint.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

This brings us to the line of reasoning upon which the position of the genes on the chromosomes has been actually mapped out. The probability that two genes on the same chromosomes will be separated in the curlings and writhings of the reduction division depends on the distance between them.

The closer they are to each other, the less likely they are to be parted. We can place the genes therefore by noting the degree to which their effects are linked together in inheritance.

H. G. Wells

This may seem a tenuous argument, but it is no finer spun than many of the tools of thought that modern physics is forced to use, and it finds its justification in practice. The idea can be tested, the method based upon it gives consistent results.

Bit by bit it has proved possible on these lines to map the places of the known genes on the chromosomes, and this accomplishment is the crowning triumph of modern genetics.

In the longer chromosomes of Drosophila, a gene nearer one end is just as likely as not to be separated by crossing-over from one near the other end, although they both lie in the same chromosome. Such genes are actually no more tightly bound together than if each were in a different kind of chromosome.

These chromosomes are loose, long sausages. Other genes, however, may lie so close that they only become separated three or four times in a thousand. This is the tightest linkage so far found and probably means that the two genes are actual next-door neighbors.

On this assumption, and with the aid of microscopic measurements of the chromosomes themselves, we can calculate—within rather wide limits—the actual amount of space occupied by a gene, and the total number in Drosophila's germ plasm.

The total number is probably about 3,000, and certainly between 1,000 and 10,000. And the size of the gene, whatever a gene may be, is probably about 10 times as large as a protein molecule like haemoglobin.

But in another way, since the average protein molecule contains a thousand atoms or so, the gene must contain about 100,000.

The chemistry of life is evidently complex. The little girl who asked if God made flies as well as people and was told yes, remarked:

The discoveries we have been narrating reveal that the work of making a fly is even more fiddling, or rather, more astonishingly delicate and complicated than we could ever have imagined.

If a fly an eighth of an inch long needs several thousand separate and different units to conspire in building up its structure, how many will prove necessary for a man?

We do not know; it may be not a very much greater number, perhaps the same. For if we are fearfully and wonderfully made, so is an insect.

Let us remember the words of Sir Thomas Browne on "Ants, Bees and Spiders."

Ruder heads stand amazed at those prodigious pieces of Nature—whales, elephants, dromedaries and camels—these, I confess, are the Colossus and Majestick pieces of her hand; but in these narrow engines there is more curious Mathematicks.

Besides the common fruit fly Dropsophila melanogaster other species of the genus have been investigated, and they show a very similar arrangement of the chromosomes, though with certain modifications.

In the species D. simulans, for example, it is as if a bit had been taken out of one of the long chromosomes of melanogaster, turned round and put back with its ends the wrong way. In other species bits have been taken off the ends of some of the chromosomes and stuck on to others. And so on.

Along somewhat similar lines J. B. S. Haldane has made a preliminary examination of the comparative anatomy of the chromosomes of rodents (rabbits, rats, mice and guinea pigs) based on the mode of inheritance of corresponding color varieties in these animals.

But the interest of this comparative anatomy of the infinitely little is technical, perhaps, rather than general, and here we will not pursue it further.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS: Paris awakens in me, for a week only, a spontaneous gaiety I am rarely able to experience elsewhere. A minute I step from the Gare St. Lazare into its incoherent activity I am siezed with an urge to go skipping down the plaisance balancing a feather on my nose, shouting oo-la-la.

The glittering theaters, the honking taxis, the marble topped terrasse tables dotted with blue seltzer bottles, the mirrored shops, the belled work horses, the chirping chatter and the volatile shrugging have the same intoxication of native heady wines. Yet in a little while I want to get away—as weary of Paris as a child of a new toy.

I have never arrived without feeling I could spend eternity here and I have never left without hoping I will never see it again. A fickle jade—as fickle as the most heartless nymphe du pave who tosses a sly smile over her shoulder along the boulevard.

A hotel porter took our baggage and we decided to walk—the sun shining as only it shines in Paris. It was noon time and the iron shutters were being lowered for the two hour siesta. Paris was a confusing whirl of midinettes, bewhiskered bicyclists, yipping dogs, perfume and laughter—always laughter!

Many have told me the charm of Paris to them was its "tireless tranquility." No matter what happens, they argue, Paris is always the same. Yet to me Paris has all the quick changing qualities of the chameleon. If one is sad, Paris weeps and if one is gay Paris will effervesce.

But the emotional side of France is as light as fluff and is worn on the sleeve. At heart it is the most unsentimental and commercially minded of nations. It is the great protean actor—the volatile poseur. It dresses Paris, its show window, and waits in the wings "to steal a bow."

The complexities of the French people infuse them with interest. Out of the welter of 1,200 years of fighting they have emerged a powder puff—as airy as thistle down. Save for the Napoleonic marauding, France has never been aggressive. Its back has ever been to the wall the international racket laughing with a bro heart.

Except for a summer of housekeeping in Paris I have alwa been domiciled here at the Ri but this time we are lodged in t Hotel Prince de Galles—the Prin of Wales—on Avenue Georges Cin It is a few steps from the Cham Elysees and in the lacey ar besques of the Etoile and the brooding Arc de Triomphe. One walks through a lane of frock-coated employes to register and near the cashier's cache was the most comfortable looking deep-cushioned divan I ever saw. Perhaps for swooning purposes after receiving one's bill.

I am especially intrigued by a push button plaque at the bedside. On it are pleached drawings of a waiter carrying a goblet of wine, a chic maid with a duster, uniformed courier and a striped vested valet holding out a pair shoes. The buttons are brig green, red, yellow and pink. A they are more whoop-dee-dee, buzzed each in succession and proper intervals and always got courier. I am the sort who h gone practically the best part my life without a courier, too. I expect to get the hang o gadgets if it takes up the gr part of my brief stay. My op ism is inspired by the fact two years ago I got a telep number the first try. It is still ing talked about in the Pro provinces.

No one to my notion has paid proper tribute to the com and luxury of beds in French h tels. Even in the modest pens the word for them is heaven. They are capacious and down. My pillows for instance waft the scent of some exotic balsam. The outside spread would make a fitting robe for a mandarin. Or a vest for Roy Howard.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you feel yourself out of tune with many of your past associates?

You may think they have changed and not for the better.

Certainly they are not as deeply interested as formerly in t things which at one time engaged your mutual interest.

Have you ever thought that possibly you are not advancing thought as fast as you are progressing in years?

Will you ever grow up?

Are your desires greater, your known accomplishments increased your conversation deeper as the result of thought and study?

Are you willing to say that you are too old to take up new things?

If you feel a deficiency then either illness or a failure on your part to take advantage of opportunities for mental growth has caused the trouble.

The fact that you feel out of harmony with most of your friends indicates that they are normal and you are off key.

Of course yours may be an exceptional mind and so grown away from old friends.

But it is more likely that you have slipped or slumped.
